Tax scam calls back again

By PHIL ATTINGER
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — An out-of-state area number calls your cell phone, and you answer. “This is a time-sensitive alert from the investigations division of the IRS, requiring information on a tax filing regarding four allegations made against you,” says a robotic recorded voice. “This opportunity will expire in 24 hours. And once it expires, after that, you will be taken into custody by the local cops” — only you won’t. This is a scam.

Whether people take the robocall or let it go to voicemail, the message is the same, although the phone number on caller ID may change several times.

It happens all the time, but cellphone tax scam calls become more frequent in and around the April 15 U.S. Internal Revenue Service tax filing deadline [this year the deadline is Tuesday, April 17], said Nell Hays, crime prevention specialist with the Highlands County Sheriff’s Office.

Hays said if a robotic voice or constantly changing non-toll free numbers are not a dead giveaway to a scam, there are other clues.

First, the IRS doesn’t call people.

If the IRS has a question about someone’s tax return, the first indication is a letter, sent through the mail. They might send a second letter if they get no reply.

Second, no government agency ever

Citrus grower looks to try bamboo to offset losses

By KEVIN BOUFFARD
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

FROSTPROOF — Byron and Cynthia Matteson said they don’t plan to give up on their lifelong commitment to citrus, but they agreed they need another cash crop to survive the uncertainties of growing Florida’s signature crop.

So they were planting bamboo on 35 acres of their Frostproof farm.

“I felt a little bit like I was bailing out on citrus,” said Cynthia Matteson, a fourth-generation citrus grower. “We were going to put it (the 35 acres) in citrus, but the situation is so bleak.”

Bleak because the fatal bacterial disease citrus greening, endemic in Florida, has made it difficult to grow that crop at a profit.

“I’m still a citrus man,” said Byron Matteson, adding they will continue raising the crop on 85 acres. “It breaks my heart to see the industry like it is. It breaks my heart to see my citrus trees in this condition.”

Before it dies, a greening-infected citrus tree will produce fewer fruit of smaller size. The disease has led to more than a 70 percent reduction in Florida’s annual citrus crop while nearly tripling the cost of production.

But the outlook for growing bamboo in Florida is as sunny as the outlook for citrus is bleak, said the couple, who own Mattco Enterprises LLC in Lake Wales.

Hogan’s case postponed to April

Plea: ‘Not guilty’

By PHIL ATTINGER

SEBRING — As attorneys rolled through names on the misdemeanor court docket Wednesday morning, at least one name was absent: Highlands County Fire Services Supervisor Brett Hogan.

However, prosecutors told County Judge Anthony Ritenour that Hogan’s attorney, Roberto P. Celaya, has filed a plea of “not guilty” on his behalf. The next court date is a pre-trial conference on April 17.

Highlands County Public Information Officer Gloria Rybinski said Wednesday, until the court has made a decision, the county still

HOGAN

Hogan stands accused of driving under the influence, first offense. He was stopped by Lake Placid Police in the early hours of March 17 after being seen driving erratically, first on Lakeview Road and then U.S. 27.

Officer David Rhoden wrote in his report that he saw Hogan’s F-150 pickup “began to drift over the fog line and straddle the line before returning to the lane.”

Rhoden’s report also said Hogan was speeding three separate times on U.S. 27, can’t make a final decision about whether or not to keep Hogan.

before being stopped at the intersection of Dal Hall Boulevard, slightly less than a mile from Lakeview Road.

Reports said the officer smelled alcohol and that Hogan had “bloodshot, watery eyes” and admitted to having been drinking.

Hogan allegedly failed a field sobriety test, reports said.

His blood alcohol concentration based on a voluntary test, reports said, was .175 at 2:31 a.m. March 17 and three minutes later it was .178.

The legal limit in Florida is .08.

Hogan has had previous traffic citations, all more than 13 years ago, when he was a teenager:

- Speeding on April 13, 2005.

- Speeding and careless driving on Oct. 20, 2003.

- Following too closely on June 20, 2003.

Hogan is still employed by Highlands County as fire services supervisor, over the training division. Jim Harris now has the job of emergency management coordinator, under Emergency Manager Latosha Reiss.

Human Resource Manager Pam Rogers told the Highlands News-Sun that Hogan is still employed with restrictions: He cannot drive a county vehicle or perform firefighting duties.

He is also required to attend a substance abuse class and provide the county with a certificate of completion.

Hogan also lost 10 percent of his pay, because of his loss of “hazard pay,” bringing his salary to $25,000.

Pitching ideas

Sebring entrepreneur jumps into the shark tank

By KIM LEATHERMAN
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — It may be safe to go in the water again but is it safe to jump into the shark tank? David Scheck of Sebring is about to find out.

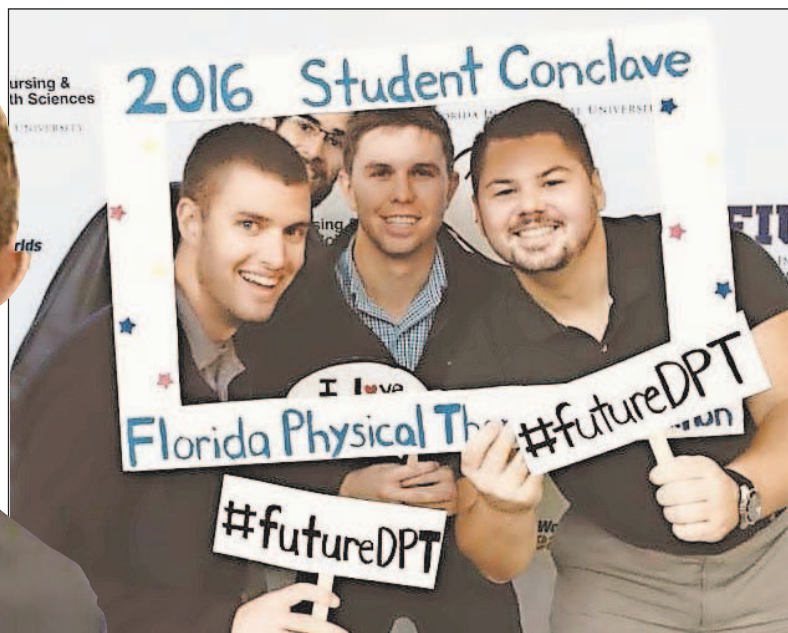

The 24-year-old entrepreneur is a finalist in the VenturePitch Southwest Florida competition. Scheck will be pitching his product along with three other companies competing for $50,000 in equity investments.

The competition is similar to the television show “Shark Tank.”

VenturePitch will be hosted at the Babcock Ranch, the solar-powered town in Charlotte County, on Thursday, April 12.

Scheck’s business and product is AmbuTrak, LLC and his product is a device that attaches to the wheel of a rolling walker and measures distance, enabling healthcare professionals to monitor progress more accurately.

“Initially, there were about 40 businesses,” Scheck said. “Then there were about 8-10 in a semi-final pitch round and then I was accepted into the final round of four.”

The remaining four companies all have medically-related products but the entrepreneurs can pitch ideas from any industry. Scheck gave his opinion on the medical products.

“Southwest Florida is predominately retirees and elderly people,” he said. “I think we are just seeing an influx of rehabilitation products because of the population.”

Scheck admitted to being “super nervous” but says he will keep practicing with his friends and mentors. He only has to be nervous for 16 minutes; the first eight minutes are for the pitch and the second eight minutes are for a question and answer period. The potential pay off is either two $25,000 or one $50,000 equity investment.

“I came up with the idea this summer,” Scheck said. “It works like a bicycle computer that tracks distance. I noticed when I was working on a clinical rotation, that we would have patients walking with walkers that there was no good way for them to measure progress. Some people counted ceiling tiles. This device will help us report better numbers. AmbuTrak counts the revolution of the walker wheels as it rolls; the information pops up on a screen.”

If the product takes off, Scheck may actually use it in his future practice as a doctor of physical therapy. He will be graduating in May from Florida Gulf Coast University.

Scheck said there is no way to determine if a patient has done their prescribed walking time or distances.

“We prescribe time right now,” Scheck said. “There’s more accuracy with this and it’s right there for the patient to see. This helps to incentivize the patient to do more and provides instant gratification at the results.”

Scheck found validation for the need of the product when he was interning at a hospital in Chattanooga. He used the prototype of AmbuTrack on patients that needed to ambulate, and he and the other physical therapists found it helpful.

Officially, the company was formed in January 2018. The idea was formed over the summer and the prototype

Sebring increases fire assessment

By JAY MEISEL
STAFF WRITER

SEBRING — Sebring property owners will pay a higher fire assessment rate during the 2018-2019 fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, the Sebring City Council decided Tuesday.

The Council voted unanimously to increase the current 14.75 percent rate — the percentage of the Sebring Fire Department provided by the assessment — to 17.4 percent.

That means homeowners will see their annual rate increase from $60 to $70. Rates for commercial properties will increase from .02 cents per square foot to .03 cents; rates for industrial/warehouse properties will remain the same at .01 cent per square foot; rates for institutional buildings will remain the same at .03 cents per square foot; rates for nursing homes will increase from .020 per square foot to .023 and the rate for vacant land will remain the same at $6 per parcel.

The rate for each category of property is calculated based on the percentage of fire calls during the previous year to that type of property.

The increased rate is expected to generate $491,611 as compared to $415,237 generated by the 14.75 percent rate.

Some council members wanted to also reduce the property tax rate by the amount of additional revenue generated by the increase. However, the council postponed that decision until later in the year when budget decisions are made.

Last year, the council kept the same rate for this fiscal year.

One factor that may have influenced the council is that Sebring Fire Chief Robert Border told the city administration that $81,000 in vehicle repairs have been needed just for the first six months of this fiscal year.

Border said that with aging vehicles the amount of repairs has increased each year.

Some council members have favored increasing the rate so that more people would be contributing toward the Fire Department budget. Some property owners pay little or no city property taxes because of homestead exemption.

In another matter, the council approved a $1 annual 5-year lease of the chamber of commerce building to the Community Redevelopment Agency. The CRA has agreed to pay for a new roof for the building.

The council changed the proposed lease so that the CRA is responsible for janitorial service at the building. Councilman Thomas Dettman cast the only no vote on the lease because he favored the city paying for the janitorial service.

The chamber agreed for the CRA to take over

The council also agreed to pay for a new roof at the U.S. Military Sea Services Museum. The roof leaked during a recent rain storm.

Council members also favored replacing a golf shed and expanding parking at the Sebring Municipal Golf Course.

"I'm planting 35 acres for now, but I'll probably come back and plant a little more," said Byron Matteson, 56, who has been growing citrus since he was a teenager.

Mattco hopes eventually to grow on 100 acres if its first foray into bamboo proves profitable, he added. The Mattesons expressed confidence it will.

"The thing about bamboo that is hard to resist: It takes five to 10 years to make a profit on a new citrus grove. You can do it with bamboo in three years," Cynthia Matteson said.

Mattco has partnered with OnlyMoso USA Corp. in Sunrise, which is promoting commercial bamboo growing in the United States.

Moso is a bamboo plant variety, but contrary to the name, the company offers other varieties after discovering they grow much better in Florida's climate, said spokeswoman Debbi Fultz. One such variety is Asper bamboo, which Mattco is planting.

OnlyMoso is the U.S. subsidiary of an Italian company, Consorzio Bambu Italia, which began promoting commercial bamboo in 2011, said founder and President Fabrizio Pecci, who traveled to Frostproof for the Mattco kickoff. The company has helped create more than 5,000 acres of commercial bamboo in Europe, primarily Italy, Pecci said.

OnlyMoso has helped start more than 300 acres of commercial bamboo in Florida and other Southeastern States since it began in 2014, said Chris Kaiser, director of sales and business.

Consorzio Bambu promotes bamboo as both a food crop, bamboo shoots, and its better known use as a wood product.

Growers can begin picking the shoots by the third year after planting and bamboo wood by the fifth year, Pecci said. The shoots are growing in popularity among U.S. and European consumers because of their health benefits, including antioxidants, potassium and fiber.

"The modern consumer needs good food, healthy food," Pecci said. "We don't need herbicides or pesticides."

A mature bamboo farm will produce 60 metric tons per year of wood and 14 tons of shoots without need of those chemicals, he said.

For the commercial grower, a major attraction of bamboo is its simplicity to grow, Byron Matteson and company officials agreed.

"All it needs is water and fertilizer two times a year," Matteson said. "The lifespan of these plants is 80 to 100 years. Effectively, this will never need to be replanted."

Matteson estimated the caretaking costs of a mature bamboo farm at $5,000 per acre, mainly fertilizer and labor, he said. Sales of the wood and shoots could bring in $25,000 per acre in the current market.

A planting event at Mattco earlier this month attracted a representative of one of Florida's largest citrus growers, Lykes Bros. Inc. It has more than 30,000 grove acres, according to Forbes magazine.

Max Tucker, research-and-development farm manager for Lykes, said the company has been looking at bamboo for two years but has not made a decision on investing in the crop. Like most citrus growers, Lykes is looking at alternatives to citrus.

"For us it will be a process of assessing its technical feasibility, financial requirements and market potential," Tucker said.

Tucker was more encouraged on its market potential after speaking with Pecci, he said.

"We'll see how another citrus grower does," Tucker said.

OnlyMoso has a carrot — the financial kind — for growers looking to plant new bamboo farms, said Charles Edwards, a sales representative.

The cost of planting a new bamboo farm runs $18,000 per acre, Edwards said, but OnlyMoso will advance a new grower half that cost interest free for the first four years, repayable in the fifth year when the farm produces sprouts and wood.

Byron Matteson found the offer hard to resist.

"If I hadn't expected a return (profit), I wouldn't be putting it in," he said.

calls to inform a person of allegations or charges against them, and certainly not about any move to issue a warrant for their arrest.

"Deputies don't call to say they're going to arrest you," Hays said. "They just show up."

Also, government agencies will not give a time deadline to reply in order to hold off an arrest. Any arrest that's warranted will happen anyway; if it isn't, it won't.

Thirdly, no one in law enforcement would use slang terms, like "local cops," to refer to their profession.

In the past, such scammers have made calls themselves, giving the caller the opportunity to ask questions, to test whether or not the call is legitimate. Robocalls don't offer that option, but it's still impersonation.

Impersonation is just one scam used to steal personal identification information from taxpayers, according to the IRS consumer alert page at irs.gov.

Former aggressive phone scams, using fake names and IRS identification badge numbers — and even personal information on their targets — have given way to sterile recorded calls that require the target to call back.

In such scams, the IRS reports, victims are told they owe money and must pay immediately via pre-loaded debit card or a wire transfer. Those who refuse get threats of arrest, deportation or loss of driver's license, which require due process.

Scammers may also ask to "verify" tax return information over the phone, such as Social Security, bank account or credit card numbers, to process the return. They may even lure victims by telling them they may have a refund due.

The IRS wants taxpayers to know the IRS will never:

- Call to demand immediate payment, especially without having mailed a notice;
- Demand payment without a chance to dispute the amount;
- Require a specific form of payment;
- Ask for credit or debit card numbers over the phone, or

• Threaten arrest by any law enforcement agency for refusal to pay.

IRS.gov advises people to take the following steps if they receive alleged IRS phone calls regarding allegations against them or problems with a tax filing, especially if people don't owe taxes and have no reason to think they do:

- Do not give out any information. Hang up immediately.
- Report the call to the Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration (TIGTA) through the "IRS Impersonation Scam Reporting" page or call 1-800-366-4484.
- Report the call to the Federal Trade Commission at "FTC Complaint Assistant" on FTC.gov. Please add "IRS Telephone Scam" in the notes.

If you owe or think you owe taxes, call the IRS at 800-829-1040 and actual IRS agents can help you.

For more information, visit "Tax Scams and Consumer Alerts" on irs.gov.

MLK called 'apostle of nonviolence' on 50th anniversary

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — The daughter of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. remembered him as “the apostle of nonviolence” as admirers marked the 50th anniversary of his assassination Wednesday with marches, speeches and quiet reflection.

At events around the country, participants took time to both reflect on King’s legacy and discuss how his example can apply to racial and economic divides still plaguing society. Instead of sorrow, King’s contemporaries and a new generation of social activists presented a message of resilience and hope.

Speaking in King’s hometown of Atlanta, the Rev. Bernice A. King recalled her father as a civil rights leader and great orator whose message of peaceful protest was still vital decades later.

“We decided to start this day remembering the apostle of nonviolence,” she said during a ceremony to award the Martin Luther King Jr. Nonviolent Peace Prize held at the King Center. In Memphis, where King died, police estimated that 10,000 people showed up for an early afternoon march led by the same sanitation workers union whose low pay King had come to protest when he was shot.

Dixie Spencer, president of the Bolivar Hardeman County, Tennessee, branch of the NAACP, said remembrances of King’s death should be a call to action.

“We know what he worked hard for, we know what he died for, so we just want to keep the dream going,” Spencer said. “We just want to make sure that we don’t lose the gains that we have made.”

Before the march, the rapper Common and pop singer Sheila E had the crowd dancing and bobbing their heads. Memphis events were also scheduled to feature King’s contemporaries, including the Rev. Jesse Jackson.

In the evening, the Atlanta events culminate with a bell-ringing and wreath-laying at his crypt to mark the moment when he was gunned down on the balcony of the old Lorraine Motel on April 4, 1968. He was 39.

President Donald Trump issued a proclamation in honor of the anniversary, saying: “In remembrance of his profound and inspirational virtues, we look to do as Dr. King did while this world was privileged enough to still have him.”

The president has been the target of veiled criticism by some speakers at King commemorations in recent days as they complained of fraught race relations and other divisions made plain since he was elected.

Observances marking King’s death were planned coast-to-coast.

In New York, the Dance Theatre of Harlem, founded months after King’s slaying, planned an evening performance in his honor. Community organizers scheduled a march and commemorative program marking the anniversary in Yakima, Washington.

In Montgomery, Alabama, where King first gained notice leading a boycott against segregated city buses, came a symbol of transformation: The daughter of King’s one-time nemesis, segregationist Gov. George C. Wallace, planned to participate in a program honoring the slain civil rights leader. The anniversary of People gather for events commemorating the 50th anniversary of the assassination of the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. on Wednesday, April 4, 2018, in Memphis, Tenn. King was assassinated April 4, 1968, while in Memphis supporting striking sanitation workers.

King’s death coincides with a resurgence of white supremacy, the continued shootings of unarmed black men and a parade of discouraging statistics on the lack of progress among black Americans on issues from housing to education to wealth. But rather than despair, the resounding message repeated at the commemorations was one of resilience, resolve, and a renewed commitment to King’s legacy and unfinished work.

Wednesday’s events followed a rousing celebration the night before of King’s “I’ve Been To the Mountaintop” speech at Memphis’ Mason Temple Church of God in Christ. He delivered this speech the night before he was assassinated.

“Dr. King’s work — our work — isn’t done. We must still struggle; we must still sacrifice. We must still educate and organize and mobilize. That’s why we’re here in Memphis. Not just to honor our history, but to seize our future,” national labor leader Lee Saunders said on Tuesday night after a gospel singer led a rousing rendition of “Lift Every Voice and Sing” for an enthusiastic crowd. Brumback reported from Atlanta.

Man accused of stealing vehicle

AVON PARK — An investigation into a person being in a park after it closed led to the discovery of a stolen vehicle, according to an arrest report released Wednesday.

James Tyrese Ancrum, 19, 1300 Persimmon Court, Lot 20, Sebring, was arrested by the Highlands County Sheriff’s Office and charged with burglary of an unoccupied conveyance, possession of burglary tools and grand theft of a vehicle.

Ancrum’s arrest came after a Highlands County deputy noticed a vehicle parked at a boat ramp at Donaldson Park, although the park was already closed to visitors because it was after sunset.

Ancrum, the occupant of the vehicle, told the deputy that he had borrowed the vehicle from his aunt, but a check of the vehicle’s ownership showed that the vehicle was registered to a man.

The man told the deputy he was unaware that the vehicle was not at his residence and that he did not give anyone permission to borrow it.

Rogers said last month that Hogan’s employment with the county “is dependent on the outcome of the matter” in court.

“He is aware that he is facing termination,” Rogers said.

Hogan also is adjunct faculty member for the EMS and Fire program at South Florida State College’s Fire Academy. He was taken out of the classroom after his arrest.

He’s since had a meeting on March 22 with Director of Human Resources Don Kesterson and Director of EMS and Fire Programs Steven Ashworth about the situation. Director of Institutional Communications Melissa Kuehnle told the Highlands

News-Sun on Wednesday that he returned to work as of March 31 and is still completing evaluation by the Tri-County Addictions Center. “He’s an employee in good standing,” Kuehnle said. “He’s an employee in good standing. There are not complaints against him, (and) the college supports him.

The main condition, for now, is he’s been removed from the approved drivers list for vehicle-related duties.

came soon after. Schek said he is close to having a product that is ready to be sold in the market. As a member of Runway Program, a mentoring group, he received $10,000 in a seed fund. Schek also found out about VenturePitch through his mentors at Runway Program.

This is the first idea he has pitched, but not the only one he has. He is already working on other ideas for more products.

“I have lots of ideas in my mind; I am always coming up with something.”

No place for children

Children behind bars exist in a Neverland where their views and emotions regarding the outside world remain stuck in the adolescent perspective that got them incarcerated, making it almost impossible to adjust to life once released.

How can it be otherwise when their every move and thought is controlled within this country's juvenile jails by the adults who watch over them?

Like zoo animals, they become "institutionalized," unable to accomplish tasks on their own.

Add that to the fact that too little attention is given to individualizing a child's treatment to deal with the trauma, poverty and neglect that might have contributed to their original crime.

It is a toxic mix.

For example, Cristian Fernandez, convicted at age 12 of killing his 2-year-old half brother in 2011, only received individualized trauma-focused treatment when the system was pressured to provide it.

Why wasn't such therapy routine? Particularly for someone like Fernandez, who was himself the victim of both sexual and physical abuse?

Then there's always the possibility that the juvenile detention facilities will inflict their own lasting psychological damage on children.

After combing through 10 years of Florida Department of Juvenile Justice incident reports, The Miami Herald concluded these juvenile facilities were often inhumane places where staff encouraged juvenile offenders to fight and abuse others, sometimes to the point of death.

Adult prison increases problems

The problem becomes even more dramatic when children are "direct filed" into adult court with the expectation that if convicted, they'll do their time in adult prisons.

In Florida, the adult prisons are less prepared to deal with young offenders than the state's juvenile justice system.

These kids, as the Southern Poverty Law Center pointed out in a recent report, are "destined to fail."

Even though the state has created a Youthful Offenders Program for people 14 to 24 where young people can be placed to ensure they're kept separate from more hardened adult prisoners, it's inadequate to overcome the negative consequences of prison "institutionalization" and substandard education.

According to the report, "the educational services they provide to children held in adult jails are in most cases seriously deficient. For some children, the services are virtually nonexistent. Adult jails are simply not intended or equipped to house children."

Although it's bad for boys, it's even worse for girls convicted as adults — they have even fewer services.

No one knows that better than Kim Lawrance of Winter Haven.

Lawrance's daughter, Taylor, was 15 when she and four other teens committed a home invasion where they stole electronics and clothes. One of the teens was armed, so armed robbery was added to Taylor's conviction.

Taylor, who in middle school was directed toward the International Baccalaureate program, was direct filed in Polk County and received 10 years in adult prison.

She is currently behind bars in the Lowell Correctional Institution for women in Marion County.

Although Taylor, now 18, did earn a GED in prison at 16, there have been few other programs available to her.

"They just shove them in a corner," Lawrance said regarding the treatment that youths like her daughter receive in adult prison.

Time to make changes

It's obvious that the way Florida deals with its young offenders must be examined and reworked.

It needs to be aimed at giving young offenders actual opportunities to turn their lives around and become productive citizens.

They need individualized therapy.

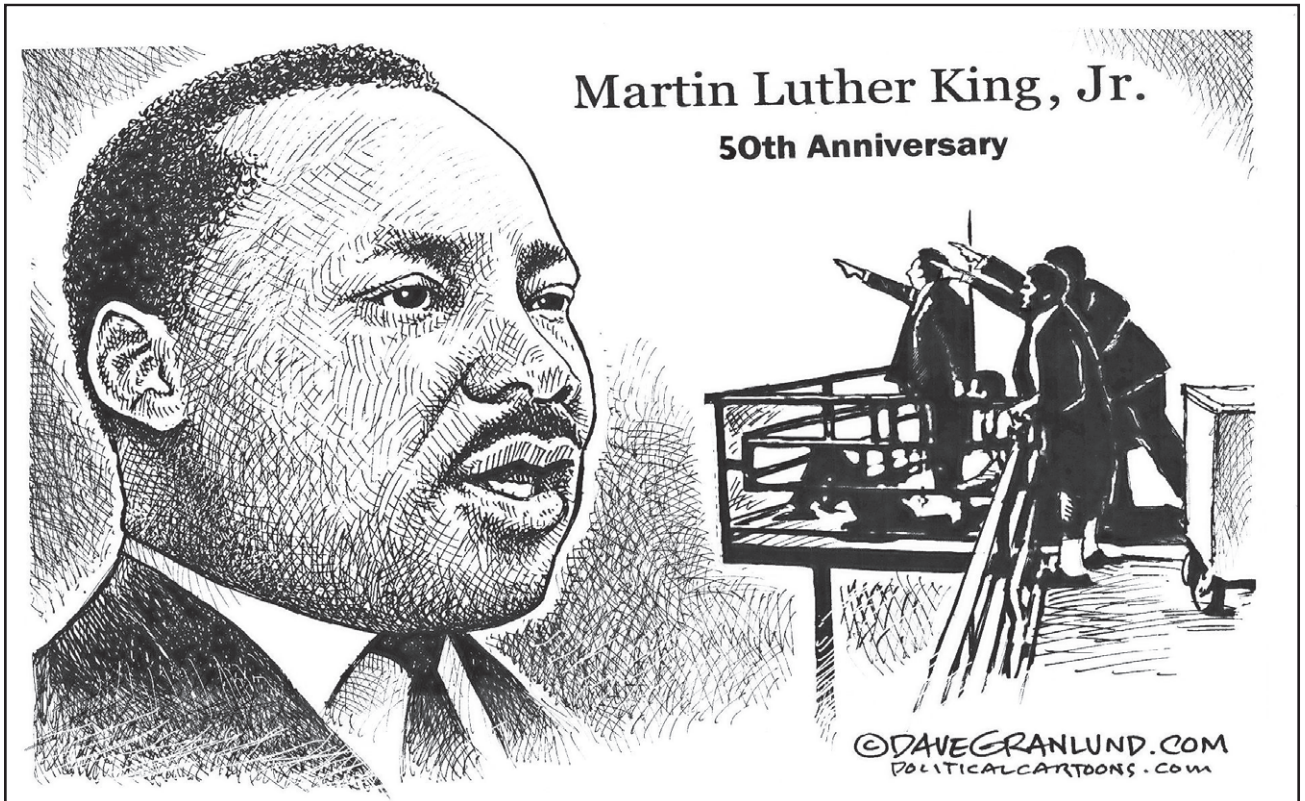

They need quality educational programs.

They need life skills and a chance to become accustomed to real-world situations before they return to the community after incarceration.

And Florida must look at the system of direct filing children with the goal of decreasing the number of kids headed for adult prison.

Prison is no place for children.

An editorial from The Florida Times-Union in Jacksonville.

The dirt on spring cleaning

"Oh look honey," I cooed. "There's a spring cleaning checklist in the paper. I'll pull it out for you." "Thank you dear," he retorted. "I'll be sure to tape it to the front of your laptop."

Spring cleaning is a great idea, but here at Harris & Co., no one has the time to start the process. I'm busy trying to hit deadlines and launch a blog while Mr. Harris has been so busy at work, once he gets home, he's done. Still, the promise of starting out the summer months surrounded by a lighter, cleaner and clutter-free home was enticing. Could I hit a few of the points noted and feel like we had accomplished something?

Decluttering was suggested prior to the cleaning rituals and as I slipped through various rooms of my house, I took note of what could go. Just walking into the garage, my hair stood on end. With yet-to-be-unpacked boxes from a move made several years ago, this was definitely not the place to start. I quickly moved on.

The utility room offered a promising start. A stack of never-to-be-used phone books made it to the garage to be deposited into recycle with a pile of still unread newspapers. That felt pretty good. All the other stuff, well, I didn't have time to get to it just yet.

Hustling back to my office, I took a look around and decided a glass of cold water would help me think. Opening a cabinet, I noted too many plastic cups and a pile of water bottles. Ruminating over which should be tossed, I soothed myself with a piece of vegan quiche. As I chewed, I realized I'd better get busy on my column before organizing cabinets.

Back at my desk, I noted over 20 items on the kitchen cleaning checklist alone. Some brought a smirk to my face. No domestic goddess, even the idea of deep cleaning my pots and pans or putting shelf riser — whatever that is — in my cabinets could immediately be scratched off. "Who scrubs out a blender," I murmured, deciding to move on to the bathroom list.

Most of the list included things I do regularly. Perhaps I was doing too much and could slack off on bathroom detail? Maybe I should instead spread some of that effort to the bedroom list. Again the listing was comprised of stuff I do all the time. "Dang it, I've been cleaning too much," I mused.

Then I saw something about cleaning the inside of my iron. Honestly folks, I haven't used this appliance but intermittently. There's no way I've put on enough hours to even bother with that task. I also have never considered dusting my vacuum. Isn't that sort of counter-productive? Strangely, important things like backing up the technology, purging external hard drives and other similar tasks were missing on the office checklist. Surely that is way more pressing than counting pens or ordering paper.

Popping the last bit of veggie pie in my mouth, I added the checklist to my pile of recyclables. I had completed spring cleaning in under an hour, which was pretty impressive, if I do say so myself. The purging, well, that will be another story.

Soup Up the Arts a success

On behalf of Sebring High School's Art Club and National Art Honor Society, we would cordially like to thank our sponsors who made this year's 17th annual Soup Up the Arts a possibility. Because of the help and support we received from the community, we raised over $13,000. This money will go towards three local families who have urgent medical bills. Kurtz Family: Mr. and Mrs. Kurtz are taking care of their grandchildren whose mother passed away. Mr. Kurtz is battling cancer and Mrs. Kurtz was recently diagnosed with a tumor. Pinkie Brown Family: Mrs. Brown is helping take care of her grandchildren, one has a heart condition and the other has asthma while also struggling to get a new house built due to their home being burned down in a fire. The last family we are helping is the Bobo Family: The head of the family of eight, mother Christie, is battling stage four colon cancer and medical expenses while teaching at Heartland Christian and raising four children.

This year the students created over 800 hand-made bowls and decorated with a Hawaiian luau theme. Many local restaurants and individuals donated soups, breads, and desserts to make a great meal. Art Club and National Art Honor Society would like to thank this year's volunteers and sponsors.

We are a republic

To all Senators and Congressmen: Often these days I keep wondering if you have forgotten whom you represent. Our Founding Fathers who established the foundation for this very special government must be scratching their heads in disbelief. "Government for the people" in accordance with a deep belief and trust in God is evaporating.

Our republic is being shattered and torn by elements known as the progressive movement. Our schools have been on a downward spiral for decades. In 1962-63 the Supreme Court, abrogated its job of interpretation of the law and made a new law that eliminated God from our Constitution. It then became illegal to pray in schools. The Supreme Court, by this single act, became the new secular god of America. This one act also took the Bible out of our schools. And, there was not a single outcry from our Senators or Congressman.

Separation of Church and State and interpretation of it to fit the liberal mindset became their sole purpose to perpetuate a secular agenda. Attempting to supersede the basic principles given to us by our Founding Fathers, this secular government is perpetuating socialism, or worse, a totalitarian form of rule for America.

The birth of this evil stems from the Johnson Amendment of 1954. I ask, "How could our representatives have allowed this catastrophic error to occur?" In hindsight, if our representatives had possessed any logic and reason, they should have realized that this Amendment would open

A suggestion for safer driving

Comedian George Carlin once said "Have you ever noticed that anybody driving slower than you is an idiot, and anyone going faster than you is a maniac." Now that there was a joke, but according to several op-ed opinions and Highlands News-Sun articles concerning the disregard of the posted 55 MPH speed limit on U.S. 27, there must be a lot of maniacs resulting in the subsequent cause of many accidents.

Admittedly speed could and may be a factor, and although I do not have Highlands County Sheriff's Department statistics to support my theory, I would hazard a guess that the confused and disoriented drivers are a bigger factor as they do not appear to know if they are on foot or horseback while looking for Publix, Walmart, or the early bird special restaurant. A distraction-affected crash is any crash in which a driver was the door for evil to score a major victory as it took hold of our country. By eliminating first amendment rights, the dye was cast. Unfortunately, Christians and Jews, subject to a law that canceled their tax-exempt status, chose to say nothing. In essence, they chose "money" over God. A country blessed by God beyond any man's imagination began to dismiss the meaning of "In God We Trust."

A major concern of mine centers around religious leaders who allowed government to sever God from our basic institutions. The Founding Fathers had a deep and abiding faith in God and believe this faith in God had to be perpetuated. This principle is the cornerstone of our rights to life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Today's government is gravitating toward secularism, aimed at fragmenting and dividing these United States.

In years past, all people coming to the United States metaphorically were assimilated to become one in union with the citizenry of this nation. Today, Americans aren't united. We have become a plethora of self-centered demands. Deep in our hearts, we know division will cause our country to fail. As a free nation, we must support and demand that we are "One Nation Under God." We should follow the laws of our nation as long as the laws are enacted under the dictates of our Constitution.

Because of the Johnson Amendment, we have forgotten our responsibility to honor God. We need to choose our representatives who have not forgotten that we trust in God. If our elected representatives can't respect and support our Godly beliefs, then we must vote them out of office. It's time for our leaders to truly lead, including our religious leaders. We must vote for morality and throw political correctness under the bus.

For decades we have tolerated ungodly laws, enacted by unenlightened and immoral representatives. It is time that our religious leaders once again lead and inform their flocks. They should be able to denounce representatives that openly defy the word of God. We should and must not allow an unconstitutional law to impede their obligation to the faithful.

As people of faith, we should no longer endure laws that prohibit our religious leaders from informing their congregations on all issues that pertain to God and country. For decades we have allowed despot unbelievers an open ended assault on the true American way of life.

As a nation of faith, we should no longer allow this amendment to stand. God gave us this blessed nation and we have a moral responsibility to honor God. We offend our Creator when we knowingly allow laws to stay in effect that disrespect God and his creation. Our failure to vote allows the dark element of a destructive movement to prevail.

identified as distracted at the time of the crash with 10 percent resulting in fatal crashes, 18 percent of injury crashes, and 16 percent of all police-reported vehicle traffic crashes were reported as distraction-affected crashes.

So how many senior drivers are there? There are more than 40 million licensed senior drivers and many are outliving their ability to drive safely by an average of 7 to 10 years. Yikes, that's scary. Sure is, and they may not be Public Enemy #1, but with the exception of teen drivers, seniors have the highest crash death rate per mile driven, even though they drive fewer miles than younger people.

A number of factors can make it challenging for the "Silent Generation" (1925-45) and "Baby Boomers" (1946-64) to drive, such as a natural decline in vision and reaction time, which can contribute to errors behind the wheel. Also according to AAA, 50 percent of the middle-aged population and 80 percent of people in their 70s suffer from health problems that can affect their ability to drive safely, ranging from arthritis restricting their ability to grip and turn the steering wheel, to a limited range of motion, which makes turning, flexing and twisting painful. These Don Knott stand-ins have weaker muscles, making it difficult to press the accelerator or brake, while more than 75 percent age 65 or older report using one or more medications (opioids) and many suffer from dementia. So why are they even driving? Because they think they're driving safe.

In a 2014 survey, AAA reported that more than half of drivers ages 65 to 69 reported talking on the phone while driving at least once in the past month, and 12 percent of those drivers do so regularly, making distracted driving the numero uno cause of car accidents. Caramba! It's suggested that seniors avoid busy areas and use an alternate route when possible, use the brake early (but not on the whole trip), know where your destination is located, stay in the slow lane (right) not all the lanes, make sure your seat is adjusted so you can actually see over the steering wheel not through it, and when all else fails, get your grandchildren to drive you. Just be sure you're buckled up for the joy ride, which may involve some form of law-breaking such as speeding, reckless endangerment, etc.!

Smarter than both sides of the aisle

I just read the article in Monday's Highlands News-Sun (4/2/18), "Gun law raises questions about enforcement." In my letter to the editor published 2/26/18, "Laws need to be enforced," I pointed out this very problem with the knee-jerk reaction our government is famous for. I guess this just proves I'm smarter than politicians on both sides of the aisle? Kind of scary, huh?

Details for 2019 12 Hours unveiled

WEC to hold 8-hour race beginning Friday afternoon

The No. 85 JDC-Miller Motorsports Prototype races in the 12 Hours of Sebring. Plans for the 2019 race were released Wednesday.

Special to Highlands News-Sun

Following an extremely productive and positive meeting held recently between the FIA World Endurance Championship, IMSA and Sebring International Raceway organizations, some key changes have been jointly agreed for the 2019 race weekend.

"Everyone went in to the meeting with a willingness to find a solution which worked well for all of us, knowing that some flexibility would be required on both sides, and the key points such as the schedule and the pitlane and paddock were agreed very quickly," said Gérard Neveu, CEO of the FIA World Endurance Championship.

"We would like to sincerely thank Scott Atherton and all his team at IMSA, Wayne Estes and his staff at Sebring Raceway for the co-operation, flexibility and positive attitude they displayed throughout the recent weekend. We received a very warm welcome, had many meetings while in Florida, and a lot of the logistical bumps have already been smoothed out ready for the

Winward/HTP Motorsport set for a full season

Special to Highlands News-Sun

Winward/HTP Motorsport announced that the No. 57 Sonic tools entry of team owner, Bryce Ward and Dutchman, Indy Dontje, will expand to a full season effort in the GS Class of the 2018 IMSA Continental Tire SportsCar Challenge.

The Houston based team had originally intended to run its third AMG GT4 at four events this season but after encouraging results at Daytona and Sebring and with the pair lying fifth in points, it has been decided to compete in all ten rounds and make run at the GS Championship in the Sonic tools backed Mercedes.

"Initially I wanted to have the experience of driving the four classic tracks of Daytona, Sebring, Watkins and Road Atlanta," explained Team Owner, Bryce Ward. "I was concerned that I would be stretching the team too thin running the full season but the team has been absolutely amazing and have given Indy and myself a very competitive car," he continued. Ward also explained how support from his family-run team made the decision to keep racing a simple one. "The Mercedes is a fantastic car to drive and I have really enjoyed it. Thanks to Russell and the team's encouragement it was a very easy decision to commit to the full season."

For Dutchman, Dontje, the extension of his Continental Tire SportsCar Challenge campaign is an opportunity to compete for a championship and an emphatic vote of confidence for his performances in the first two races of the season. "I'm really happy to extend my race program with Bryce here in the USA. I think we're doing a great job in what is an incredibly strong field and we really have

McKeel beats Avon Park in district baseball

By JIM TAYLOR
CORRESPONDENT

AVON PARK – The Avon Park baseball team had its six-game winning streak snapped on Tuesday night by Class 5A-District 10 opponent McKeel Academy. The Wildcats scored early and held on for a 3-1 win over the Red Devils at Head Field.

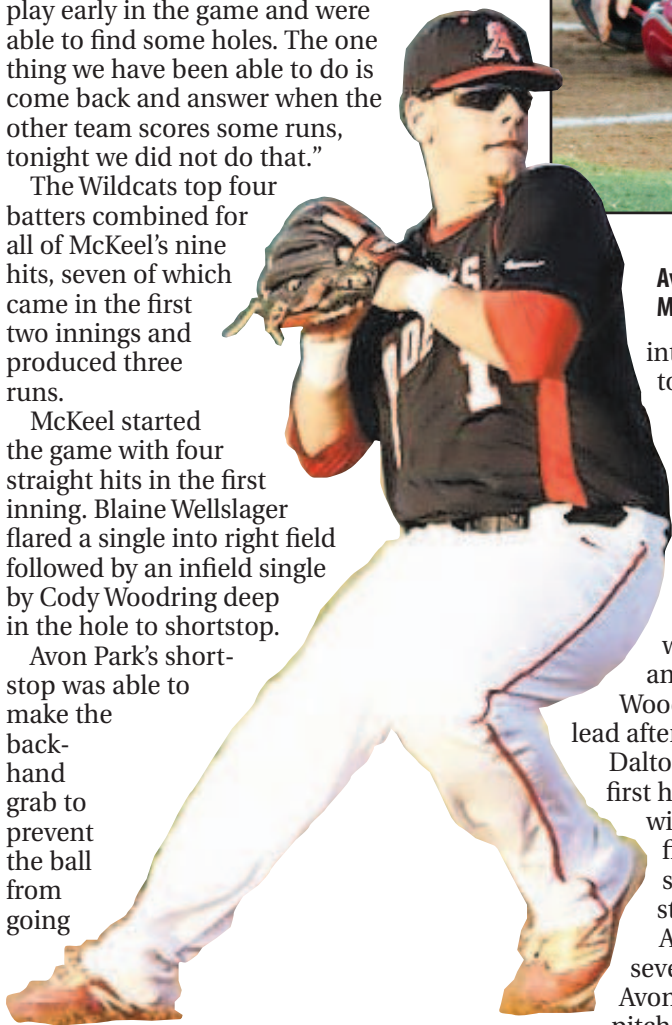

The loss dropped Avon Park to 12-4-1 on the season and 4-1 in the district. McKeel Academy improved to 11-6 overall and pulled into a tie for first place with a 4-1 district record.

"We gave away too many at-bats," said Avon Park Head Coach Whit Cornell. McKeel Academy did a good job putting the ball in play early in the game and were able to find some holes. The one thing we have been able to do is come back and answer when the other team scores some runs, tonight we did not do that."

The Wildcats top four batters combined for all of McKeel's nine hits, seven of which came in the first two innings and produced three runs.

McKeel started the game with four straight hits in the first inning. Blaine Wellslager flared a single into right field followed by an infield single by Cody Woodring deep in the hole to shortstop.

Selkirk Sport re-signs Enrique Ruiz

El Condor remains part of Team Selkirk Advisory Staff

Special to Highlands News-Sun

Selkirk Sport, a leading manufacturer of Pickleball paddles and accessories, and one of the game's most prominent supporters, today announced the re-signing of Pickleball legend and 6-time National Champion, Enrique Ruiz, to the Team Selkirk Advisory Staff.

Ruiz, who resides in Portland, Oregon and has served as an ambassador for Selkirk Sport since 2014, is one of Professional Pickleball's most accomplished players and the first-ever Pickleball player to have a signature series paddle, the Enrique Ruiz Signature Epic Graphite – 2015.

Complementing his continued role with Team Selkirk, the Company has introduced the Enrique Ruiz Signature Series AMPED paddle, as part of its new and innovative AMPED Series paddle line. The AMPED Series promotes increased power, better ball control, and a larger sweetspot - the most critical benefits to maximize performance for players of all levels, while, the proprietary FiberFlex Fiberglass face and X5 Polypropylene core technology offer enhanced performance capabilities for advanced Pickleball players.

a lot of space on the Pickleball court, Ruiz is a 6-time National

Open Champion, a national Gold Medalist in Singles, Men's Doubles, and Mixed Doubles competitions and a 3-time Gold Medalist in the prestigious Pickleball Tournament of Champions.

"Enrique Ruiz is a true ambassador for the sport of Pickleball and one of the game's all-time great players," said Rob Barnes, Product Manager, Selkirk Sport. "Enrique was one of our original Team Selkirk members and we created our popular Signature Series paddle program based on his popularity and success. Today, that program stands out in the industry and we thank Enrique for being a voice and a pioneer for the game, and for Selkirk Sport."

As a member of Team Selkirk, Ruiz is part of stable players who travel throughout North America competing on the professional circuit, while promoting the nation's fastest growing sport - which now boasts over 2.8 million players. Today, there are approximately 5,000 Pickleball venues and an estimated 15,000 courts covering every U.S. state and all Canadian provinces.

As the sport continues to gain popularity, many school districts in the U.S. are introducing Pickleball in grade school, junior high school, and high school as part of physical education classes. Additionally, the sport of Pickleball now stands firmly alongside tennis as a recreational activity at sports/fitness clubs and at a collection of leading resorts throughout North America.

Pickleball has also exploded as a professional sport with local, regional, and national tournaments taking place annually for men and women of all ages, including junior divisions, senior divisions and open divisions for the game's elite players.

Barnes adds, "Pickleball today is as popular as ever and as the sport continues to grow, the equipment market will continue to evolve. As the paddle remains the engine of the game, Selkirk maintains an unwavering commitment to product innovation, for both the game's elite players, like Enrique Ruiz, as well as for everyday recreational players."

final four innings, held the Wildcats scoreless on just two hits over the next five innings.

Despite this, the Red Devils were not able to mount any offense, except off the bat of Rivera, who blasted a solo home run over the left-field fence in the fourth inning and singled in the sixth to account for two of Avon Park's three hits.

Rivera's home run in the fourth inning made the score 3-1, which also ended up being the final score.

"We only gave up three runs and we should have won that game," said Cornell. "We have to get better quality at-bats. We just have to focus top to bottom of our lineup to having a better approach at the plate."

The Red Devils travel to Tenoroc on Friday in a district matchup against the Titans. Avon Park will take on county rival Sebring on Tuesday night.

WEC's visit next year."

Presented by IMSA and the WEC, the March 13-16 event will feature more racing, more cars and a heightened experience for fans with the WEC's 6th round of its Super Season now becoming the 1000 Miles of Sebring (or 8 hours, whichever comes first) and taking place on Friday March 15 starting in the afternoon and finishing at night.

"The decisions that came from our discussions with the WEC, FIA and track management promise to make the 2019 Mobil 1 Twelve Hours of Sebring Presented by Advance Auto Parts weekend an absolute must for sports car racing fans from across North America and around the world," said IMSA President Scott Atherton. "There has been a lot of speculation surrounding the initial announcement of this combined event, but we always believed we could all find solutions to the many questions and challenges that needed to be addressed to host two world-class events on one weekend. And that's exactly what we did. In the weeks and months ahead, we know this spirit of cooperation will continue as we complete the process of planning what promises to be an unprecedented showcase of sports car endurance racing for the fans — and competitors in each championship."

The IMSA WeatherTech Sportscar Championship's 67th Annual Mobil 1 Twelve Hours of Sebring presented by Advance Auto Parts will retain its traditional place as the final race on the schedule (Saturday, March 16), the culmination of a truly great weekend of racing for all.

The WEC will make use of a separate, newly installed pit lane adjacent to the Ulmann Straight thereby allowing a smoother, faster transition between on track sessions for the different championships. The revised schedule will more comfortable for spectators, corner workers, media, teams and commercial partners, and will provide even more entertainment for the fans. The WEC paddock will run concurrently to the IMSA paddock — which remains in its usual location — towards Turn 16 and, as at all WEC races, will be open to fans.

As this will be a first visit to the notoriously challenging 3.74-mile (6.01 km) track for many of the WEC's 36 full-season entrants to the Super Season, there will be an official WEC test day held in the run up to the race weekend. A full schedule with more details will be released in due course. This will be the only time that the LMP1 prototypes, including the two hybrid-powered Toyotas, will race on North American soil in 2019 and the anticipation in the WEC paddock has already started to build.

"From the beginning, we knew things would be adjusted to make this work for the teams, for the fans, and for the integrity of the 67th running of the Mobil 1 Twelve Hours of Sebring presented by Advance Auto Parts," said Sebring International Raceway General Manager Wayne Estes. Today's announcement is the culmination of a lot of work and cooperation among all parties to produce the best possible event for the world's sports car racing enthusiasts."

Tickets are expected to go on sale Aug. 1.

Miami Seaquarium Earth Day events

Miami Seaquarium will celebrate Earth Day April 19 to April 22.

Special to Highlands News-Sun

To commemorate Earth Day, Miami Seaquarium is hosting "Four Days, Four Events, For Earth" on April 19 through 22. In efforts to inspire and educate guests about ocean and marine life conservation, the park's Earth Day celebration will feature a happy hour/beach clean-up, a Moana Movie Night, Lionfish derby, and a 4Earth Block Party. In addition to "Four Days, Four Events, For Earth," Miami Seaquarium will offer 50 percent off admission on Earth Day, April 22, when purchasing ticket online using promo code "earthday" at www.miamiseaquarium.com/offers.

"Once again, we are thrilled to be celebrating Earth Day by hosting a series of special events at the park and encouraging participation in protecting our planet," said Eric Eimstad, general manager at Miami Seaquarium. "As leaders in marine life preservation, our educational events will showcase the many areas of marine life conversation that needs the community's attention in a fun and unique fashion."

"Four Days, Four

Events, For Earth" will take place at Hobie Beach, various dive shops in Miami and Miami Seaquarium with the following activities:

● Green Drinks/Beach clean-up with 4Ocean – Thursday, April 19 from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m.

This will be a sunset happy hour/beach clean-up at Hobie Beach, adjacent to the park's parking lot. The happy hour will include a short and informative guest lecture by 4Ocean, a 501c3 nonprofit that actively removes trash from the ocean and coastlines while inspires individuals to work together for cleaner oceans, one pound at a time. Happy hour will begin at 6:30 p.m., the lecture will begin at 7 p.m. and the clean-up will follow. Pricing for this event is free. Drinks will be provided free of charge courtesy of Sombra Mezcal, a tequila company that is dedicated to sustainable practices. This is a BYOC (bring your own cup event).

● 4earth Moana Movie Festival– Friday, April 20 at 7:30 p.m.

Top boat tours in Florida

BY BONNIE GROSS VISITFLORIDA

There's no shortage of waterways to explore and boat tours in Florida to enjoy.

The first tourists in Florida arrived by boat — Juan Ponce de Leon and his crew 500 years ago —and it's still the best way to see the Sunshine State.

From a boat you can reach special places where there are no roads and glimpse views you can't see any other way. Some of the boats themselves are one-of-a-kind attractions.

And there's no shortage of waterways to explore — Florida has 1,800 miles of coastline and 12,000 miles of rivers and streams.

While some visitors will rent kayaks motor boats houseboats or sailboats on a Florida vacation the easiest and least expensive way to go is on a boat tour and there are hundreds to choose from.

Here are some favorites that illustrate the variety of cruises available around the state:

● Cruise through Tarpon Springs to a dazzling island

Universal moving to 'Stranger Things'

Special to Highlands News-Sun

For the first time ever, Universal Studios Hollywood, Universal Orlando Resort and Universal Studios Singapore are partnering with Netflix to bring "Stranger Things" to life at this year's "Halloween Horror Nights" events. Fans of the series will get the chance to brave the Upside Down and confront the supernatural as each park debuts all-new mazes inspired by season one of the critically-acclaimed series.

The parallel universe, referred to as the Upside Down, that terrorized the small town of Hawkins, Indiana in Netflix's mega-hit "Stranger Things," will bring the chattering, predatory Demogorgon to "Halloween Horror Nights" to stalk unwitting guests as they encounter iconic scenes, characters and environments from the mesmerizing series.

Working collaboratively with Netflix, along with the creators and executive producer of the blockbuster series — Matt Duffer,

Ross Duffer and Shawn Levy,

the mazes at Universal Studios Hollywood, Universal Orlando Resort and Universal Studios Singapore will be authentic representations of "Stranger Things," designed to transport guests into artfully recreated scenes and storylines. From

ZooTampa holding annual gala event

Special to Highlands News-Sun

Karamu: Step into the Wild, the prestigious annual gala at ZooTampa at Lowry Park, returns Saturday, April 7 with a lavish and wild evening inspired by Florida's lush fauna and endangered Florida panthers. In its 30th year, Karamu immerses guests into the Florida wilds and the world of mysterious Florida panthers. Attendees will be surrounded by vibrant greens and golds to mimic Florida's rich landscape. Funds raised at Karamu support the Zoo's conservation and education programs along with the Zoo's commitment to preserving our most precious natural resources. The Zoo is thrilled to have Andrew and Emily Wright as co-chairs for this year's gala.

"Emily and I are proud of this great resource based here in Tampa. We know how much our three girls treasure their experiences at the zoo, and are amazed at all the educational opportunities ZooTampa provides to hundreds of thousands of children all year long. And with a fourth girl on the way we are committed to supporting ZooTampa's goals," said Andrew Wright, CEO of Franklin Street.

"ZooTampa is thankful for the support of community leaders such as Mr. Wright. We are proud to be leaders in caring for Florida wildlife and it's important that we learn about Florida panthers and how we can save these critically endangered animals," said ZooTampa at Lowry Park's CEO Joe Couceiro. "Every ticket and donation helps save a Florida panther and provides the Zoo resources to continue to rescue, rehabilitate and release these incredible animals."

Since 1988, ZooTampa has rescued and rehabilitated 13 endangered Florida panthers, seven within the last six years. With the help of generous donors, the Zoo continues to expand its capacity to provide

The Jolly II Rover.

The sponges are long gone but the Greek heritage lives on. One of the best things to do from the Tarpon Springs Sponge Docks is take a boat tour that offers several delights: You tour the Anclote River and hear a little Tarpon Springs history; you gaze on the Gulf waters and spot dolphins you get a short stop on Anclote Key a pristine white-sand barrier island reachable only by boat. Anclote Key is a state park with an 1887 lighthouse. These Florida boat tours give visitors a half hour to enjoy Anclote's perfect sandy beaches (you'll wish you could stay) and do not include visiting the lighthouse. There are two boat companies that operate cruises to Anclote from the Sponge Docks: SunLine Cruises (adults $10; children $10) and Sponge-O-Rama (adults $18.95; children $9.95)

- See sunset from the water in Key West

Key West has turned the daily sunset into a celebration and seeing the sun go down from a boat cruising offshore is a classic Key West memory. There are many from which to choose: Some are "all you can drink" party boats with DJs and dancing. The pirate-themed Jolly II Rover schooner with its jaunty red sails is $35 and is BYOB. A historic option is Florida's official flagship the Schooner Western Union. The $59 sunset cruise includes champagne beer wine or soft drinks. The Western Union is a 130-foot tall ship built in Key West in 1939 to tend the Western Union cable lines. The schooner trip lets you enjoy the view of Key West and nearby islands under golden end-of-day light. You can compare sunset cruise options during a scenic stroll through the Historic Key West Seaport. Watch for promotions and discounts. Many other Florida port cities offer sunset cruises too so explore options near where you're staying.

- Manatees and more on St. Johns

One of the highpoints of a winter visit to Florida is a chance to see an endangered manatee in the wild. One of the best spots to do that is Blue Spring State Park in Orange City. When the weather is cold the clear spring can attract hundreds of manatees. The St. Johns River Cruise leaves from the park and it specializes in helping you spot wildlife – not just manatees but also alligators bald eagles osprey herons egrets sandhill cranes limpkin ibis purple gallinules and more. The two-hour cruise winds through shallow areas of the unspoiled river and even when wildlife is scarce the guide offers lots of history and information about the area. Tickets are $22 for adults $16 for children. There are three trips a day in winter (two in the off-season.)

- Be like Bogie on the African Queen

You can't do this anywhere else: The African Queen boat the actual steamboat used in the 1951 movie starring Humphrey Bogart and Katherine Hepburn has been beautifully restored to take visitors on Key Largo cruises. Cruises are pricey – best for true fans yearning to sit exactly where Hepburn and Bogart did – but intimate. The boat is licensed to hold six passengers at a time. The 90-minute canal cruise is $49 and leaves at 10 a.m. noon 2 p.m. 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. On Friday and Saturday nights there is a two-hour canal cruise that includes a three-course dinner at the Pilot House Restaurant and Marina. The dinner cruise is $89.

- Find serenity in Central Florida's Winter Park

Long before Mickey Mouse came to Orlando folks were enjoying "jungle cruises" in Orlando. The Winter Park Scenic Boat Tours started taking visitors through the lakes and canals of the Winter Park chain in 1938. On the tour you see lushly landscaped lakefront estates and ride through narrow canals. You'll see boaters wading birds and the occasional alligator. Tour guides offer lots of stories about local history and the people who lived in the mansions plus a few corny jokes. The 18-passenger open-air pontoon boats provide a friendly intimate tour. Be sure to bring hats and sunscreen. Tours leave hourly and accept cash only — $12 adults; $6 children.

- Zip through the Everglades on an airboat

The loud flat-bottomed airboats that ride over water and swamp are unlike any other boat ride you'll take. Invented by Alexander Graham Bell, airboats first came to Florida in the 1920s and have been a classic tourist experience ever since. Airboat tours take you into roadless areas to see wildlife but a big part of the experience is the wind noise and thrilling speed. There are no airboat roads in Everglades National Park but there are plenty of options throughout South and Central Florida. With so many airboat tours out there you should consult tourist offices near where you are staying for suggestions. Two long-time airboat operators are Cooperstown Airboats (in business since 1945) on the Tamiami Trail near the Shark Valley entrance to Everglades National Park and AirBoat Rides at Midway (operating since the 1930s) east of Orlando in Christmas. Rates range from $20 to $40 for adults.

Police questioned shooter

YouTube shooter Nasim Aghdam was calm in interview before attack

By ELLIOT SPAGAT and SUDHIN THANAWALA
ASSOCIATED PRESS

MENIFEE, Calif. — Just hours before she shot and wounded three people at YouTube headquarters, Nasim Aghdam calmly told police who found her sleeping in her car that she was having family problems and had left her home. During the 20-minute interview with officers early Tuesday, she did not mention being angry with YouTube or having accused the company of suppressing her video posts. She gave no indication she was a threat to herself or others. “It was a very normal conversation. There was nothing in her behavior that suggested anything unusual,” said Mountain View Police Chief Max Bosel. Later that day, she went to a gun range before walking through a parking garage into a courtyard at YouTube’s campus south of San Francisco, where she opened fire with a handgun and wounded three people. She then killed herself. The sequence of Aghdam’s activities emerged Wednesday as police continued gathering information about the attacker and her motives. Agents with the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives searched two Southern California homes where Aghdam had lived. Spokeswoman Ginger Colbrun would not confirm the locations but reporters saw agents entering homes in the communities of Menifee, southeast of Los Angeles, and 4S Ranch, north of San Diego. Aghdam was a “really good person” and had no history of mental illness, said a woman named Leila who identified herself as an aunt as she entered the family home in Menifee. She did not give her last name. The shooter’s family later distributed a statement outside the home saying it was “in absolute shock and can’t make sense of what has happened.” “Although no words can describe our deep pain for this tragedy, our family would like to express their utmost regret, sorrow for what has happened to innocent victims,” the statement said.

Investigators do not believe Aghdam, who was in her late 30s, targeted anyone in particular, and there is no reason to believe she illegally obtained the semi-automatic 9mm pistol used in the shooting, San Bruno Police Chief Ed Barberini said. Authorities are still trying to determine whether she got past security measures to enter YouTube headquarters, he said. Two women wounded in the shooting were released Wednesday from a San Francisco hospital. The third victim, a 36-year-old man, was upgraded from critical to serious condition. The day before the attack, the shooter’s father, Ismail

China retaliates against U.S. tariffs, escalates trade war

By DON LEE and JONATHAN KAIMAN
LOS ANGELES TIMES

BEIJING — Who will blink first? China on Wednesday matched dollar for dollar the Trump administration’s plan to slap tariffs on $50 billion of imported Chinese goods, issuing its own list of U.S. products of comparable value that would be subject to hefty duties should the White House follow through with its tough trade sanctions. Beijing’s swift and broad retaliatory response at first seemed to confirm fears that the world’s two largest economies were hurtling toward a trade war that would be costly for consumers and companies, and damage the global economy. Anxious U.S. businesses pleaded for cooler heads, and investors panicked. But after sinking sharply when markets opened Wednesday, U.S. stocks not only recovered, but the Dow ended the day up 231 points. The rebound followed assurances by White House officials that despite President Donald Trump’s sharp rhetoric and threats, chances are good that the tit-for-tat trade salvos will end in settlement rather than much further escalation. Though Trump tweeted Wednesday that the United States “can’t lose” a trade war with China because “that war was lost many years ago,” two White House officials, Commerce Secretary Wilbur Ross and chief economic adviser Larry Kudlow, tamped down fears and said it was still possible that the threatened tariffs would never take effect if talks yield a compromise. Kudlow called it the “early stages of a process” of negotiations that will end with “a pot of gold.” But there is no quick or cosmetic solution to the deep-seated grievances at the heart of dispute. Trump wants fundamental changes from Beijing — to reduce its fat trade surplus with the U.S., to open up Chinese markets and to alter policies and behavior that officials say have hurt American intellectual property and innovation.

‘A point of crisis’: Trump orders troops deployed to border

By JILL COLVIN
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Asserting the situation had reached “a point of crisis,” President Donald Trump on Wednesday signed a proclamation ordering the deployment of the National Guard to the U.S.-Mexico border to fight illegal immigration. “The lawlessness that continues at our southern border is fundamentally incompatible with the safety, security, and sovereignty of the American people,” Trump wrote in a memo authorizing the move, adding that his administration had “no choice but to act.” The announcement came hours after Trump pledged “strong action today” on immigration and a day after he said he announced he wanted to use the military to secure the southern border until his long-promised, stalled border wall is erected. Homeland Security Secretary Kirstjen Nielsen said she had been working with governors of the southwest border states to develop agreements on where and how many Guardsmen will be deployed. She suggested some troops could begin arriving as soon as Wednesday night, though other administration officials cautioned that details on troop levels, locations and timing were still being worked out. Trump has been frustrated by slow action on building his “big, beautiful wall” along the Mexican border — the signature promise of his campaign — as well as a recent uptick in illegal border crossings, which had plunged during the early months of his presidency, giving Trump an accomplishment to point to when he had few. Federal law prohibits the use of active-duty service members for law enforcement inside the U.S., unless specifically authorized by Congress. But over the past 12 years, presidents have twice sent National Guard troops to the border to bolster security and assist with surveillance and other support. Nielsen said the effort would be similar to a 2006 operation in which President George W. Bush deployed troops to help U.S. Customs and Border Protection personnel with non-law enforcement duties while additional border agents were hired and trained. President Barack Obama also sent about 1,200 troops in 2010 to beef up efforts against drug smuggling and illegal immigration. Nielsen said her department had developed a list of locations where it would like assistance on things like aerial surveillance and other support, and was discussing with the governors how to facilitate the plans. She declined to say how many personnel would be needed or how much the operation would cost, but she insisted, “It will be as many as is needed to fill the gaps that we have today.” One congressional aide said that lawmakers anticipate 300 to 1,200 troops will be deployed and that the cost was expected to be at least $60 million to $120 million a year. Governors of the four U.S. states bordering Mexico were largely supportive of the move. The office of California Gov. Jerry Brown, a Democrat who has sparred with Trump on immigration issues, said any federal request would be promptly reviewed to determine how the state could best offer its assistance. But in Mexico, senators urged President Enrique Peña Nieto to temporarily suspend cooperation with the U.S. on immigration and security issues. In a nonbinding statement approved

The center of the Milky Way is teeming with black holes

By SETH BORENSTEIN
AP SCIENCE WRITER

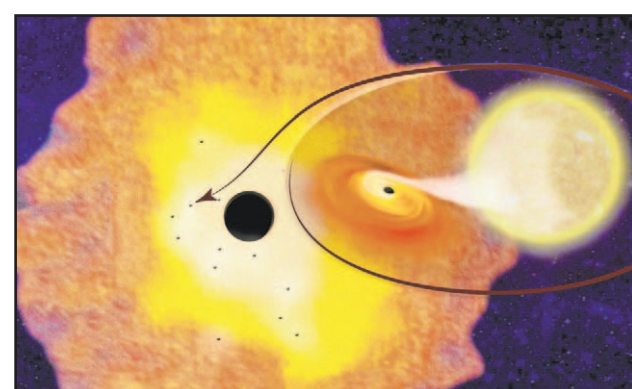

WASHINGTON — The center of our galaxy is teeming with black holes, sort of like a Times Square for strange super gravity objects, astronomers discovered. For decades, scientists theorized that circling in the center of galaxies, including ours, were lots of stellar black holes, collapsed giant stars where the gravity is so strong even light doesn’t get out. But they hadn’t seen evidence of them in the Milky Way core until now.

Astronomers poring over old X-ray observations have found signs of a dozen black holes in the inner circle of the Milky Way. And since most black holes can’t even be spotted that way, they calculate that there are likely thousands of them there. They estimate it could be about 10,000, maybe more, according to a study in Wednesday’s journal Nature. “There’s lots of action going on there,” said study lead author Chuck Hailey, a Columbia University astrophysicist. “The galactic center is a strange place. That’s why people like to study it.” The stellar black holes are in addition to — and essentially circling — the already known supermassive black hole, called Sagittarius A, that’s parked at the center of the Milky Way. In the rest of the massive Milky Way, scientists have only spotted about five dozen black holes so far, Hailey said. The newly discovered black holes are within about 19.2 trillion miles (30.9 trillion kilometers) of the supermassive black hole at the center. So there’s still a lot of empty space and gas amid all those black holes. But if you took the equivalent space around Earth there would be zero black holes, not thousands, Hailey said. Earth is in spiral arm around 3,000 light years away from the center of the galaxy. (A light year is 5.9 trillion miles, or 9.5 trillion kilometers.) Harvard astronomer Avi Loeb, who wasn’t part of the study, praised the finding as exciting but confirming what scientists had long expected.

Aghdam, said he warned police that his daughter was upset with how YouTube handled her videos and might be planning to go to its offices. Aghdam "hated" YouTube and was angry that the company stopped paying her for videos she posted, Ismail Aghdam told the Bay Area News Group. Her video posts included segments about veganism, animal cruelty and exercise, along with glamor shots of herself.

Police in Mountain View said they spoke to Ismail Aghdam twice after contacting the family to report finding his daughter and that he never told them she could become violent or pose a threat to YouTube employees.

When officers found

Nasim Aghdam, she was in her car near a strip mall in Mountain View, about 25 miles from YouTube and home to the company's owner, Silicon Valley giant Google. She told Mountain View police, who spoke to her around 2 a.m. Tuesday, that she had come to the area to stay with relatives and was looking for a job, police said.

They let her go, saying there was no indication she needed to be detained.

Later in the day, she went to a gun range not far from the YouTube headquarters. Police visited the range Wednesday.

Nasim Aghdam used the name "Nasime Sabz" online, a law enforcement official with knowledge of the investigation told The Associated Press. The official spoke on condition of anonymity because the official was not authorized to discuss the case.

A website in that name decried YouTube's policies and said the company was trying to "suppress" content creators.

"Youtube filtered my channels to keep them from getting views!" one of the messages on the site said. "There is no equal growth opportunity on YOUTUBE or any other video sharing site, your channel will grow if they want to!!!!"

People who post on YouTube can receive money from advertisements that accompany their videos, but the company "de-monetizes" some channels for reasons including inappropriate material or having fewer than 1,000 subscribers.

YouTube had no immediate comment about any actions related to Aghdam's videos, spokesman Chris Dale said.

CHINA

The trade conflict now has two active fronts. On March 8, the Trump administration announced global steel and aluminum tariffs to protect U.S. producers, exempting many nations but not China. Beijing shot back by levying 15 percent to 25 percent tariffs on $3 billion worth of American goods, including scrap aluminum, frozen pork, dried fruits, nuts and wine.

The second battle, involving U.S. claims of Chinese theft of trade secrets and forced technology transfer, began on March 22, with Trump's order to trade officials to draw up a list of Chinese products to hit with 25 percent tariffs. Those import taxes on some 1,300 items, announced Tuesday evening, target a wide array of Chinese technology, transport and medical products, including flat-screen TVs, air-combat simulators, bookbinding machines, centrifuges, malaria test kits, X-ray machine parts and flamethrowers.

Only hours later, China responded by announcing plans to impose a 25 percent tariff on 106 U.S.

products, also with a total value of about $50 billion. While the U.S. tariff tally is long and meant to maximize the hit to China's technology production and minimize the pain to American consumers — footwear and many other made-in-China household items were excluded — China's list is compact and aimed at hitting America's political gut, particularly Trump country.

Besides items like aircraft, cotton, beef and orange juice, Beijing targeted American soybeans, whose producers count on China for more than half of their total foreign sales. In 2016, China purchased $14 billion worth of U.S. soybeans, many produced in states Trump won.

It's also no accident that cranberries and vehicles including motorcycles are on the list; they are made in Republican House Speaker Paul D. Ryan's home state of Wisconsin.

Trump won eight of the U.S.' top 10 soy-exporting states in the 2016 election, based on U.S. Department of Agriculture export data. Wisconsin and Michigan, both crucial swing states in the election, are also major soybean exporters. Analysts say China could make up some of the shortfall by importing from Brazil.

Tobacco and whiskey, also on China's list, are prime products of Kentucky, the home of GOP Senate Majority Leader Mitch McConnell, who has already expressed reservations about Trump's tariff policies. Orange juice is largely produced in Florida, a key swing state.

"President Trump's trade war will hit California farmers hard," Sen. Dianne Feinstein, D-Calif., wrote on Twitter. "$2 billion worth of CA exports — including all exported almonds, walnuts, raisins, plums, grapes, kiwis, dates and figs — will now be subject to a 15 percent tariff when exported to China. How does that protect American jobs?"

Even so, with the midterm election looming, analysts say there may be more incentive for politicians to keep bashing China and intensifying or dragging out the trade fight.

"Getting tough with China is a good political move. I don't see how many want to be on the side of China," said Ed Miller, a Washington analyst at Raymond James & Associates, a financial services firm. What that means, he added, is that things could get ratcheted up.

unanimously Wednesday, the senators asked Mexico's government to freeze joint efforts "in the fight against transnational organized crime" until Trump starts acting "with the civility and respect that the people of Mexico deserve."

Trump first revealed Tuesday that he'd been discussing the idea of using the military at the border with Defense Secretary Jim Mattis.

"We're going to be doing things militarily. Until we can have a wall and proper security, we're going to be guarding our border with the military," Trump said.

He spent the first months of his presidency bragging about a dramatic drop in illegal border crossings, which some DHS officials had even dubbed the "Trump effect."

But the numbers have been slowly ticking up since last April. New statistics released Wednesday show about 50,000 arrests of people trying to cross the southwest border last month, a 37 percent increase from the previous month, and a 203 percent increase compared to March 2017. The monthly increase follows typical seasonal fluctuations.

Trump's new focus on hard-line immigration policies appears aimed, at least in part, in drawing a political contrast with Democrats heading into the midterm elections. He has also been under growing pressure from conservative backers who have accused him of betraying his base for not delivering on the wall, and he was set off by images played on his favorite network, Fox News, of a "caravan" of migrants making their way through Mexico.

In Texas, which already has about 100 National Guard members stationed on the border, Republican Gov. Greg Abbott, said the president's decision "reinforces Texas' longstanding commitment to secure our southern border and uphold the Rule of Law."

New Mexico Gov. Susana Martinez, a Republican, said she appreciated the Trump administration's efforts to involve states in the effort to better secure the border. Arizona Gov. Doug Ducey, also a Republican, tweeted that his state "welcomes the deployment of National Guard to the border. Washington has ignored this issue for too long and help is needed."

BLACK

The newly confirmed black holes are about 10 times the mass of our sun, as opposed to the central supermassive black hole, which has the mass of 4 million suns. Also the ones spotted are only the type that are binary, where a black hole has partnered with another star and together they emit large amount of X-rays as the star's outer layer is sucked into the black hole. Those X-rays are what astronomers observe.

When astronomers look at closer binary black hole systems they could then see the ratio between what's visible and what's too faint to be observed from far away. Using that ratio, Hailey figures that even though they only spotted a dozen there must be 300 to 500 binary black hole systems.

But binary black hole systems are likely only 5 percent of all black holes, so that means there are really thousands of them, Hailey said.

There are good reasons the Milky Way's black holes tend to be in the center of the galaxy, Hailey said.

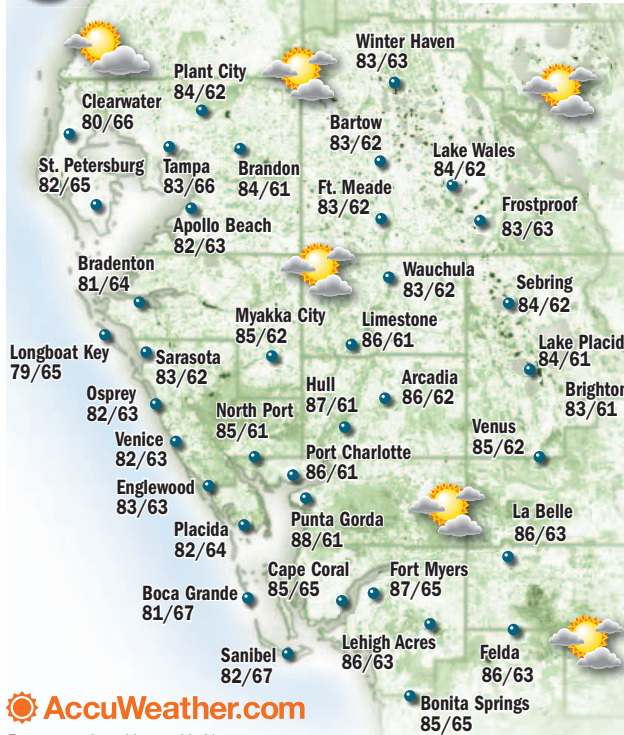

First, their mass tends to pull them to the center. But mostly the center of the galaxy is the perfect "hot house" for black hole formation, with lots of dust and gas.

Hailey said it is "sort of like a little farm where you have all the right conditions to produce and hold on to a large number of black holes."

AP source: Mueller says Trump not criminal target currently

By CHAD DAY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — Special counsel Robert Mueller's team of prosecutors has informed President Donald Trump's attorneys that the president is not currently considered a criminal target in the Russia investigation, according to a person familiar with the conversation.

The person, who was not authorized to speak publicly about private conversations and spoke on condition of anonymity, told The Associated Press on Wednesday that the president is considered a subject of Mueller's probe — not a target. A subject is typically someone whose conduct is of interest to investigators but prosecutors are not certain they've gathered enough evidence to bring charges.

The designation could change at any time, though. The development was first reported Tuesday by The Washington Post.

Trump's designation as a subject came up as prosecutors and the president's legal team negotiate the terms of an interview with him. The president has said he wants to speak with Mueller's team, but his lawyers have not publicly committed to allowing him to be questioned.

On Wednesday, White House press secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders declined to say whether the president remains willing to be questioned. In response to a question about the president being a subject, not a target, of the investigation, Sanders reiterated the president's claim that his campaign didn't collude with Russia during the 2016 presidential campaign.

"We know what we did and what we didn't do, so none of this comes as much of a surprise," Sanders said. She referred further questions to Trump's attorneys.

Trump attorney Jay Sekulow declined to confirm or discuss the conversations with Mueller, saying: "We do not discuss real or alleged conversations between our legal team and the Office of Special Counsel." White House lawyer Ty Cobb declined to comment.

The Justice Department typically treats people involved in investigations as witnesses, subjects or targets. Mueller's determination that Trump is a subject suggests he's more pivotal to the investigation than a mere witness, a designation for someone who has observed events of interest to agents and prosecutors.

"The government will say you're a subject trending to witness or you're a subject trending toward target," said Sharon McCarthy, a former federal prosecutor in Manhattan.

Although targets tend to be people the government is gathering evidence against with the goal of prosecuting, subjects have a much looser, broader definition.

"A subject means we're still looking at you," McCarthy said. "You're a person of interest in this investigation."

Still, the import of the designation wasn't immediately clear. It is not known, for instance, if Mueller's office has concluded that, at the moment, there is insufficient evidence to consider Trump a target. It is also possible that prosecutors agree they are bound by a Justice Department legal opinion that contends that a sitting president cannot be indicted.

US seizes pot-growing houses tied to China-based criminals

By DON THOMPSON
ASSOCIATED PRESS

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Hundreds of federal and local law enforcement agents have seized roughly 100 Northern California houses purchased with money wired to the United States by a Chinese-based crime organization and used to grow massive amounts of marijuana illegally, authorities said Wednesday.

The raids culminate a months-long investigation focusing on dozens of Chinese nationals who bought homes in seven counties. Most of the buyers were in the country legally and came from as far away as Georgia, Illinois, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania, U.S.

Attorney McGregor Scott said.

Much of the pot was shipped back to those states through Atlanta, Chicago and New York City.

The drug is legal in California but requires permits to grow and can't be sent across state lines. It is still banned by the U.S. government. Black-market pot farms are often set up in the inland region where authorities carried out the raids because it's cheaper than the San Francisco Bay Area.

"This criminal organization has put a tremendous amount of equity into these homes through these wire transfers coming in from China and elsewhere," Scott said in an interview with The Associated Press. "We're going to take it. We're going to take the house. We're going to take the equity."

None of the buyers was arrested as authorities seized the houses in what the U.S. Department of Justice called one of the largest residential forfeiture operations ever. Prosecutors will now ask judges to transfer ownership to the U.S. government.

Authorities were trying to learn if the buyers were brought to the United States for the purpose of buying the houses and were indebted to the criminal organization. They are not ruling out criminal charges but have filed none at this stage of the investigation.

Down payments were financed by money wired from Fujian Province in China, authorities said. Many of the transfers stayed just below the $50,000 limit imposed by the Chinese government.

The buyers generally used the same Sacramento real estate agents, borrowed from private lenders who usually charge higher interest rates and require larger down payments than traditional banks, and used straw buyers who purchased the properties on behalf of the real owners.

A message left with the Chinese consulate general's office in San Francisco was not immediately returned.

The federal crackdown on the illegal pot operations comes as California is months into creating the world's largest legal marijuana market amid uncertainty about whether the U.S. government will try to shut it down.

More than 500 officers, including SWAT teams, fanned out over two days to search and seize about 75 houses and two real estate businesses. The remaining 25 houses were raided previously.

They seized more than 36,000 marijuana plants, 115 kilograms (253 pounds) of processed marijuana, at least $68,500 in cash and 15 firearms, including one that had been stolen. They also seized generators, one of which was strong enough to power three normal homes.

A rendering of a "micro-estate" community. NEWTOWN DEVELOPMENT

'Humble homes' a new living option in Tempe

Jerod MacDonald-Evoy

Arizona Republic
USA TODAY NETWORK

Tempe looks to help solve its growing affordable housing problem by building a community of 600-square-foot homes.

That's twice the size of the trendy "tiny home" movement that began sweeping the nation a few years ago with its embrace of simple living. City leaders like to call them "humble homes," while the developer coined them "micro-estates."

Whatever the name, buyers will be able to purchase a one-bedroom slice of the American dream for about $130,000 or less.

The community of 12 small homes planned on city-owned land in the Jen Tilly Terrace neighborhood near downtown Tempe is expected to break ground next spring.

Arizona State University student Anna Brophy, who helped develop the city's plan, says it helps address the urban sprawl of metro Phoenix that pushes buyers into outlying areas to find affordable housing.

"We can't keep spilling out into the mountains," Brophy said.

But would Brophy live in one of the homes herself?

"Absolutely," she said.

A dozen homes will be built on just shy of an acre of land near Rural and Apache roads. The city purchased the land for $390,000 with federal funds.

TV shows such as Tiny House Nation and Tiny House Hunters often feature homes so minimalist that the kitchens are more like campers with a grill and pint-sized refrigerator.

The Tempe homes are planned with fully functional kitchens, along with one bedroom, one bathroom, a small living room space and a small back patio.

"It's sort of pushing the envelope but not reinventing the wheel," said David Crummey, real estate development manager for Newtown Community Development Corp., which is building the community.

The two-story homes will be styled after the bungalows of the 1920s and 1930s, he said.

Beyond the homes, a 900-square-foot building will provide laundry and community space for residents.

The price estimate for one of the homes is $138,000, although Crummey said the company is looking for ways to get it closer to $100,000 or less.

A city-commissioned study shows more than a third of Tempe residents pay 30% or more of their paychecks for housing, which experts say is too much.

Mystery of boot camp urine collection has been solved

DEAR DR. ROACH: Regarding urine collection in boot camp, I had the same experience in the fall of 1962. As I remember the story, after a few weeks in "captivity," our systems were cleaned out and our urine had medical value. A nearby drug company used it.

Dr. Roach

I often have wondered about this, and would be most interested to know more. The military did some strange things with us in the 1940s, '50s and '60s. — T.M.

DEAR DR. ROACH: Your recent letter concerning the collection of urine from military personnel caused me to recall my vascular surgery training. The lytic drug urokinase initially was extracted from human urine. This drug was very helpful in a number of thrombotic conditions. — Dr. James Killeen, professor of surgery, retired

ANSWER: I read up on the history of urokinase and am convinced that T.M. and Dr. Killeen have together solved the mystery. Urokinase is not a waste product; it is secreted into the urine, where it helps prevent kidney obstruction by proteins. It is still used medically to break up (lyse) blood clots, especially in catheters and in people with clots in critical organs. I thank the many soldiers and sailors who wrote in.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am an 81-year-old retired nurse. I have had GERD for as long as I can remember. My surgeon measured my hiatal hernia, and he said it was 5 cm. I am taking Nexium, 40 mg. Due to my age, I do not want to have any kind of surgery. My only problem is this GERD. I recently heard on TV that there is a surgery to repair a hiatal hernia. It is done via endoscopy. Do you know anything about this? — D.E.

ANSWER: Although most people with GERD, with or without a hiatal hernia, do well with lifestyle modification and medications, surgery has long been an option for people with severe symptoms or those who do not want to (or can't) take medications. The procedure is called a fundoplication.

It ties part of the stomach around the esophagus, preventing both reflux (acid going into the esophagus) and the stomach from going through the hiatal hernia into the chest.

A similar procedure can be done now by endoscopy. However, it isn't right for everybody. It is not indicated for people with severe inflammation in the esophagus, including a Barrett's esophagus. After the procedure, most people are unable to belch or vomit. This may not sound bad, but it can lead to bloating and distension.

This is a new procedure, and it's not clear yet how well it will work in the long run: At six months, about 70 percent of people who had the procedure were satisfied with the results.

DEAR DR. ROACH: I was started on phentermine to help me lose weight, but my blood pressure shot up. The doctor says it isn't due to the drugs. What do you think? — J.B.

ANSWER: Phentermine is an appetite suppressant related to amphetamine. However, high blood pressure is a very unusual side effect, with studies finding that the vast majority of people have no increase in their blood pressure.

Pulmonary hypertension, which is an increase in blood pressure of the right side of the heart and the lungs, is a rare side effect. Any new shortness of breath, swelling of the legs or feet, or chest discomfort should be reported.

This drug should be prescribed only by experts in weight management.

Decision to keep cancer a secret could impact others

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to the man who wants to keep his cancer prognosis secret until he nears the end ("Keeping It to Myself," Jan. 11).

My mother was diagnosed with metastatic lung cancer that had spread to her brain. Her dizziness is how we found out. She didn't want to tell anyone for a while, but she ended up telling. It was the best thing she could have done. The four of us kids were there with her through her treatments, she became much closer to the sister she had spent decades hating and she found out who her true friends were. Mom lived four years, until she finally passed in 2006.

I hope "Keeping" takes your advice and tells his friends. If he does, he may find these hard times to be some of the "best" times. — Claudia In New Jersey

DEAR CLAUDIA: I opened the question to my readers, and like you, most — but not all — agreed with my answer. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: As a former cancer patient and licensed therapist, I'd urge "Keeping" not to share that information if he doesn't want to. Truth is, not all people who hear the news will be supportive. Some will avoid him, some will pity him, and others will say amazingly inappropriate and unhelpful things. I found it stressful to cope with the emotions of others as they reacted to my situation. Until "Keeping" is ready, he should be cautious about with whom he shares his diagnosis. — Lyn In New York

DEAR ABBY: Your advice was spot-on. My mother was in stage 4 pancreatic cancer and refused to let me tell anyone, even her siblings. When she died, it was my responsibility to spread the news, only to be berated by everyone who loved her. Relatives and close neighbors were devastated that they hadn't been able to have a final visit or the chance to prepare themselves for the loss. — Lisa In California

Sitting with the baby sitter

Dear Heloise: When I'm setting up for a new BABY SITTER, and after I thoroughly check her references, I always invite the prospective sitter over for a meet and greet.

Hints from Heloise

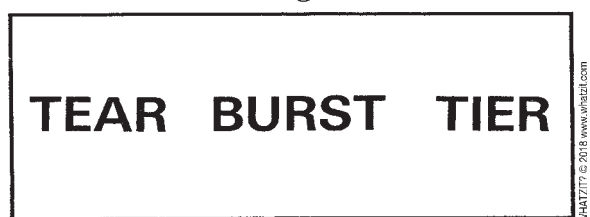

I want to get to know her, see her interact with our kids, go over the ground rules, show her around my home and property, and just get a feeling for how things will go when we leave her with our kids.

This provides me with peace of mind. Do your readers have any other baby-sitting hints to help us harried parents? Thank you! — Emily R., Fort Wayne, Ind.

Yes, parents, what baby-sitting hints can you share for the upcoming spring and summer, when you're busy? How has technology changed the baby-sitting game? Do you use technology to help you monitor sitters, as well as your kids? Email Heloise(at)Heloise.com. — Heloise

HOROSCOPE

ARIES (March 21-April 19). As it turns out, common knowledge, common sense, common courtesy and even common law aren't common to everyone. This is a mighty fine day to assume nothing and expect less.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You have many fine qualities. However, today it's not so much about having a quality as it is about having the quality that will best serve the moment. You have that, too. Do you know which quality it is?

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). The reason people follow you is pretty simple really. Where you go, that's where the fun is. Now what will you do with this pied piper charm you possess?

CANCER (June 22-July 22). The fewer words, the better. Silence is your friend. Also, if this is about something visual that you're creating, the white space will be the equivalent of silence.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). The man drove down the boulevard, smoking a cigar in a convertible with a vanity license plate that said "DUES PAID." Good for him, and good for you in some way today, too.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). In many ways, the family dynamics will echo the dynamics of each individual soul. For those who love and honor the people in their lives, love and honor comes back.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Some want the solution and the problem in tandem. Others want you to give them the problem so they can come up with the solution. Still others think you're lazy if you don't start with the solution. Which option applies?

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Decide on who will decide. Hint: It's you. There have been and will be times to compromise and concede. This just doesn't happen to be one of them.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). The project is now. If not now, when? Never, most likely. And your life would be completely different in that "never" scenario. So don't miss out. You can do this.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). There's one in the group who will relate to you, see you for who you really are and ultimately help you the most. You'll help that person, too. Home in on your best bet.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). When the demands of the day seem to exceed the personal and social resources you are able to mobilize, it's a call to action. Even it out. Reduce the demand.

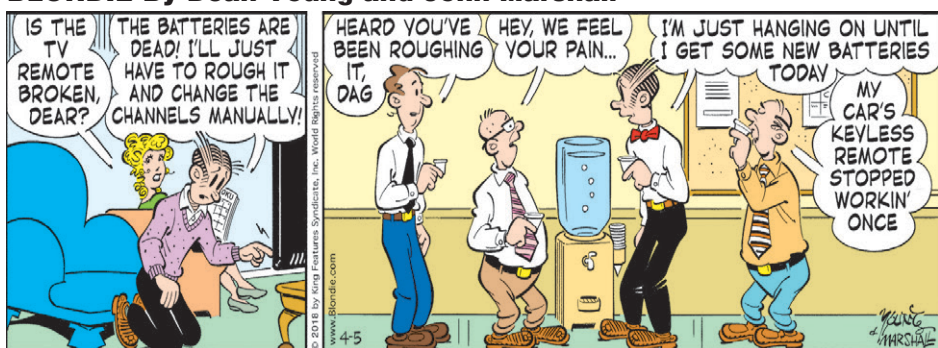

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Today's unusual emotional ride will include strange correlations and unexpected reactions. A trick: Separate what's happening from the emotion attached to it. The two should come apart pretty easily, with just a mental click.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 5). Because you're clear about what you have to offer but also open to things you might not have imagined, the unimaginable will happen. Your passion will move obstacles. Travels will inspire you to change something about your personal routines. Domestic life gets sweeter in July. New friends enter in September. Capricorn and Leo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 20, 38, 11 and 15.

South in today's deal was ACBL Hall of Famer Michael Becker, from Boca Raton, Florida. His unusual rebid was based on the hope that his three queens would provide considerable value in a no trump contract, hopefully leading to a higher score than what might be available in a spade contract.

The opening heart lead went around to Becker's queen and the ace of spades showed that the spades were running. Becker had 11 sure tricks at this point for a score that would beat anyone taking 11 tricks in spades. A 12th trick would be icing on the cake. The queen of clubs went to West's ace and the king of hearts was won with dummy's ace. There were some chances for an extra trick, mostly depending on the location of the king of diamonds. When Becker played the 10 of spades to his king, East signaled with a high diamond. Becker treated this as an honest card, showing the king, and proceeded accordingly.

Becker led a diamond to the ace and then ran all of his spades but one, leaving himself with one spade, the queen of diamonds, and the 10 of clubs. Dummy had the 10 of hearts and the king-five of clubs. On the last spade, West had to come down to a singleton club to hold the jack of hearts. Dummy shed the 10 of hearts, and East shed his king of diamonds in order to keep two clubs. The queen of diamonds and the king of clubs took the last two tricks. Making six for a huge matchpoint score!

MLB: Yankees 7, Rays 2

Snell comes up short as Rays lose again

The Rays' Blake Snell hands the ball to manager Kevin Cash as he is removed from Wednesday's game in the fourth inning.

By Marc Topkin
Times Staff Writer

NEW YORK — There is much about the Rays heavily discussed pitching plan they are having to figure out as they go, such as which multi-inning relievers they can count on the most, and how frequently they can be used, as they navigate the beginning of the season with three starters and scheduled bullpen days. But there are also beams upon which the foundation of that plan was built, primarily receiving extended outings from their top two starters.

Whatever negative impact getting only five innings Tuesday from Chris Archer had, that was magnified considerably on Wednesday when Blake Snell couldn't get out of the fourth in an ugly 7-2 loss to the Yankees.

Snell had talked a good game all spring about putting his 2017 struggles and inconsistencies behind him, and he pitched a good one in his season debut on Friday, shutting out the Red Sox into the sixth.

But it was hard to not look at Tuesday as a step back, as he got only 10 outs on 90 pitches, allowing four hits and walking three, all to lead off innings.

Along the way, Snell gave up a pair of two-run homers, including a massive blast in the first to Giancarlo Stanton that turned the boos from Tuesday's 5-K performance to cheers.

Stanton's blast to left was clocked at 117.9 mph by StatCast, making it the hardest hit ball in the majors this season, and in the top five of Stanton's career, and it carried an estimated 458 feet.

The one Snell allowed to Gary Sanchez in the third was much more Tiger Woods looks over a putt on the second hole during a practice round for the Masters golf tournament Wednesday in Augusta, Ga.

Can Tiger Woods win again at Augusta National?

By TIM DAHLBERG
Associated Press

AUGUSTA, Ga. — The new, more social, Tiger Woods was only occasionally seen Wednesday as he made his way around the front nine of Augusta National in the final tune up for a Masters green jacket that suddenly seems very much in reach.

There weren't many trips down memory lane with playing partner Fred Couples and no long conversations with the firefighter from Massachusetts, who had to look up occasionally at the gray skies and wonder what bolt of lightning would strike him next as he played alongside the greatest golfer of his time.

It was Woods as he might have been 10 years ago, deep in concentration and fixating so much on the smallest details that he walked off a section of the sixth green to measure just which spot he needed to land his ball on when play finally begins for real.

Woods had his game face on, and for his legions of fans that's probably a good thing. He had a few smiles with Couples, but if the next smile out of him comes when he's being fitted for a green jacket on Sunday, well, that's all right with them.

The feel-good Tiger probably can't win one of those, anyway, no matter how good his game has recently become. That's probably why a practice round on Tuesday that included Phil Mickelson for the first time anyone can remember didn't exactly disintegrate into a love fest.

The old Tiger playing with a touch of arrogance and a chip on his shoulder most certainly can.

That's a bit shocking considering the path Woods has taken in recent years. Back problems, personal problems and drug problems have combined to keep him mostly on the sidelines as a new generation of golfers has taken flight.

Indeed, it's hard to figure out just where Woods is. His swing is fine, his back feels good, and he's been back in contention on Sunday in the last few tournaments of his latest comeback.

TAMPA — The Bruins were in town for another important game that would impact the race for the top spot in the Eastern Conference, and there was the Lightning, once again with its backs against a wall.

Only, this time the wall was in the dressing room and served as the backdrop for postgame interviews.

And as Brayden Point and Victor Hedman talked about the 4-0 victory, one in which the Lightning played its best game in weeks, they made sure to credit the last line of defense.

That would be goalie Andrei Vasilevskiy, who set the franchise record with his eighth shutout of the season by playing his best game in some time.

"He's a competitor, and he showed that again," Hedman said.

Said Point, "He's such a good goalie, and when he's on his game it's really hard to beat him. Even in practice, when he's on his game it almost seems impossible. He deserves all the accolades he gets."

Here are those accolades: Vasilevskiy posted his NHL-best 43rd victory.

CLEVELAND — Tyronn Lue is rejoining the Cavaliers' disjointed season.

Cleveland's coach is expected to return from a medical absence and be back on the bench Thursday night against Washington, a person familiar with the situation told The Associated Press on Wednesday.

The Lightning played without Steven Stamkos, who missed the game with a lower-body injury. After the morning skate, Chris Kunitz said the Lightning needed contributions from players other than the usual suspects. He then chipped in with his first goal in 11 games.

Point and Hedman scored, and J.T. Miller continued to provide offense with his 10th goal since joining the team at the trade deadline. And Vasilevskiy made it all stand up by stopping 33 shots to pass Khabibulin for the most shutouts in one season in franchise history.

It was a solid game from a goalie who had been better than solid from the first half of the season, then hit a rut, perhaps because of his increased workload, perhaps because of the sloppy play by the defense in front of him.

Olynyk powers Heat past Hawks

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Kelly Olynyk scored 19 points, including 15 on five 3-pointers when Miami took the lead for good in the second period, and the Heat beat the Atlanta Hawks 115-86 on Wednesday night, capping a sweep of back-to-back games between Southeast Division rivals.

Miami rested Dwyane Wade, Goran Dragic and James Johnson one day after clinching a playoff berth by beating the Hawks in Miami.

Josh Richardson also had 19 points, and Justise Winslow had 18 for Miami. Olynyk took over the game for the Heat in the second period. Olynyk's first two 3s in his streak of four straight for the Heat capped Miami's 14-0 run for a 42-36 lead. Following a basket by Atlanta's Damion Lee, Olynyk sank two more 3s before a miss ended his hot stretch.

Miami stretched its lead with a 12-0 run late in the third quarter and increased the advantage to 20 points early in the final period.

Coach Erik Spoelstra said Wade, Dragic and Johnson were rested to recover from minor injuries. He said he's not shutting down his starters before the playoffs.

"Right now we're not shutting everybody down," Spoelstra said. "That's not the thought of this at all. We want to clear these things up and all may be cleared by Friday."

Wade is confident he'll be ready for the postseason.

"I've got three more games," Wade said before the game. "Yeah, I'll be out there."

and 13 of 15 to solidify their hold on the worst record in the Eastern Conference.

Taurean Prince led Atlanta with 20 points, Lee and Tyler Dorsey each had 15.

No other Hawks player scored in double figures.

76ERS 115, PISTONS 108: JJ Redick scored 25 points, and the Philadelphia 76ers won their 12th straight game, eliminating Detroit from playoff contention with a 115-108 victory over the Pistons on Wednesday night.

The Pistons had their five-game winning streak snapped, and their defeat clinched a postseason spot for the Milwaukee Bucks. The Eastern Conference playoff field is now set, although there's still plenty of uncertainty over the actual matchups. Philadelphia pulled even with Cleveland for third place in the East.

Anthony Tolliver scored 25 points for the Pistons and went 7 of 8 from 3-point range. Detroit was without star forward Blake Griffin (bruised right ankle) and the 76ers were missing center Joel Embiid (concussion, orbital fracture).

MAGIC 105, MAVERICKS 100: Rookie Jamel Artis had 18 points for his second straight career high to help the Orlando Magic beat the depleted Dallas Mavericks.

Artis was coming off a 16-point game Tuesday night in a victory at New York. Aaron Gordon led the Magic with 20 points without playing in the fourth quarter. Gordon scored 16 points in the first quarter, leading the Magic to a 14-point lead. Bismack Biyombo had 12 points, 12 rebounds and a career-high five assists. Jalen Jones led Dallas with 15 points. Johnathan Motley added 14 points and eight rebounds in his first NBA start, and Kyle Collinsworth came off the bench for 14 points and nine rebounds. The Mavericks listed seven players out with injuries including Dirk Nowitzki, the 19-year veteran who missed only his second game of the season.

Sabres clinch 31st following loss to Senators

Associated Press

Matt Duchene scored his team-leading 27th goal in the Ottawa Senators' 4-2 victory over Buffalo on Wednesday night, and assured the Sabres of finishing last in the NHL standings.

Max McCormick, Ryan Dzingel and Alexander Burrows, with an empty-netter, also scored for the Senators in a matchup between two of the NHL's worst teams in the final week of the season. Craig Anderson stopped 32 shots, and Ottawa improved to 2-8 in its past 10.

The win upped the 30th-place Senators' total to 67 points, five ahead of the Sabres, who have just two games left.

The Sabres became the NHL's first team to finish 31st, following this season's addition of the expansion Vegas Golden Knights.

a seventh season and will finish last for the third time in five years.

Ryan O'Reilly and Kyle Okposo scored for the Sabres in closing Buffalo's home record at 11-25-5.

The Sabres' league-worst 11 home wins matched a franchise low for any year, including the lockout-shortened 48-game 2012-13 season, when Buffalo went 11-10-3. Buffalo also went 11-10-9 during a 78-game season in 1971-72.

The Sabres' final four home losses came against four of the NHL's five-worst road teams: Arizona, which entered the day 27th, Detroit (28th), Ottawa (30th) and Montreal (31st).

Chad Johnson stopped 30 shots.

Ottawa scored three straight times after O'Reilly opened the scoring on a breakaway goal 30 seconds in.

McCormick tied the game 2:26 later by tipping in Mark Borowiecki's point shot. Duchene scored 3:14 later by blasting in a shot over Johnson's left shoulder after teammate Ben Harpur broke up Sabres defenseman Rasmus Ristolainen's clearing attempt at the left boards.

Dzingel made it 3-1 at the 3:21 mark of the second period, seconds after a tripping penalty against Buffalo's Marco Scandella expired.

Dzingel collected a loose puck in the right circle and used Sabres defenseman Casey Nelson as a screen to sneak a shot under Johnson's right arm.

Senators forward Bobby Ryan did not return after sustaining a lower body injury in the first period.

Blackmon agrees to $108M, 6-year deal with Rockies

By PAT GRAHAM
Associated Press

DENVER — Now that Charlie Blackmon has agreed to a lucrative new deal, he can afford to trade in that Jeep Cherokee he's had forever.

Only, that's not how he rolls.

"I'm going to get some new tires," he said.

That's just Blackmon being Blackmon, the insightful and quirky leadoff hitter extraordinaire with the ragged beard and impressive mullet who will be patrolling the Colorado Rockies outfield for quite some time.

The NL batting champion made a long-term commitment Wednesday rather than test the free-agent market next offseason, agreeing to a contract that guarantees him $108 million over six seasons. It's been in the works for most of spring training — and under the radar.

"I didn't want to create distractions," he said.

In January, the two-time All-Star center fielder had agreed to a $14 million, one-year deal. The new agreement announced in San Diego, where the Rockies are playing a four-game series with the Padres, calls for a $14 million salary this year, with $2 million payable on April 30, and $21 million in each of the next three seasons.

Blackmon has player options of $21 million for 2022 and $10 million for 2023, and his 2023 salary can escalate up to $5 million based on plate appearances in 2022: $500,000 each for 400, 425, 450, 475, 500 and 525, and $1 million apiece for 550 and 575.

His 2023 salary would increase by $2 million if he is among the top three in MVP voting from 2018-22 and by $1 million if he finishes fourth or fifth. The 2023 salary is capped at $18 million.

As part of the deal negotiated by agents Sam and Seth Levinson, Blackmon can list 15 teams each season he can't be traded to without his consent.

The deal follows an offseason in which many top free agents struggled to find lucrative long-term contracts.

"I knew this was going to be a big year for me, leading into this season, this season and what would happen after the season," Blackmon said. "I weighed all my options and chose what I feel like is the best decision for me and my family and that's to stay in Colorado."

to resume his duties, said the person who spoke on condition of anonymity because of the sensitivity of the situation.

Lue had been experiencing chest pains, insomnia and other symptoms when he agreed to take a leave of absence from the three-time defending Eastern Conference champions. Lue's illness is among several setbacks this season for the Cavs, who have encountered numerous injuries and revamped their roster with three trades in February.

The 40-year-old Lue is coming back with four games left in the regular season and the Cavs clinging to the No. 3 seed in the postseason. After hosting the Wizards, the Cavs will play at Philadelphia and play the New York Knicks twice next week.

Lue recently returned in an advisory capacity and has been at home games, but stayed behind the scenes at Quicken Loans Arena. He has been attending the team's shootarounds for the past week and working his way back into a normal routine.

"He's kind of been gradually getting back into it," associate coach Larry Drew said before Tuesday's win over Toronto. "I can see that the guys have already embraced him. So it's just a matter of him being more hands-on now once he does get back.

"Just from what I've seen, it looks like everybody has rolled their sleeves up and just waiting for the day he comes back so they can get to work. Right now, it looks no different than when he left."

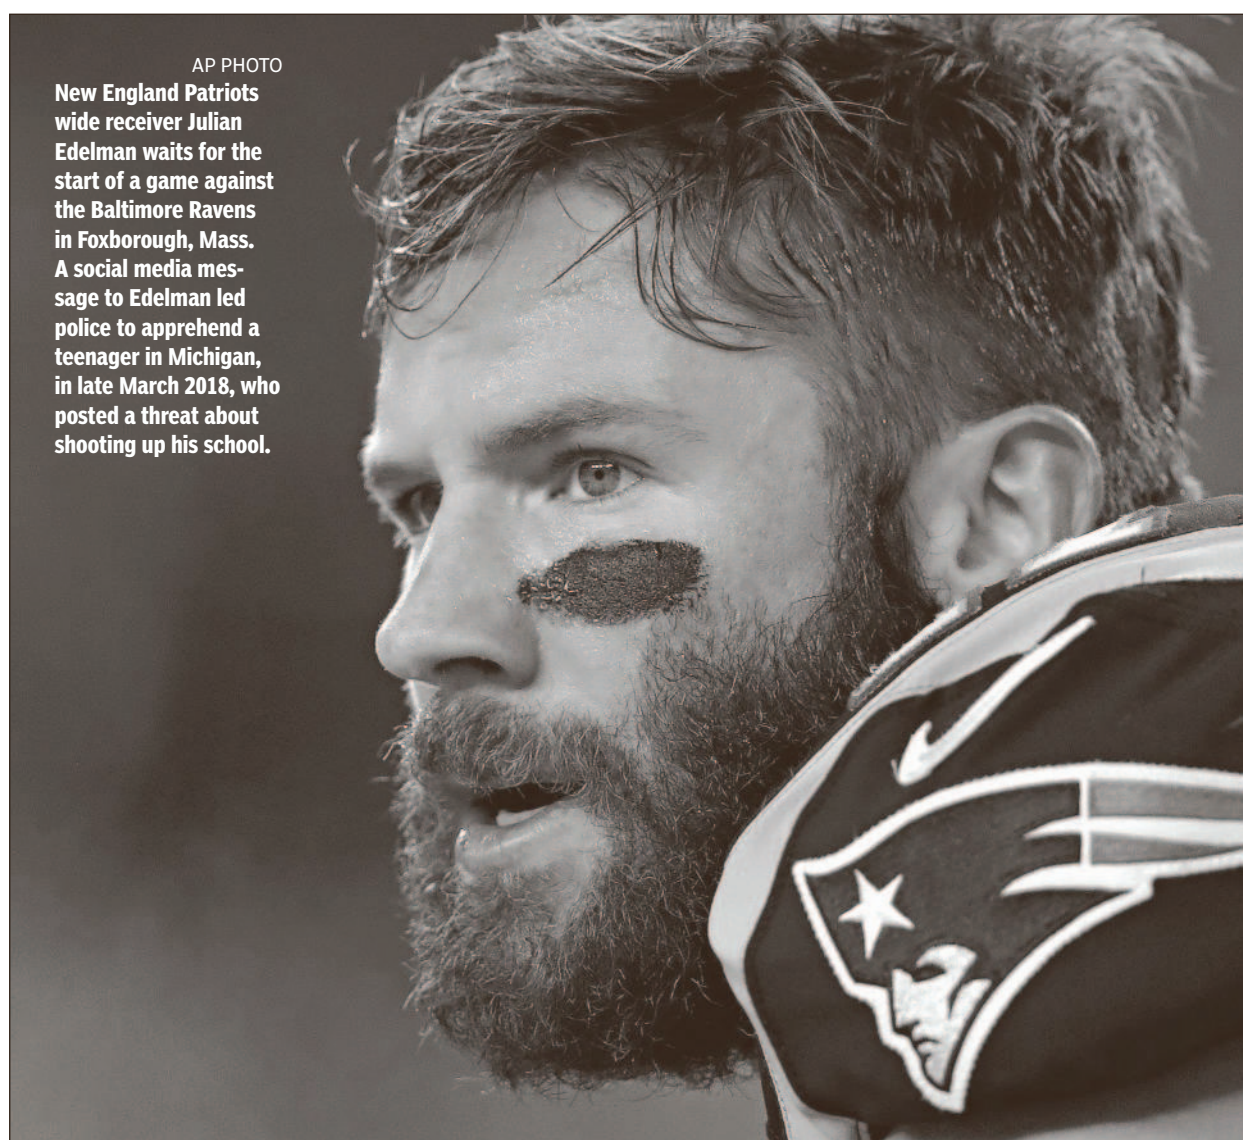

Lue is in his third season with Cleveland. He replaced David Blatt midway through the 2016 season and guided the Cavs to an NBA title, the first for any of Cleveland's three major pro sports franchises since the Browns won an NFL championship in 1964. While Lue was away, the Cavs went 8-1 under associate coach Larry Drew, a former head coach who smoothly handled the transition and kept the Cavs from falling in the standings.

Drew refused to take any credit, but Cleveland's players acknowledged his steadiness has been important.

"He's been excellent," LeBron James said. "He's been an extension from our head coach and we're all working toward the same goals and it's great to have him. He's been a head coach in this league for years as well so it's great to have that security blanket."

Drew's main job during Lue's absence was to keep the team and now the coaching staff has to figure out lineup rotations in advance of the playoffs.

School shooting threat made on Patriots' player's Instagram

Associated Press

BOSTON — A social media message to New England Patriots receiver Julian Edelman has led police to a teenager who posted a threat about shooting up his school.

The New York Times reports Edelman received a message from a concerned Instagram follower late last month who told him about the threat to "shoot up" a school in the comments section of his account.

Edelman notified his assistant, Shannen Moen, who called police and they tracked down a 14-year-old boy in Michigan who admitted to posting the threat about his middle school.

Police officials say the boy was charged with making a false report of a threat of terrorism.

Edelman called the man who tipped him off "the real hero" and says he plans to send him a gift.

NBA tips off NBA 2K League with draft

By BRIAN MAHONEY
Associated Press

NEW YORK — Dimez slipped on his draft hat, shook hands with NBA Commissioner Adam Silver, and began life as the No. 1 pick in the draft.

The video game draft.

Dimez is Artreyo Boyd's gamer tag and no he doesn't run or jump like LeBron James or shoot like Stephen Curry. But he is a star at NBA 2K, and on Wednesday he was the first player chosen in the draft for the NBA 2K League, the first official esports league operated by a U.S. professional sports league.

The NBA is serious about its latest venture, having seen how esports has grown from a hobby among youth to an activity that sells out arenas, one that financial analysts say could grow into a billion dollar industry in the next few years.

So the NBA 2K League joined the WNBA and NBA G League as the fourth league in the NBA family.

"We view this in the same way as those other leagues as something that we're going to develop over a very long time, and we're building this as a league that's going to be around forever," Silver said.

NBA Commissioner Adam Silver, center, poses for photographs with gamers at the NBA 2K League draft Wednesday in New York. Launching in 2018, the league will feature the best NBA 2K players in the world and will draft players to compete as unique characters in 5-on-5 play against the other teams in a mix of regular-season games, tournaments and playoffs.

The league will pay gamers $35,000 for six months, with housing and benefits paid. That's comparable salary to a new player in the WNBA or G League.

Dimez, a 23-year-old from Cleveland, emerged from a field of 72,000 players to get the call from Mavericks owner Mark Cuban that he was the choice of Mavs Gaming, one of 17 teams in the league.

The inaugural season opens in May, and Silver hopes all 30 NBA teams could have entries in three years. He even talked of having overseas teams, figuring the popularity of NBA 2K, the highest-selling and top-rated game in North America, with nearly 10 million copies of NBA 2K18 already sold this year, combined with the NBA's ability to make stars of its players — athletes, as Silver stressed — should ensure the league is successful.

Dimez sits in a chair playing video games almost all day long, the kind of activity that gets kids yelled at by their parents.

He plays the game well — his gamer tag comes from his point guard's flair in dishing out assists, known in basketball as dimes — and the Dallas Mavericks organization took him with the first choice in the draft at Madison Square Garden.

"Everybody always asks me how much I play," Dimez said. "I don't really have a specific time but I play every day, all day. Almost literally 24 hours, maybe 16 hours. I play every day as much as possible, and that's not going to stop now."

To be eligible for the league, players had to win 50 games in January. The NBA expected that would yield around 10,000 candidates and instead there were 72,000. The gamers then went through a combine-style format of competition and interviews to eventually reduce the pool to 102 players for Wednesday's draft, which consisted of six rounds.

Teams had to draft each of the five positions — point guard, shooting guard, center, power forward and small forward — and one player of their choice for what will be 5-on-5 games.

It was set up like the actual NBA draft, starting with a lottery last month, a full evaluation process by teams, and a media circuit the players had to walk through after exiting the stage. The Philadelphia 76ers, who know something about the draft process after owning the last two No. 1 picks, had a war room set up in their Camden, New Jersey headquarters, where they had been watching tape of players and applying the use of analytics to weigh them.

for us. He took a physical. He did all of that. After that, he went to visit another team. We just were able to come to an agreement."

The terms were finalized late Tuesday night, and Newsome expects RG3 to sign the contract next week.

"I feel like we got a steal," Harbaugh said. "I felt like (Griffin) really wanted to be here. He really wanted to be a Raven."

Griffin won the Heisman Trophy with Baylor before being selected second overall in the 2012 draft by the Redskins. He enjoyed a sensational rookie season, throwing 20 touchdown passes and only five interceptions, but his career took a decisive downturn after he tore knee ligaments in a playoff loss to Seattle.

RG3 returned in 2013 but was benched after throwing 16 TD passes and 13 interceptions. The following season, a dislocated ankle limited his effectiveness.

Griffin missed the 2015 season after sustaining a concussion during the preseason. After being released by Washington, he signed with the Browns in 2016.

He started the opener, sustained a shoulder injury and was put in injured reserve the following Monday. Griffin returned to play the final four games and was the starting quarterback the last time the Browns won, against San Diego on Dec. 24, 2016.

ROUNDUP/MATCHUPS

Diamondbacks 3, Dodgers 0: Patrick Corbin shut out Los Angeles on one hit over 7.1 innings, striking out a career-high 12 in the Arizona victory. The Diamondbacks swept the three-game series and won their ninth straight regular-season game against the Dodgers, going back to a pair of three-game series sweeps last season.

Yankees 7, Rays 2: Giancarlo Stanton turned boos to cheers with his first Yankee Stadium home run in pinstripes, an emphatic go-ahead drive in the first inning to help New York complete a two-game sweep.

Mets 4, Phillies 2: Yoenis Cespedes homered, Amed Rosario hit a two-run triple and New York's bullpen faced the minimum batters over five scoreless innings. New York swept the weather-shortened two-game series.

Astros 3, Orioles 2: Josh Reddick had three hits, and Alex Bregman's tiebreaking RBI single in the seventh inning lifted Houston to a three-game sweep.

Braves 7, Nationals 1: Mike Foltynewicz outpitched Max Scherzer, Preston Tucker hit a three-run homer and Atlanta beat Washington.

Angels 3, Indians 2, 13 innings: Shohei Ohtani hit his second homer in two games at Angel Stadium, and Zack Cozart had walk-off homer in the 13th inning.

Twins 7, Pirates 3: Brian Dozier homered for the third straight game, Miguel Sano drove in a pair of runs and Minnesota handed Pittsburgh its first loss.

Late: White Sox at Blue Jays, Mariners at Giants, Cardinals at Brewers, Rangers at A's, Rockies at Padres.

Postponed: Royals at Tigers.

THE MASTERS

A LOOK AT GOLF'S PREMIER EVENT • APRIL 5-8 • AUGUSTA, GA.

Tiger Woods follows through at the Farmers Insurance Open Jan. 25 in San Diego.

RORY. BUBBA. PHIL. SERGIO. AND DON'T FORGET ABOUT TIGER. WELCOME TO THE 'MOST ANTICIPATED' MASTERS OF A LIFETIME.

THE ANTICIPATION GAME

By Scott Michaux
The Augusta Chronicle

AUGUSTA, Ga. — The road to the Masters Tournament never suffers from a shortage of story lines, but this year's build-up is an embarrassment of riches.

Rory McIlroy made an inspired charge at Bay Hill just weeks before seeking to complete his career grand slam with a green jacket.

Two-time champion Bubba Watson, who had pondered retirement, resurrected his game with a pair of wins in the last six weeks.

World No. 1 Dustin Johnson started 2018 off with a victory while No. 2 Justin Thomas has won twice since his PGA Championship victory to close the gap.

At 47, Phil Mickelson snapped a nearly five-year winning drought in March and is playing the most consistently great golf of his career.

Paul Casey ended a long drought of his own and joined Jon Rahm, Jason Day, Justin Rose and defending champion Sergio Garcia as fellow world top 15 global winners this season.

Oh yeah — Tiger Woods has returned to a familiar form and contended in three consecutive events on the Florida swing leading into his first Masters start since 2015.

The trajectory of his return has already made him the betting favorite.

As Russell Crowe bellowed in "Gladiator" — "Are you not entertained?"

"Tiger has returned and far surpassed anyone's loftiest expectations of what he'd be able to do this quickly," said Jim Nantz, the voice of the Masters for CBS. "It's exciting for the game. It's indisputable that there's a greater buzz when he's in the middle of it."

"At the same time, the best players in the world — virtually every one of them — have also seen their games rise to a very healthy level approaching Augusta. It's always highly anticipated, but anyone who follows the game knows this is probably the most anticipated Masters that any of us has seen in our lifetimes. ... You look at the superpowers of the sport and almost all of them are peaking at the right time. Everyone seems primed for this very occasion."

The injection of Woods into an already congested array of plot points has juiced interest beyond the usual boundaries. Television ratings for weekend coverage when he plays has doubled and sometimes tripled from previous years. Prices on the secondary markets for coveted Masters tournament badges have skyrocketed.

Everyone is eager to see how 40-somethings Woods and Mickelson can compete against golf's latest generation of superstars on its most famous stage.

"For me as a golf fan, I love the fact that all the stars of the sport are in peak form and that Tiger has come back and performed close to a level that we saw back in the glory days," Nantz said. "To me, it's all of these things coming together. Inside of the sport, the excitement is that we're coming to a Masters tournament and we've never seen so many stars of the sport having their A-game heading to Augusta."

The lone exception has been Jordan Spieth, who has struggled to find his form. The 2015 Masters champion, however, has a tendency to be cured by the atmosphere at Augusta National Golf Club, where he's not teed off earlier than one of the last two groups on Sunday in four starts.

While Woods is trying to script one of the greatest comeback stories in sports history, Mickelson is vying to become the oldest Masters winner and McIlroy is aiming to complete the career slam, many other potentially great stories are competing for roars in that arena.

The chances for something epic to emerge on Sunday has never been greater.

SCHEDULE

The Masters Tournament broadcast is one of the crown jewels of televised sporting events. CBS, ESPN and The Golf Channel offer extensive coverage for those who can't watch in person. Don't expect to see live coverage all day long. Unlike the other majors, the Masters limits the amount of live coverage shown on TV each day to between four and five hours. Online, at masters.com, you can watch multiple live video channels that will target featured groups, Amen Corner and Nos. 15 and 16. Augusta.com offers player profiles and an extensive history section that covers the tournament since its beginning in 1934. (All times ET)

FIVE PLAYERS TO WATCH

A quintet of players who are among the favorites this week at the Masters:

Tiger Woods: The four-time Masters champ appears to be healthy and ready to make a run at a fifth green jacket after a two-year hiatus from Augusta. Oddsmakers certainly think so: he's the betting favorite this week.

Bubba Watson: The left-handed Watson has won twice this season, including a dominating performance at the World Golf Championships-Match Play. Plus, he's a two-time winner at Augusta National.

Dustin Johnson: Still ranked No. 1, but hasn't won since he blew away the field in Hawaii in January. He's eager to get back after missing last year's Masters because of a freak injury at his rental house.

Rory McIlroy: His final-round 64 to win at Bay Hill proved he's still a force to be reckoned with. He needs a Masters win to complete the career Grand Slam.

Justin Thomas: The reigning player of the year hasn't cooled off much from last summer when he won the PGA Championship. He hasn't done much at Augusta National in two starts, but expect that to change.

FIVE STORYLINES TO WATCH

What to follow this week at Augusta National:

New chairman: Fred Ridley takes the helm at Augusta National and the Masters after Billy Payne's successful tenure. Ridley is the first chairman who competed in the Masters; he played from 1976-78, missing the cut all three times.

Course changes: Augusta National has not had significant renovations to its course since 2006, but plans are in the works to make the par-4 fifth hole longer. The club also acquired land near the 13th tee that it could use to make the par-5 longer.

What's wrong with Jordan?: Spieth fell to a tie for 11th last year, ending a three-year run where he didn't finish out of the top two at Augusta. His performance this year hasn't been up to his standards, but never count him out at Augusta.

Sergio Garcia: The Spaniard broke through last year at Augusta National for his first major win and comes to Augusta as a family man after his marriage last summer and the birth of baby daughter Azalea in March.

Advantage for lefties: Phil Mickelson and Bubba Watson have already won this season, and southpaws have won six times at the Masters since 2003. With Augusta National favoring a right-to-left shot shape, that's a fade and easier to control for left-handers.

But he's less than a year out of rehab, where he went after being busted for DUI in the early morning hours last May on a Florida highway. Woods was so out of it that he told police he was driving to California, and his toxicology tests later revealed five different drugs in his system. And it's got to be hard to get the killer instinct back when you're suddenly trying to be friends with guys you made your life's mission to beat.

"I walked past Tiger on the range just before he came in and spoke to you guys, and I said, 'I never thought I would see the day, Tiger and Phil playing a practice round at Augusta,'" Rory McIlroy said. "So we had a bit of a laugh about that."

That it took Woods until he was in his 40s to be able to relate to most of his fellow players — and some of his fans — isn't all that surprising for anyone who has read the exhaustive new biography "Tiger Woods" that details his great successes and biggest lows. The book describes him as a product of his parents, who were determined to raise a champion but also raised a loner who found his only solace on the golf course.

"Even the most basic human civilities — a simple hello or thank you — routinely went missing from his vocabulary," authors Jeff Benedict and Armen Keteyian wrote. "A nod was too much to expect."

There were a few nods on Wednesday, though they were perfunctory at best. On the seventh hole, Woods actually mouthed "thank you" to fans who cheered him on the way to the tee box, and earlier on the driving range he signed a few autographs.
