Council Confronted on $100 Business License Fee

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

An older piece of city code was looked at by the Berea City Council on Tuesday, a piece that some members declared unfair to certain businesses. David Powell, who owns Snow White Laundry on Highway 25, approached city council about a bill he received charging him $100 for a business license. "Why am I being charged a fee that other people don't have to pay," Powell asked on Tuesday. "What's so special about me?" He pointed out that his neighboring business such as McDonalds only paid the $10 business license fee instead of the $100 he's now being charged. "I've been in business over 50 years," Powell said, "and I've never paid this." Mayor Steve Connelly explained to council members that a city code from 1990 dictated that certain businesses be charged a special $100 license fee, such as pool halls, collection agencies, insurance companies in the sale of life insurance, and carnivals. There were over 15 types of businesses listed, including laundry mats and skating rinks.

U.S. Representative Andy Barr visited Berea on Wednesday morning to hear concerns and requests from people regarding federal legislation. Above he speaks to local Berean Leonard Bratcher. He is starting a local office in Berea that will be open the second Wednesday of each month from 10 - 11 a.m., where people can come with concerns about veterans benefit, social security, disability, and the IRS. Barr's field representative, J. Tyler White, will be the one present in Berea, with Barr occasionally coming.

It Ain't Over Until the Last Ball's Been Hit

By Beth Myers

The four of them meet on the golf course in Berea at least two or three times a week, usually in the morning, and even on cloudy days. They'll call each other, partner up, and enjoy running through the 9-hole course twice. "It never rains on the golf course," one of them said. Another said, "Even a bad day on a course is better than a good day in the office." These four golf aficionados are all seniors, and have all been playing golf for years. John Gilliam at 70 years old is one of the oldest members, and they all agree that he's the best, most consistent player of all of them. He scores in the 70s. Benny Boggs, at 68 years of age, remembers sneaking in after hours to the golf course when he was a kid. He would bring his own clubs and balls, and play. Tommy Harkleroad, 66, and Ronnie Lakes, 65, are equally committed to the game, though Lakes came to it somewhat later in life. They all agree that it's addictive - once they hit a ball, it was all over for them. Gilliam first discovered golf when he was a teenager. He worked for Jack Adams, who told him he would pay him to be his caddy. "I love golf because you

Glades Christian Supported by Faith and Oak Beams

By Sandra Plant
Citizen Reporter

This is the fourth article in the historic church series. When the present structure of Glades Christian Church was built sometime around 1866 to 1869, the builder used sturdy oak logs to support the main frame of the church. After more than 145 years as a landmark on Glades

Road, the log beams are there for all to see in the basement ceiling. Gerald Tudor, a member of Glades Christian since his boyhood in the early 1940s, said, "At one time you could still see the bark on the logs." Pastor Rick Fulton said a structural engineer who was invited to assess the building's log supports pronounced

Liam & Valentina to Share Cycling Adventures

By Christie Green

I caught up with Liam and Valentina just as they sold the last of their bread at the farmer's market and were loading their bicycles up for the trip home. Theirs is no short trip across town, either. They travel 7 miles out Highway 21 West toward Paint Lick, and Liam said that takes them about 45 minutes when they are loaded with goods for the market. They are certainly no strangers to cycling. In 2010, Liam Wilson and his wife

Valentina travelled by bicycle across Eastern Europe, from Sicily to the Ukraine. They will be presenting slides and prints from their cycling journey next Thursday night, July 11, at 6 pm in the community theater at the Berea Branch of Madison County Public Library. The presentation is open to all ages. Their journey by bike lasted sixty-seven days. Their route took them approximately 1,800 miles, and they carried their gear with them. "We were not trying for

Eva M. Younger

Eva M. Younger, 92, died Friday, June 28, 2013 at her home in Gabbardtown. She was born in Rockcastle County to the late John and Ann Baker Himes. She was a member of the Liberty Avenue Baptist Church and had worked at the Berea College Laundry and Harts Laundry in Lexington. She liked to sew and take care of her grandchildren. Mrs. Younger is survived by her daughter, Lucy (Roy) Ingram of Berea; her grandchildren, Rickie (Brenda) Ingram and Jeffrey (Jan) Ingram; her granddaughters-in-law, Wanda (Clifford) Ingram, Blake Kelly, Brooklyn Combs, and Hunter Ingram; her great granddaughters, Angie (Adam) Abney, Casie Winkler, Brandy (Bryan) Land, and Jenny Ingram; great-grandsons, Brooks Ingram, Jason (Tiffany) Ingram, Travis (Veronica) Ingram, and Tyler (Jenna) Ingram; great-great granddaughters, Avery Bella Ingram, Emmalyn Grace Ingram, and Olivia Grace Ingram; and great-great grandsons, Tristian Ingram, Lukas Ingram, Michael Winkler, and Jeffery Adien Ingram.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Marvin Younger; her son, William Fred Montgomery; daughter, Mary Frances Montgomery; brothers, Luther and Leonard Himes; sisters, Pearl Hayes, Nannie Rose, Etta Bell Marcum, and Janie Himes; and grandson, Clifford Ingram.

Funeral services for Mrs. Younger were 1 p.m. Tuesday at the Davis and Powell Funeral Home with Bro. Roy Himes and Bro. Lee Abney officiating.

Burial followed in the Bluegrass Memorial Gardens in Lexington.

Pallbearers were Brooks Ingram, Tyler Ingram, Jason Ingram, Adam Abney, Bryan Land, and Dan Hamner. Honorary pallbearers were Angie Abney, Brandy Land, Jenny Ingram, Casie Winkler, Jeff Ingram, Ricky Ingram, and Travis Ingram. www.davisandpowellfuneralhome.com can always do better," Gilliam said. "And I enjoy the camaraderie."

His friends quickly agree. The chance to fellowship with friends and visit has a great deal to do with their love of the game. Unlike many other sports, it's possible to talk and play at the same time. And the fact that it's a sport that people can play from young to old is an even bigger bonus.

The Berea Country Club Golf Course started up in 1950, and has allowed many locals like these four senior players to keep up with the game they love. The course is tucked away behind the old Churchill Weavers building, and features 3,067 yards of golf. There are tees for men, women and senior players who cannot walk very far.

"We owe a lot to seniors in this game," Robert Johnson said, the president of the country club. "The game wouldn't be where it is now without them."

BPD Traffic Safety Checkpoints

The Berea Police Department (BPD) will be conducting traffic safety checkpoints throughout the city limits of Berea, during the upcoming holiday season to check motorists for compliance with motor vehicle laws including driving under the influence statutes.

BPD utilizes traffic safety checkpoints to promote safety for motorists using the public roadways and to provide a deterrent for those who violate Kentucky laws.

The intent of a traffic safety checkpoint is to provide for a high visibility, public safety service, focusing on vehicular equipment deficiencies, confirming appropriate registration and insurance of vehicles, and the valid licensing of drivers. Violations will be addressed.

Traffic safety checkpoints will allow the Berea Police Department the opportunity to periodically concentrate its efforts in checking for violations of Kentucky traffic and regulatory laws that will ultimately increase the safety of the citizens within the Commonwealth. Listed below are the supervisory-approved traffic safety checkpoint locations in the city limits of Berea.

"George Wyatt raised this question several months ago," Connelly said about the owner of the Berea Skating Rink. "Council may want to see if those classifications should remain, requiring special licenses."

Connelly explained that the $100 fee was not to raise revenue, but to cover the special attention such businesses may get from city departments such as the police department, fire department and codes. Powell asked the council members why a laundry mat would require such attention.

"We do need to come back and review these," city council member Virgil Burnside said.

Council member Billy Wagers agreed with Powell that the extra charge wasn't fair.

Connelly said the reason Powell was hearing about this now, was because the updating of the city's software allowed them to monitor the business licenses.

Council members agreed to have a work session reviewing the businesses that were listed in this special classification, and asked that the departments invested also be in the discussion.

Randy Coffey reported on the US 25 Yard Sale a few weeks ago, since he had talked to different businesses in town to see what the yard sale's economic impact was on the community. He said that almost half the businesses said they increased customers over the weekend, while others said the business was approximately the same as the weekend before when the Guild Crafts Fair was taking place. He said that different merchants in town asked that they hold the US 25 yard sale again next year.

Coffey said he would like to develop a website for the US 25 yard sale, and asked council members to check out the US 68 one, since they would like to emulate the work of that yard sale.

"I think it's a good thing and I think we ought to do it every year," Coffey said.

Coffey gave a few other suggestions for the city, such as a volleyball tournament for 13, 14, and 15 year olds girls and a "painting the town," event where volunteers would paint buildings around Berea.

Tara Bellando addressed the council members about the Berea Craft Festival, which will be taking place July 13 and 14. She stated that in answer to one interview question about the craft fair, she realized how proud she was of the community effort that supported the event, such as retailers, the city, the college, the arts community, and many others. There will be 127 vendors this year from 15 states, and many of the motels and hotels are 75 percent full. "It's going to be a big weekend for us," Tara said.

Belle Jackson gave an update for the Learnshops that will kick off the same weekend as the Berea Crafts Festival, by design. She stated that they had over 900 people signed up for the Learnshops so far, and were averaging 25 sign-ups per day. Forty classes have already filled up.

Randy Stone informed council members that the Bratcher Lane project was coming along, and they had some significant progress with Chase Bank with the foreclosed property that has been holding things up. They are hoping to finish these negotiations this week. The mayor asked council members what they wished to do regarding Spectrum Consultants proposal towards a study on Berea in reference to a retirement center. Council members requested a work session to discuss it.

his role as the commander of the longest over-water rescue mission by a helicopter in aviation history. As a senior Air Force officer, Larry attended the Air War College and Defense Acquisition University. Retiring in 1991 as a Lt. Colonel, Larry served 26 years on active duty.

In 1968, Larry joined the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, beginning a lifelong hobby and passion for this American music genre. Except for secretary and treasurer, he served in every chapter office; he was Barbershopper of the Year in two chapters and Barbershopper of the Year for the Southwestern District. Larry was a southwestern district president twice, and the immediate past president of the southwestern district. He was also chairman of the district nominating committee and chairman of the district's long range planning committee. In 2004 he was inducted into the Southwestern District Hall of Fame. At the society level, he was a Certified Presentation Judge, Category Specialist for three years and chairman of the Society's Contest & Judging Committee for three years. Larry was an internationally renowned quartet and chorus coach, traveling throughout North America, Europe, the Pacific Rim and the Baltics to work with ensembles.

Larry is survived by his wife of 28 years, Peggy; his mother, Madelyn McClendon; his son, Jay and wife Heidi; grandchildren, Kyle and Rebecca; his daughter, Jenny Crabtree; his brothers, Jerry and wife Kathy, and Gary Wayne. Larry is also survived by many special friends, including John Devine whose heroic efforts on June 22 will never be forgotten.

Guest visitation took place on Thursday, June 27 from 6 - 9 p.m. at the Porter Loring Mortuary North on Loop 1604 in San Antonio. A memorial service will be held Friday, June 28 at 11:30 a.m., also at Porter Loring Mortuary. Internment will follow at Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery at 1:15 p.m. A celebration of life will be held at the Garden Ridge Community Center at 3 p.m. Memorial gifts in Larry's memory may be made to the Love Fund of the Barbershop Chorus of your choice or Harmony Foundation of the Barbershop Harmony Society.

Larry had an "unconditional positive regard" for everyone who had the privilege of knowing and meeting him.

BEREA POLICE REPORTS

Police Reports from 6/24/13 - 7/2/13

Thefts

• On June 24, a resident from the 300 block of Burdette Street reported a utility trailer stolen from his yard. The estimated loss was $500.
 • On June 27, officers were called to Comfort Inn because of a theft. The clerk said that just after midnight, a man came into the lobby. He asked the clerk for change for the laundry room. He then left for a short time and came back and told the clerk that there was a spill in the men's restroom. The clerk went to the restroom to check, and then went back to the front desk.

When she counted down the drawer, it was short $300. She reviewed the security camera video and saw the man jump over the counter while she was checking on the restroom. He opened the cash register and took the money and left. He was not a guest at the hotel.

• On June 28, a resident from the 100 block of Boone Street reported lawn care equipment stolen from inside a vehicle. The estimated loss was $239.

• On June 30, a resident from the 1000 block of Burnell Drive reported a GPS stolen from his vehicle overnight. The estimated loss was $120.

Property Damage

• On June 26, officers were called to the Berea Skate Park because of property damage. The inside of the bathrooms had been damaged overnight. The estimated loss was $1,500.

On June 29, a resident from the 200 block of Chase Court reported a rock thrown through the window of his vehicle.

DUI Arrests

• On June 26, a traffic stop was conducted on Glades Road for a minor traffic problem. The officer noticed the driver smelled like alcohol -- he admitted he had been drinking. After a short investigation the Officer determined that the driver was under the influence.

Officers arrested Richard Abney, 49, of Berea. After he was transported to the Madison County Detention Center, the officer located a lortab pill in his own backseat where Abney had been sitting. Abney was charged with traffic offenses as well as operating a motor vehicle under the influence -- second offense (DUI), driving on a DUI suspended license, possession of open alcoholic beverage container in a motor vehicle, first degree possession of controlled substance, tampering with physical evidence

• On July 1, officers received a call that a vehicle was swerving across all three lanes of traffic on Interstate 75. Officers located the vehicle and stopped the car at Exit 77. The driver of that constricted pupils and was slurring her speech. After investigating, it was determined that the driver was under the influence.

Officers arrested Joyce Day, 44, of Richmond and charged her with operating a motor vehicle under the influence -- second offense.

Alcohol Arrests

• On June 29, officers were called to Chase Court because of a man beating on doors and parked cars. They located the man, who was unsteady and slurring his words.

Officers arrested Justin Dobbs, 23, of Berea and charged him with alcohol intoxication in a public place and disorderly conduct.

• On June 30, just before 2 a.m., an officer saw a man looking into the window of a business on Main Street. The man almost fell to the ground several times as the officer got out to speak with him. He said he had been drinking and had slurred speech.

Officers arrested Greg Elam, 40, of Berea and charged him with alcohol intoxication in a public place.

Drug Arrest

• On June 29, officers were called to OH Kentucky

Finding Out What Happened

Letters from Berea

Beth Myers
Editor

The young woman who is still missing, Brookelyn Farthing, has been on everyone's mind this past week. At least every other person who comes in the newspaper office has asked if there's any news. I can only imagine what family and friends are going through, since even people who didn't know her are terribly worried and anxious. I'm glad to live in a small community where a missing teenage girl causes such a concern everywhere, instead of a large urban area where missing teens are far too commonplace.

We received a request for public assistance from the Kentucky State Police on Tuesday, asking people in Madison, Estill, Jackson and Rockcastle to keep an eye out for any signs of Brookelyn on their property. The notice asked to pay attention to freshly turned earth, unusual smells, ditch lines and remote areas. Teresa and I were silent for a few moments after reading that; it was a harsh reminder of the worse case scenario for Brookelyn. We put the notice on the back page as well, and I hope police receive some kind of information about her. It's far better for the family to know what has happened to her, whatever that truth may be.

A family's worst nightmare is what we always say for a child who has gone missing. My husband told me it can also be called "ambiguous grief," since you don't even know what you're grieving for. Are you grieving for a child who is dead? Who has run away from you? Who is in pain? That lack of closure can keep the wound open, as you're not able to think, "it's done, it's over, there's no more I can do, moving on is the only choice."

Until I had children, I never understood how terrifying the whole business was. I remember being light-headed when I came home from the hospital with my oldest, and I couldn't stop touching him and looking at him. Even the brief thought of something happening to him could send me into a panic; like many parents, I would wake up often just to check his breathing, just to feel his chest moving. I don't think that impulse ever truly leaves us as parents, the need to lay our hands on our child's chest to make sure he or she is breathing, is alive.

Those who knew Brookelyn are most likely feeling that horror and panic in great measure right now, as the rest of us are touched by it in a much tinier way. We all want her to be safe, this child of our community, we want her to have the chance to grow up, the chance to experience what's out there. But if that's not possible, I desperately hope for the family, and all of us, that we can find out what happened to Brookelyn.

From our readers

Response to last week's articles

Dear Editor,

It is always a pleasure to find The Berea Citizen in my mailbox because of the excellent local coverage and especially the superb editing by Beth Myers. The June 27 issue is no exception with three very good articles, one by Teresa Scenters and two by Beth Myers. On the "Viewpoints" page both Ms. Scenters and Ms. Myers refer to the ever increasing economic equality in the US. It is a sad fact that right here in Berea we have an example of a business, Walmart, that pays most of its employees abominably low wages while each member of the Walton family is a multi-billionaire. Here is part of a report by Pat Garafalo that shows how bad the situation was already six years ago: "In 2007 the cumulative wealth of the Forbes 400 was $1.54 trillion or roughly the same amount of wealth held by the entire bottom fifty percent of American families. This is a stunning statistic to be sure. Upon closer inspection, the Forbes list reveals that six Waltons all children (one daughter-in-law) of Sam or James Bud Walton the founders of Walmart were on the list. The combined worth of the Walton six was $69.7 billion in 2007 which equated to the total wealth of the entire bottom thirty percent!"

The situation for many Walmart workers is so bad that they need to resort to Food Stamps and other government assistance to survive, which means that taxpayers end up indirectly financially supporting the very rich Walmart owners. The crux of the matter is that the employees at Walmart create a huge amount of wealth for the owners and other executives, but they are allowed to share only a tiny amount of the wealth they create. The Walmart family would still be very rich if they paid each employee $2 per hour more, and we would all be better off. Increasing the pay in this fashion could even be seen as a patriotic move because it would be better for the whole country.

Beth Myers also had an excellent article on the front page of the "Berea Living" section of the paper: "A Decade of Development for Exit 77." In this article she quotes Randy Stone, Berea City Administrator, as saying that the city would like to see "some upscale restaurants" come to Berea. But we obviously will not get such restaurants in Berea until we remove the liquor ban. I am a casual drinker of alcohol (often just one small drink with the evening meal) and like to have some on hand when guests come, but it makes me sad each time I need to give Richmond my business rather than Berea. My last trip was just a few days ago, and I spent $71.23 at Liquor World in Richmond. It seems so backward to me to keep this ban from the days of prohibition. I know that some folks oppose removing the ban on the basis of their Christian principles. I suggest that you think about the fact that Jesus considered wine such a natural part of his life that He had it served at the last supper and thought it was such an important part of a wedding ceremony that he performed one of his rather rare miracles by changing water into wine at Cana to make sure the hosts didn't run out of wine before the celebration ended.

Beware of Snakes When Hiking

The great outdoors

Clint Patterson,
College Forester

Snakes are not most people's favorite creatures. Their long, writhing, legless body and their forked tongue and icy stare imparts fear... or least a creepy feeling... to most people. Snakes may even invoke thoughts of the Biblical "serpent"; the very embodiment of evil. As if that isn't enough, then there's the fact that we live in an area where there are indeed poisonous snakes.

According to the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, there are four species of poisonous snakes in Kentucky: the copperhead, the western cottonmouth, timber rattlesnake, and western pygmy rattlesnake. The western cottonmouth and the western pygmy rattlesnake are found only in western Kentucky. Copperheads and timber rattlers are indeed found around this part of the state, as many people know.

When I first came to Berea, I was surprised at how many people expressed a real concern for poisonous snakes. It seemed like everyone had a story of killing a big rattlesnake, a relative being bitten, and so on. People would tell me they didn't go in the woods during the summer, "when the snakes are out", and some acted surprised that I didn't seem to be worried about encountering a snake in the woods. "Well", I'd tell them, "that's my job, to work out in the woods year around; I can't just stay out of the woods."

Because of all the concern about snakes, (and now bears, too) I do think about them more than I used to. I must just be lucky, but after three years of tromping around in the Berea College Forest, I still have not come across either a copperhead or a timber rattler; the two species of poisonous snakes found around Berea.

This morning, however, I received an email from a parent whose child was bit by a copperhead while hiking the Indian Fort trails. According to the parent, their seven year old accidentally placed her hand on the snake... which was lying on a rock near the trail. As she knocked the snake off the rock, it bit her. They rushed her to the hospital, and fortunately she was fine. Evidently, only one fang went in and little, if any, venom was injected.

According to North Carolina's Cooperative Extension Service's website, copperheads will immediately strike if they feel threatened. However, their initial strike is a warning and often contains little to no venom. If the snake does inject venom, the bite is rarely fatal. However, even a non-fatal bite is serious. It is extremely painful and may cause severe scarring and loss of use. Those who are bitten should seek medical attention as soon as possible.

The Berea College trail system is a great place to take the family and experience nature. Most of the time, visitors are not going to encounter a poisonous snake. However, please be aware that the possibility is very real. Adults should explain to children that snakes could be around, and they need to be cautious and aware of their surroundings. Yet, even if we do everything right, danger from snakes, cliffs, stinging insects, storms, and other aspects of nature can never be completely eliminated.

Next week, I'll get more into the specifics of the timber rattlesnake.

Berea History Question

Who were the people involved in Berea's "fruit jar" episode, what happened, and why was the dispute significant?

People may respond on Berea Citizen Facebook, email to bereacitizen@windstream.net, or call our office. Answer will appear next week.

Answer for history question from last week about what properties with a Berea address are listed on the National Register of Historic Places:

Lincoln Hall at Berea College, (1974) #74000892; Louisville and Nashville Railroad Passenger Depot (1975) #75000797; Indian Fort Mountain (1983) #83002816; Boone Tavern (1996) #95001527; Berea College Forest (2003) #02000343; and the Tate Building (444 Chestnut Street) (2006) #06000814. Will the Churchill Weavers building be the next addition to the list?

"Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not."

ner and volunteer firefighter for Red Lick, traveled down to Mali from March 4 to March 14 with a medical team; this was a delay from their original departure date, since they were waiting for the French to help stabilize the region.

"I was there to give medical care to the war refugees, mostly Christians," Everitt said.

Everitt traveled with a Kentucky Baptist Disaster Relief team. The team had to be careful not to call themselves a mission group, though there was prayer and Christian ministry that took place along with the medical assistance to the Africans. Everitt estimated that around 99 percent of the country is Islam, with one percent Christian. Around two-thirds of the African people they cared for in the refugee camps, however, were Christians.

The team saw approximately 900 people around Bamoko, and many of the people they cared for needed basic antibiotics. He saw several children whose main complaint was fever. Everitt saw malaria, typhoid, skin ulcers and some worms and parasites. The medical team partly traveled down there to assist the faith-based, non-governmental agency that was already serving the area. The agency had run out of supplies and had no funds, so the team brought boxes of antibiotics for their use. For the most part, Everitt said, the people were not malnourished, though vitamins were given out to all the children.

In the morning, the team members would get up, have a devotional, then would drive to various villages and other areas to give medical care in temperatures that hovered around 104 degrees.

The people they served would receive treatment, and then have prayer before receiving the medicines they needed.

"I was really there to help support the people already working in Mali," Everitt said, "to help support them in their work and to show good will."

Everitt said he met with no hostility while there, and that the average person could be a Christian without being persecuted. However, a very small percentage of radical Islamists existed in the country that people were wary of, especially the Africans who practiced Christianity. At the church service that Everitt was able to attend, there were people set up as guards to keep watch, and when they would give medical care in a village, they always had escape routes planned.

Though Everitt said he didn't feel a great deal of fear during the experience, it did strike him when they were stuck in traffic that, "you had no control if someone were to kidnap you." Kidnappings in Mali could be revenue-raising activities with high ransoms demanded, or they could be political.

When asked what the most powerful part of the experience was, Everitt said, "to basically see how Christians live in a majority Islam country, and to be with those people there who wanted to serve."

One missionary shared in a letter that one African said, "It would be hard for someone to follow Jesus here. They would be alone."

Everitt remembered one powerful conversion experience, where a woman became Christian because of the violence she kept seeing with Islamists. He quoted her as saying, "I have seen the true face of Islam. I am going to walk the road of Isa."

speed," Liam explained, "but for distance, endurance, and functionality."

They tried to time their days so that they passed through cities or towns in the midday, stopping there for supplies and a short break. Then they travelled on into the evening, and could usually make it out to the countryside for evening camp. Along the way, they encountered many instances of generosity, kindness, and trust.

Not everything was smooth sailing, though. Border crossings were difficult sometimes.

"In crossings, we felt like slaves to the system," Valentina said.

Because their passports were issued from different countries and they had no set itinerary for their journey, they twice were denied entry and had to change their route.

Both Liam and Valentina agree that their trip deepened their spiritual and philosophical beliefs in nonviolence and living in close relationship with the earth.

"On the trip, we became even more aware of the waste our societies generate so casually," said Liam.

"We have a sense of compassion and love for the world we live in. If you have that compassion, that love, you wouldn't want to toss out your litter or pollute the environment," explained Valentina. "For us, it's all tied in together. Love for God, for humanity, for nature. You can't separate them."

Liam and Valentina hope that the prints and slides they share next Thursday night will help set the stage for participants to imagine the sights, sounds, and people that they encountered on their journey. They will also be providing refreshments: Florabread and a traditional drink called Kvass.

Florabread is their specialty bread that they sell at the Farmers Market. It is a type of sourdough that uses no yeast but instead relies on a fermentation process for leavening. Known in Europe as Karavai, these large round loaves of bread follow a Slavic tradition in Eastern Europe that dates back a thousand years or more. They are elaborately decorated, and each decoration has symbolism. For example, sprigs of wheat symbolize prosperity, and poppy flowers symbolize a request for rain.

Kvass is also a long-lived tradition in Eastern Europe. It is refreshing fermented drink made from rye or wheat and is easily as popular as soft drinks in some countries.

Liam and Valentina's presentation is open to all ages, and there will be time for questions and conversation. For more information, visit the library's events calendar at www.madisonlibrary.org.

the old timbers as "stronger than steel."

Pastor Fulton, who has served at Glades Christian for the past 14 years, is proud of its heritage, "but we are not tradition-bound," he said. "We are like the old church that's new. We are pioneering the ancient truths of the Bible in today's world."

He said the church has participated in six mission trips in the past 12 years.

"On these missions, we try to leave things better than we found them," he said, "and we have good people who are willing to try new things."

Tudor, who has been collecting historical information about Glades Christian since 1993, learned from old records that the present structure is located only a few hundred yards from an earlier hewn log building built around 1825 that was known as Glades Meeting House (or Glade Meeting House). The Glades or the Glade Precinct, which pre-dates the City of Berea, was once a political boundary in the county.

The Glades Meeting House soon came to be known as the Glade Church with a series of faithful preachers serving over the years, some holding reformist views and some not. The Christian Church and two other denominations grew out of the reform movement that was ignited at the Cane Ridge Revival of 1801.

It was at the old Glade Church during 1853 that abolitionist preacher and reformer John G. Fee came from his home in northern Kentucky to preach his stirring Gospel message that also railed against the evils of slavery, calling for immediate freedom for all who were enslaved.

For a Homecoming celebration on Sept. 25, 2011, Tudor prepared a DVD titled "An Outline History of Glades Christian Church." Complete with an archival photo of the original log building as well as faces of preachers and congregations over the years, Tudor lovingly narrates the church's amazing history. He is also at work on a book detailing the history of the church.

Tudor recalls many happy times at the church when he was growing up and again when his four children were baptized and grew up participating in activities such as church plays at Christmas and Easter. His daughter Kathleen laughed to remember the puppet shows when she was young. She said her dad built the stage for the puppets and her mother, Creola, operated one of the puppets.

Tudor tells of generations of families that have been devoted members of Glades Christian. He mentions Frank and Loretta Gambill. Mr. Gambill at age 90 is the church's oldest male member. Mrs. Gambill is the daughter of the late Stella and Arthur "Babe" Johnson, very active and beloved members of the past.

Mrs. Gambill, now 78, said her mother took her to church when she was two-weeks old and she has been attending ever since.

"I accepted Christ during a revival when I was 11 years old," she said.

That was in 1947 when she and 32 others were baptized in Silver Creek down by the bridge on highway 1016.

"I served as church organist and pianist from the time I was 14 years old until about five years ago," she recalled. "And we used to have community singings where we would go round to other Christian churches in the area and sing together. We would host the singing every six months or so."

"In my dad's time, a lot of black people attended Glades Church," she said. She also said that the church building in her parents' time had two doors. "The women went in one door and the men went in the other. The women all sat on the left side and the men sat on the right. It's not that way anymore," she laughed.

Mrs. Gambill said that the oldest female member of the church is Virgie Wilson, age 97 or 98, "I love to go and visit her. She is the most upbeat person I know."

The pastor said he is pleased to serve as chaplain of the Berea Police Department.

"One of our biggest Sundays is Law Enforcement Appreciation Day held every year in May. We invite all area law enforcement and we honor them during a very special Sunday service. We also serve a big fellowship meal afterward. We like to say it's the safest Sunday of the year to be in church," he said.

Everyone is welcome to come and worship at Glades Christian, he said. Sunday school is at 9:30 a.m. every Sunday with morning worship at 10:30 a.m.

Wednesday at the church starts with a meal at 5:45 p.m. followed by Bible study and youth meeting at 6:45 p.m. The telephone number is 859-986-1421. For more information, visit the website at gladesc.org.

Campground, because of a man passed out inside a vehicle. The officers contacted the man, who was asleep inside the vehicle. He consented to a search, and officers located one xanax tablet and one suboxone strip.

Officers arrested Ricky Todd, 39, of Richmond and charged him with second degree possession of controlled substance, third degree possession of controlled substance and prescription of controlled substance not in proper container.

• On June 30, a traffic stop was conducted in the Walgreens parking lot. The driver had an outstanding warrant and was placed under arrest. Inside the vehicle, officers found a cigarette pack that contained one oxycodone tablet.

Officers arrested Marcia Clontz, 51, of Brodhead and charged her with first degree possession of controlled substance and prescription of controlled substance not in proper container.

Counterfeit Money

• On June 30, an employee at McDonald's on Glades

Road reported that she had received a counterfeit $20 bill. She said it had been passed to them in the drive through.

Public Intoxication Arrests

• On July 2, an officer saw two people walking on Glades Road, and they appeared to be intoxicated. When he contacted them, he noticed they both had constricted pupils and slurred speech. Officers arrested Christopher Bullock, 35, of Richmond and Jessica Bullock, 32, of Richmond. Both were charged with public intoxication.

Berea Craft Festival Coming Soon

"This year we have 126 registered artists coming, representing 14 different states and we're very excited" adds Tara, the 2013 coordinator.

There has also been an increase in the number of entertainers and food vendors, not to mention patrons.

Lila commented that, "Growth has much to do with the fact that we've been jurying in new artists and keeping it fresh, as well as celebrating the exhibitors that we've had for many years".

Tara relates part of the success of the Berea Craft Festival to the fact that they continue to maintain the staff that has been in place summer after summer.

"Our staff is fantastic!", she says, "they are seasoned, professional, informed and kind, and they are undoubtedly our best amenity".

Similarly, the success of the festival may have something to do with the entertainment value. In addition to wonderful music and dance, there is value in the educational demonstrations that the craftspeople perform for the public.

"It's simply not that often that folks today see a blacksmith pounding iron on an anvil to produce something of beauty and utility," relates Tara.

In addition to blacksmithing, there are demonstrations in chair and broom making, silver-smithing and ceramics. There is also a children's booth offering activities for kids of all ages.

Over the years both Berea College and the City of Berea have lent a helping hand and joined in.

"It really is Berea," says Tara with a smile. "It's what we like to do here".

The Berea Craft Festival will open Friday, July 12 from 10 a.m. - 6 p.m., and run through Sunday, July 14 until 5 p.m. Admission for adults are $6 for adults and $5 for seniors, with children under 12 are free. There is plenty of free parking and plenty of fun. For more information, visit www.bereacraftfestival.com or email bereacraftfestival@yahoo.com. In the meantime, make plans to come to the craft gathering of the year in Berea.

The upcoming weekend, July 12-14, marks the dates of the 32nd Annual Berea Craft Festival; one of the 100 best art and craft festivals in the nation as ranked by Sunshine Artist Magazine. The festival, which is held at beautiful Indian Fort Theatre in Berea, has been managed by a small handful of people for the entire 32 years of its existence. The original festival organizers were Richard Bellando, Rude Osolnik and Garry Barker. Although some of the players have changed over the years to include Joe Osolnik and Sandy Chowning; the festival continues to be embraced by members of the Bellando family. In the capable hands of craft educators and weavers (Churchill Weavers, Inc.), the festival thrives today under the co-directorship of Lila and Tara Bellando, mother and daughter. Additionally, Richard and son, James, are in on the act as consultants.

The Berea Craft Festival has grown during its 32 years.

"Originally there were between 50 and 60 exhibitor," remembers Richard.

Fibromyalgia & Syndrome X

Chiro Corner

Rick VanWinkle, D.C.

Patients with fibromyalgia are more likely to have syndrome X. When you consider fibromyalgia treatment, a global and holistic approach is needed. Doctors of Chiropractic can help to keep your spine pain to a minimum so that you can exercise and get strong again. While these aspects of health care are critical, you need to also consider good nutrition when taking on the challenge of fibromyalgia symptoms. There are several nutritional deficiencies that have been noted in this disease.

Studies have shown that when the blood is measured in both fibromyalgia and syndrome X patients, there are lower levels of antioxidants when compared to those without these diseases. Patients who had the greatest amounts of pain also had the lowest levels of antioxidants. Antioxidant blood levels are affected by how much stress you are under, and also your consumption of proper nutrients.

Most of us do not have large daily intakes of fruits or vegetables. Kale, broccoli, brussels sprouts, and bell peppers, need to take the place of soda and chips. Five daily servings at a minimum are needed. The western diet has far too much fat, especially saturated fat, too much meat, too little fiber and vegetables, and too many calories overall. A plant-based diet (e.g. vegan) has been shown in one study to lessen fibromyalgia symptoms. You may not have to go as far as vegan or vegetarian, but eating meat at every meal is the other extreme.

Supplementation of a balanced diet with vitamins C and E are recommended for most patients, to ensure adequate levels of antioxidants.

Maintaining a healthy body weight will also lower your oxidative stress and make you need less antioxidants to counter the excessive weight. Taking a holistic and natural approach by looking at spine structure, exercise and stretching, and diet will give you the best tools for fighting fibromyalgia without drugs and their untoward side effects.

Celebrating Healthy and Safe 4th of July

Tips for Safe Grilling & Eating Outdoors

Sheri Patterson/The Citizen

On Tuesday Brandon Embry grilled barbeque ribs outside for the Smokehouse Grill and Buffet off of Exit 77. They're available every day at the restaurant.

Submitted from the Madison County Health Department

Nothing says summer like the smoky flavor of foods cooked out on the grill, and the 4th of July is a perfect time for barbecuing, picnicking, or potlucking together with friends and family. Unfortunately, summer's warm temperatures give bacteria just the right environment to grow and contaminate the foods that we are looking forward to enjoying.

There are many different diseases that can be spread by food and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention estimate that as many as 1 in 6 individuals experience a foodborne illness every year. Nationally, the five most common foodborne diseases are Salmonella, Norovirus, Campylobacter, Clostridium perfringens, and Staphylococcus aureus. While many healthy adults who are exposed to foodborne diseases recover without medical care, all of these can cause serious illness and even death.

Fortunately, there are simple steps that we can take while grill-

Handling of Meat

- Clean – Wash hands and surfaces often, especially when handling raw meat.
- Cook – Cook hamburger to an internal temperature of 160° F, and chicken to 165° F.
- Separate –Keep raw meats and marinades away from cooked foods, salads, fruits, and vegetables.
- Chill – Return foods to the refrigerator or cooler within two hours, sooner if it's above 90° F outside.

Using Common Sense with Fireworks

As people get ready to set off fireworks on the 4th of July, it's important that a few common sense rules are followed, according to Ralph Apel, the spokesperson for the National Council on Fireworks Safety. People should remember that there were an estimated 9,600 fireworks related injuries during the Fourth of July season in 2011. Many of these injuries would not have occurred if the fireworks had been used under close adult supervision and if some basic safety steps had been taken.

The National Council on Fireworks Safety offers these common sense safety tips for using consumer fireworks in hopes that injuries to consumers can be greatly reduced this season:

- Know your fireworks; Read the warning labels and performance descriptions before igniting.
- Alcohol and fireworks do not mix. Save your alcohol for after the show.
- Parents and caretakers should always supervise teens if they are using fireworks.

Fireworks above were from the 2012 Fourth of July celebration at the Berea City Park, which the City of Berea sponsors.

Word From Berea Streets

"Why do you think we celebrate 4th of July?"

Allie Payne, 6, with sister Addie, 2, replied, "So we can see the fireworks."

Austin King, 6, said, "We are celebrating all the people in the world and celebrating freedom."

Logan Hensley, 9, said, "To celebrate Independence Day. We went to Blast in the Valley at Refro Valley and watched the fireworks."

Infection Prevention....It's In Your Hands!

Saint Joseph Berea encourages you to use good hand hygiene. It is the single most important step toward preventing spread of infection. Germs are spread through the air by coughs and sneezes, but hands play a big role. One of the most common ways to pick up germs is by touching something that is contaminated and then touching your nose, mouth or eyes. You can also spread germs to others by touching objects or people with your hands. To protect yourself from germs, thoroughly wash your hands or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer.

Critton, Rogers to Wed in New Orleans

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Barker of Richmond are pleased to announce the engagement of their daughter, Hunter Critton, to Joseph Andrew Rogers, son of Nancy Rogers and the late Mr. James Rogers of Corpus Christi, Texas.

Ms. Barker is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bert Barker of Berea and the late Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Hodges of Richmond. She attended Madison Southern, and graduated from Eastern Kentucky University with a bachelors of science and an associate degree in paramedicine. Currently Ms. Barker is working for Georgetown Scott County EMS as a paramedic, and part-time at the University of Kentucky Emergency Department as a nursing technician. She is also the Chapter Director for Delta Zeta Sorority at ECU.

Mr. Rogers is the grandson of Mrs. Dewey Peace Jr. of New Braunfels, Texas and the late Mr. J. Sankie Harlan Jr. of Bishop, Texas, and the late Mr. and Mrs. William Rogers of Waco, Texas. He attended high school at The Pendleton School at IMG Sports Academy in Bradenton, Fla., and graduated from ECU with a bachelors in occupational safety. Mr. Rogers is currently employed by Pepsi Cola Corporation.

water immediately after they have been in contact with raw meat or poultry. When grilling out, make sure to have supplies on hand to help keep hands, surfaces, and utensils clean.

Ground beef should be cooked to an internal temperature of 160°F, and chicken should be cooked to 165°F, in order to kill germs found in raw and undercooked meat.

"A good quality meat thermometer is a wise investment for people who like to grill out," says Dixon. "You can't tell by looking if the food is at the proper temperature."

"Cross-contamination between raw foods and cooked or ready to eat foods is a serious issue, and one of the easiest ways for bacteria to be spread," Dixon points out.

Always be careful about keeping raw meat separated from other foods, and put cooked meat on a clean platter, rather than back on the one that held the raw meat.

Keep cold foods cold and hot foods hot. When everyone is finished eating, refrigerate leftovers promptly. Dixon explains that "probably one of the best things you can do to ensure food safety is to limit the amount of time that foods are outside their safe temperature ranges." For example, "cool" foods like potato salads or dairy products should be kept below 41°F. When served at cookouts, they are frequently outside that temperature range. Don't let food sit out for more than two hours. On a hot day (90° F or higher), reduce this time to one hour. Don't eat or reserve foods that have been kept outside their safe temperature range.

Picnics, barbecues, and potlucks are great ways to celebrate Independence Day. Just don't forget that a few simple steps can help make sure that everyone stays healthy and safe. If you are interested in learning more about foodborne illnesses and how to prevent them, visit www.fightbac.org.

- Parents should not allow young children to handle or use fireworks.
- Fireworks should only be used outdoors.

- Always have water ready if shooting fireworks.
- Wear safety glasses whenever using fireworks.
- Never relight a "dud" firework. Wait 20 minutes and then soak it in a bucket of water.
- Soak spent fireworks with water before placing them

- in an outdoor garbage can.
- Never attempt to alter or modify consumer fireworks and use them only in the manner in which they were intended.

Report illegal explosives, like M-80s and quarter sticks, to the fire or police department.

Reflections

Roger Oliver and Helen Hovey received the top award in the Fancy Turnout, one of the categories at the 4th Annual Berea Kiwanis Horse Show on June 24, 1953. Roger drove Valentine's Little Flirt from Silver Creek Stables in Berea.

Kiwanis Horse Show

Over 2,000 people came to the 4th Annual Berea Kiwanis Horse Show at Berea Memorial Park on Wednesday, June 24, 1953. Kiwanis officials said the success of the horse show exceeded all expectations.

The winner of the five-gaited championship was Genie Douglas, owned by Cumberland Valley Stables and ridden by Shorty Teague.

Local winners included Douglas Oliver, in the child's riding class for eight and under, Roger Oliver and Helen Hovey for fancy pony turn-out, and Lloyd Lane for walking horse champion when he rode Midnite Southern Aire.

The show netted around $2,000 for the Berea Kiwanis Club; that money was donated to the improvement of the park.

City Hot Dog Roast

The city playground held a hot dog roast, and a total of 48 boys and girls came for the event. There were games of croquet, badminton and volleyball.

A new club was formed at the playground called the Merit Club. Boys and girls could belong by being of special service in the playground program. Betsy Wright and Claire

Ross were the mistresses of ceremonies on the mock radio program, which was a combination of park talent and announcements.

Sports Updates

Winchester won 11-4 against Berea in the Bluegrass League game at the college baseball diamond. Berea collected eight hits, but didn't look good in the field. Doug Lawhorn and Hugh Coy led at bat with two hits each.

The Ladies Tournament in golf completed its second round in early July in 1953. Jane Muncy defeated Anita Crawford 8 to 7, and Haley Robinson defeated Eleanor Gabbard 2 and 0 after coming from behind. Robinson was six down after the first nine and forced the decision to the 18th hole with the last hole played in a wet down-pour. Carolyn Adams took the match against Maureen Stoy 6 and 5.

Ella Marcum won over Charlene Stivers 9 and 8.

The article stated that the course was being visited more and more by Richmond players as word passed that the young Berea golf course was a "tough one."

School News

The Berea City Schools were opening for the 1953-54 school term on Sept. 8,

School districts in Madison County were to receive $271,489.34 from the school per capita fund that was distributed between the school districts in Kentucky. That sum represented $38.11 for each person between the ages of 6 and 18 years old living in the school district.

That per capita allocation did not take into consideration the school equalization fund, a fund of $5,573,000 which was based on need. Madison County received $183,826.07, Berea received $19,400.26, while Richmond received $68,263.01.

Homecoming Festival

The Lions Club was making plans for the Third Annual Berea Homecoming Festival on August 25 and 26. Clarence H. Wyatt, the general chairman of the homecoming activities, announced that there would be an amateur show, a street square dance, a parade, a community picnic, beauty contest and two big shows.

Folk musicians were coming to perform, including "Red" Foley, Ernie Lee Cornelison, Bradley Kincaid, Roland Gaines, Billy Keith Williams, the Coon Creek Gals, "Slim" Miller, Jimmie Skinner, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Haley, suave John Lair and others.

The festival took place at the Phelps Stokes Chapel auditorium. Different businesses cooperated with creating floats for the parade, including Hymer Motor Company, Parsons Electric, Baker and Baker, Stivers Brothers, Berea Rubber Company, K-Taxi, Farmer's Supply Incorporated, the Berea Golf Club and Brown's Paint Store.

The selection of the Beauty Queen was one of the big features of the 1953 Homecoming. The chosen Queen and her court reigned over the two-day program. The selection of the Queen would be made during the Talent Hunt show at Phelps Stokes Chapel on August 25. The Queen and her court was made up of the entire number of contestants

Janice Reesor won the honors of being the Queen the year before.

Guy Duerson was the parade committee and chairman.

More local news

The Berea Business and Professional Women's Club announced that Peggy Azbill and Mabel Lake were the recipient of the club's $50 scholarships. Both of them planned to attend Berea College. The club raised the money for the scholarships through a White Elephant and apron sale. They made the decision of who should get the scholarships by looking at industry, accomplishment and promise of success.

Mabel was the daughter of Mrs. Ella Lake and Peggy was the daughter of Mable Shockley.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hazlewood had a family reunion at their home on Big Hill Road. Those who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hazlewood, Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Hazlewood, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Hunt, Mr. and Mrs. Al Schelker and Donald Hazlewood, Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Emling, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Hazlewood, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hazlewood, Mrs. Bert Harris and children, Mrs. Tom Powell and daughter Mrs. David Neeley, and John Jones of Richmond.

The Silver Creek Home-makers met on July 2 with Mrs. Bradley Lake and Mrs. Gilbert Terrill as hostesses. Mrs. James Shearard called the meeting to order, and the 23rd Psalm was read by Mrs. Ed Closterman. There were three visitors present, Delbert Crutcher, Tommy Riddle and the assistant home agent. Members present were Mrs. Harry Hazelwood, Armon Neeley, Mrs. Arch Clark, Nan-nie Johnson, Mrs. Ed Closterman, Mrs. John Lewis, Mrs. James Shearard, Mrs. T. L. Johnson, Mrs. Robert Crutcher, Mrs. Letta Jasper, Mrs. Holt Harrison, Mrs. Sarah Terrill, Mrs. Bradley Lake, Mrs. Gilbert Terrill and Mrs. Dan Lengfellner.

The Christian Women's Fellowship had its general meeting at the Christian Church. Mrs. W. B. Jones, the president, conducted a short business meeting and then introduced Luther Ambrose, who showed slides and told of his life in Paraguay. Mrs. C. T. Herndon and Mrs. Robert Boggs served as hostesses.

A large group of men attended the Madison County Christian Men's Fellowship dinner at the Kirksville High School. The pastor, Rev. W. S. Teachey, was the pastor. Attending were C. T. Herndon, J. W. Herndon, Lester Cass, Alva Pullins, Sherman Robinson, Carl Ford, Ralph Wagers, Hugh Hahn, Pat Wear, George Moore, Jr., William Malicote, B. H. Hays, W. Foster Adams, G. P. Adams and Rev. James L. Burder.

Berea Craft Festival This Weekend

Last Hurrah for Bellandos; City To Take Over Next Year

Sheri Patterson/The Citizen

Lila Bellando holds up the traditional sign for the summer Berea Craft Festival, an event she has directed or assisted with for over three decades. This will be the last year for her intense involvement, however, since the City of Berea has agreed to take it over for next year.

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

While Tara Bellando Sorrentino has enjoyed the hustle and the bustle of getting the Berea Craft Festival ready for this weekend, she has felt sad in those moments when things have slowed down. "I've been getting kind of misty-eyed," she said, "when I thought about it." The "it" that Tara thought about was the fact that this would be the last Berea Craft Festival that she and her family will direct. For the last several years, Tara and her mother, Lila, have been the forces behind the summer festival. The City of Berea will be taking it over, starting next year.

now," Tara said. "It's been really, really special to work so closely with my mother all these years. The two of us will still be involved, but only in a cursory role."

This will be the 32nd year for the Berea Craft Festival; the original festival organizers were Richard Bellando, Rude Osolnik and Garry Barker. While the two Kentucky Guild fairs pull in vendors from their membership and guest artists from in or near Kentucky, the Berea Craft Festival solicits artists from all over the country. The Festival started with less than 60 artisans, and grew quickly to over 100. This year they will have 127 artists and craftspeople show-

Redistricting Conundrum A Headache for County Clerks

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

The inability of the Kentucky General Assembly to pass redistricting maps for Kentucky has caused headaches for county clerks all over Kentucky, and Madison County Clerk Kenny Barger is no exception. The redistricting process started in 2011, following new census numbers, and has been bogged down since then with court actions, political wrangling between the Senate and House, and two lawsuits. The most recent court decision from a three-judge panel set a Sept. 23 trial date for groups asking judges to assume the task of redrawing the legislative boundaries, which pushed Governor Steve Beshear to schedule an Aug. 19 special legislative session. While the three-judge panel acknowledged that the legislature has the primary responsibility for redrawing the boundaries, the writing stated that the courts would step up if legislative action failed. Barger and his staff, along with county clerks around Kentucky, could have found themselves in a very tight spot if the courts hadn't dictated to the legislature. If redrawing legislative boundaries had been left until the spring, like many in the General Assembly wanted, then there would have been little time for the county clerks to redraw their precinct maps for the May 2014 election. "You can't cross precinct lines," Barger stated, explaining that everyone within a single precinct has to be in the same representative district. Sometimes that results in precincts that have two or three

Barn Quilts Featured at Quilt Extravaganza

The sight of them, with their bright patches of color, brightens our day and reminds many of us of our Appalachian heritage. We see them as we drive down I-75 and the highways, and they surprise us on narrow back roads and byways. Barn Quilts, expressions of both personal history and cultural identity, can be seen throughout Madison County, most of Kentucky, and now in nearly every state in the U.S.

This year's Quilt Extravaganza will feature Barn Quilts during a luncheon presentation on Saturday, August 3, by nationally known writer Suzi Parron. Parron's book, Barn Quilts and the American Quilt Trail

New Liberty Baptist Started by Slaves

By Sandra Plant
Citizen Reporter

This is the fifth article in the historic church series.

New Liberty Baptist Church in the Bobtown community, now in its 157th year, is given credit for founding two more historic African American churches in the Berea area. Both Farristown Baptist and First Baptist in Middletown can trace their roots to New Liberty.

The story of New Liberty church began in 1856 when a group of slaves, with permission of their owners, began quietly holding worship services in their cabins or in vacant buildings. They persisted in their gatherings until 1866 when freedom came and their devotion attracted the attention of the Rev. Madison Campbell, himself a former slave from the Bobtown area. Although Rev. Campbell served as pastor of the church now known as First Baptist Church on Francis Street from 1858 to 1896, he had a missionary zeal for building up the African American congregations in the area. He rode out

BEREA POLICE REPORTS

Police Reports from 7/2/13 - 7/7/13

Thefts

• On July 2, officers were called to 752 Richmond Rd. at 8:12 a.m. because of a theft from a vehicle. The victim said his unlocked blue Dodge Caravan had been rummaged thru and $60 had been taken.

• On July 2 officers responded to 311 N. Main St. at 9:33 a.m. because of a theft that occurred overnight at the construction site. Numerous copper fittings and valves belonging to Frantz Inc. had been stolen. A Frantz employee said approximately 253 fittings and valves, valued at $3,657.35, had been stolen.

• On July 2, officers went to the Circle K at 300 Richmond Rd. at 2:25 p.m. because of a purse that had been taken from a vehicle at the gas pumps. The victim had gone inside to prepay, and while she was away from the vehicle, someone took her purse from the unlocked vehicle. The cloth purse with a multicolored cat print contained the victim's operator's license, medical cards, ATM cash card, $11 - $12 in cash, and a leather case containing six or seven diamond rings, valued at $5,600.

• On July 2, officers were called to 100 Miracle St. at 4:19 p.m. because of a theft from a vehicle. The victim said someone had gotten into his vehicle and removed a Jenson CD/DVD player, silver and black in color, a Garmin GPS with 4.5 inch screen, and two boxes of Impedance 9 mm ammunition. The total value of the stolen items was $600. Later this same date the Garmin GPS, valued at $150, was recovered on Burnell Dr. and returned to the victim.

Arrests

• On July 2, officers responded to The Tobacco Barn on Clay Dr. at 8:31 p.m. because of a woman that had been in a tanning bed for an hour. The clerk said he had been unable to make contact with her.

Officers knocked on the door and finally was able to get her to open the door. When she did, officers saw that her eyes were blood-shot, her pupils were constricted, and her speech was slurred. She consented to a search of her purse.

Tracey Short, 29, of 1015 Isaac Dr. in Richmond was charged with two counts of first degree possession of controlled substance, two counts of prescription controlled substance not in proper container, and public intoxication. She was lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

• On July 3, officers saw a vehicle parked at Indian Fort Theatre with the dome light on. People inside the vehicle consented to a search of the vehicle. A black container was found under the front passenger seat containing pills, burnt aluminum foil, and three syringes.

Tamara Douglas, 30, of 110 Concord Rd in Richmond and Franklin Sizemore, 35, of 6910 Battlefield Memorial Hwy were charged with three counts of third degree possession controlled substance, possession of drug paraphernalia, and possession of marijuana (Sizemore). Both were lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

• On July 5, officers conducted a traffic stop on Pirate Parkway at 5:11 p.m. on someone known to have a suspended operator's license. A search incident to arrest located a small cellophane baggie in the person's left front pocket containing pills. Located in the vehicle were three used needles and a crushed soda can with the bottom caked with green powdery residue.

James Day, 27, at 271 Level Green Rd. in Corbin was charged with operating on a suspended license, failure of owner to maintain required insurance, possessing license when privileges are revoked, first and third degree possession of controlled substance, and possession of drug paraphernalia. Day was lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

• On July 6, officers were called to Brooklyn Blvd. because of a fireworks complaint, and they figured out that the noise was coming from the rear of 1035 Brooklyn Blvd. #1. When officers approached the rear of the building, they saw a man firing a Glock pistol into the ground near the back porch.

Joe Duong, 25, of 517 Barberry Lane in Berea was charged with seven counts of first degree wanton endangerment and was lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

• On July 7, officers saw a vehicle turn around to avoid a Road Check at Richmond Road and the Berea Bypass. When officers stopped on the Berea

Bypass, the driver said he didn't want to go through the road check. He gave consent for the officers to search his vehicle, and a brown paper bag in the driver's front floorboard was found, containing a small amount of marijuana, rolling papers, lighter, and a glass marijuana pipe. Nicholas Pack, 18, was charged with possession of drug paraphernalia and possession of marijuana. He was lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

COUNTY

the program, which started in May 2012.

The home incarceration program served 386 people this past fiscal year. These inmates, who committed more minor crimes, elected to wear GPS bracelets limiting their mobility instead of staying in jail. Other inmates wear alcohol alert bracelets, and staff has assisted other counties with putting these alcohol alert bracelets on their inmates.

Albertson reported that the home incarceration program saved the county $321,889 by keeping criminals out of the Madison County Detention Center. While the bracelets themselves cost $66,359, the home incarceration inmates pay a fee to be on the program; fees collected from both the GPS and alcohol bracelets equaled $102,505.

"That doesn't take into account that we've had several people on longer that have had children, had to have surgeries or go to the doctor," Albertson said. "Those are expenses the jail has not incurred."

The home incarceration program was started in Madison County because of the overcrowding of the jail. With a capacity of a little over 200, the jail routinely houses over 270 prisoners at any one time.

When the overcrowding takes place, the Kentucky Department of Corrections will remove the state prisoners, the only prisoners that the county is reimbursed for.

"If you take what the jail has saved, what was brought back in, and then subtract my entire budget, you still save the county $231,894," Albertson said.

Magistrate Billy Ray Hughes said, "This program's been very successful. I appreciate what you're doing. It's something we should feel good about."

Madison County Judge Executive Kent Clark said that they were considering providing some incentives for the program, to increase the numbers served. They are also considering adding another full-time position to the program.

The fiscal court voted unanimously to enact the ordinance prohibiting solicitation from Madison County public right of way, streets or highways. The offense could carry a fine from $25 up to $500. The court heard the first reading of the solicitation ordinance at their last meeting. The ordinance was first discussed when Magistrate Roger Barger brought up the safety concerns about solicitation around Exit 95 off of Interstate 75.

"Roger and I have gotten quite a few complaints," Clark said, "and we need to get this going."

Off-Duty Deputy Shot At by Berea Neighbor

A off-duty Madison County Deputy was shot at on Sunday night, by a neighbor on Country Estates Road.

Kentucky State Police responded to the call at 9 p.m., when Deputy Stacey Cummins called in a shots fired complaint. Teddy Wagers, 64, allegedly fired one shot at his neighbor, Cummins, but the deputy did not return fire.

When state troopers arrived at the scene, they talked to Cummins and were able to get him to hand over his firearm.

Wagers was arrested and charged with first degree wanton endangerment, and lodged in the Madison County Detention Center.

The Terrace names May 2013 Employee of The Month

The Terrace Nursing and Rehabilitation Facility proudly presents our Employee of the Month for May, Pam Harding. Pam has worked at The Terrace for over six years as an LPN. Pam came to The Terrace with many years of experience in both Long Term Care and Adult Day Care. Pam has a son and a daughter, Timothy and Kayla. In her spare time Pam enjoys socializing with friends, swimming and enjoying the outdoors.

Pam stated that she is very proud of the fact that she gets to form positive relationships with the residents and their families. Pam also stated the families are so appreciative for the care she provides and are always happy to see her. Her love for her job and our residents is very apparent.

Pam is very caring and attentive to our residents and has a smile that lights up the room. When asked what it meant to be named employee of the month Pam replied, "It felt good to be recognized and made me very happy". Pam also stated that she felt that The Terrace was exactly the place where she belongs. The Terrace would like to thank Pam for the exceptional job she does! Congratulations for being our employee of the month for May!

If Bitten By A Rattlesnake . . .

The timber rattlesnake, Crotalus horridus, is Kentucky's largest venomous snake. The heavy-bodied snake may reach lengths of five feet or more. However, it is not the snake's size which worries most people; it is its poisonous bite. Fortunately, timber rattlesnakes are generally quite docile, and typically will only bite as a last resort. The snakes are more likely to retreat into cover, or rely on their camouflage and try to stay hidden. Generally, it is only if a timber rattler is cornered or provoked that it will strike. Even then, a timber rattler usually gives a warning, by rattling their distinctive tail. If that doesn't work, it will sometimes first do a "bluff strike" with its mouth closed. Even if a human is bitten, nearly half of all timber rattlesnake bites to humans are "dry bites" which contain little to no venom.

Statistics show that most rattlesnake bites to humans occur when a person is trying to catch or kill a rattlesnake. If you do encounter a rattlesnake, the best thing to do is to leave it alone. However, accidents do happen, and people do sometimes get bit by rattlesnakes. So, if this happens, what should you do?

I have heard of and seen for sale various "rattlesnake bite kits" which are supposed to suction out the venom from a snake bite. However, the verdict is still out on whether these kits do any good, and most medical advice articles discourage their use. Certainly, no one should attempt to cut the wound and suck out the poison like some of those old Westerns show.

According to the Minnesota Department of Natural Resources website, which proved to be the most comprehensive source of information I could find on timber rattlesnake bites, if you are bitten by a rattlesnake you should move away from the snake, remain calm, remove any constricting jewelry, and place the bitten limb in a comfortable position at a level slightly lower than your heart. Note the time the bite occurred.

If you have a pen or something to mark on your skin with, outline the red, swollen area around the bite. This will help medical personnel evaluate the rate of swelling, and thus the severity of the bite. Also, lightly wrap a wide constriction band around the bitten limb just above the bite to help slow the rate of spread of the venom.

If you are at a location not accessible by vehicle, you should walk out slowly and calmly to try to keep your heart rate down. If you have a cell phone, of course, you should call for help. However, try to get to a location where you can be easily found and picked up. Your main objective is to get to a hospital which carries anti-venom as soon as possible; preferably in less than an hour. If possible, call ahead to alert them you are coming, and verify that they have CroFab Antivenom.

Hopefully, no one will get bit by a rattlesnake around here. If you do, probably the most difficult thing will be to stay calm. Perhaps it will help to keep in mind that St. Joseph Berea Hospital here in Berea does keep antivenom on hand.

Scenter Stage
Teresa Scenters,
Publisher

The wisdom of Solomon sure would come in handy in this business, unfortunately I don't possess it. Which leaves me in the position of doing the best I can to make good decisions as far as this newspaper is concerned.

A few weeks ago, after much discussion on the pros and cons, Beth and I made the call to include mug shots of those people arrested by the Berea Police along with their crime report. Several of our sister papers in southeastern Kentucky have been printing photos along with the jail logs for a while now and have gotten very positive feedback from their readers.

Surprise, surprise, Berea being like nowhere else (and I'm mostly in favor of that) we have had mixed reviews.

Right and wrong, black and white, rigid stances are pretty easy for me. As long as it's in theory. It's when the human equation rears its head that I get all wishy washy and start considering the gray areas.

I was raised with the notion of "paying the piper," "sleeping in the bed you made" and all those other self responsible warnings. But with a distraught mother who is mortified at the thought of what it will do to her children to see her mug shot in the newspaper stands in my office near tears, you can imagine that it's a little harder to be unwavering.

So the discussion process has begun again and both Editor and Publisher have deemed it a good idea to get reader input before continuing with pictorial accounts of who has been arrested in Berea in the past week.

We posted the question on facebook yesterday and have gotten many, many responses already. At last count 48% were in favor of printing mugs, 38% were against and 14% didn't care one way or the other.

We'd like to hear from those of you who don't facebook, drop us a note and let us know what you think.

To Mug or Not to Mug

Letters from Berea
Beth Myers
Editor

Many of you have probably noticed that in the past two issues of the newspaper, we printed mug shots of the people arrested by the Berea Police Department. We received feedback from people, some of whom appreciated that we did it and others that had some serious concerns about the practice. How such mug shots affected the family and friends of the arrested person was mentioned.

This week we decided to not print the mug shots, and to solicit more feedback from the community. We posted the question on Facebook, and now, of course, I'm writing a column that will hopefully generate more feedback.

The Facebook response was pretty quick -- within the first hour, we received a lot of comments. This is clearly an issue which brings up questions and thoughts about the role of a newspaper in the community, privacy versus public right-to-know, and even the difference between photos and text.

It does feel different to have someone's mug shot in the paper instead of just their name. Partly that idea of, "a picture's worth a thousand words." But I think we could all agree that our face put somewhere feels much more personal than just our name; more of "you" is out there. We have always printed the arrest records, but when we added the photo, it seems to have increased the sense of privacy violation.

There is also the concern of printing arrests before a conviction, and that's certainly a valid concern. The problem is that tracking convictions through the courts is much more complicated and time consuming, and arrests are a matter of public record, which anyone can find online. Though people are innocent until proven guilty, they are not also nameless or faceless until that point. Arrests have always been a part of the information that media divulges to the public -- even court cases have become media entertainment.

The fact is, there is a curiosity to know what's going on with people, especially to know who may be in trouble. The difficulty with a newspaper is we are not only a public service for the community, we are also a business that lives and dies by our advertising and our newspaper sales. So when considering what to print, I am constantly thinking about three things -- what's important, what sells, and what's the position of integrity. So the answer for me of whether to print the mug shots or not can get sticky, because they may help sell newspapers, and some may argue that it's important, but is it a position of integrity? Are we tip-toeing into sensationalism?

We are one of the few newspapers in the state that does not print crime on the front page unless it affects the public to a great degree, or is a very serious crime. And I'm glad of that, as is Teresa, but we're aware that we may sell fewer newspaper because of it. Crime and mayhem can sell more when it comes to the impulse buy.

I appreciate the responses we've gotten. On this particular issue, it felt important that we test the public sentiment. At the paper in Barbourville, a similar question generated over 80 percent in favor of printing the mug shots. It's going to be a much more even result here, so the decision-making will be interesting, as usual.

Guess that's how we know we're in Berea. And honestly, I'm not sure I'd want it any other way.

Berea History Question for the Week

What streets in Berea are named for people who had an important role in Berea prior to 1900?

Answer for history question from last week about Berea's "fruit jar" episode -- who was involved, what happened, and why was it significant:

The nickname "fruit jar" high was formerly used to refer to the brick school located at the corner of Chestnut and Boone Streets. The name derived from an incident that occurred at the end of a turbulent school board meeting on August 20, 1926 when Robert Lamb, chairman of the board, threw a quart glass jar partly filled with water and hit Dr. W.G. Best in the head, knocking him unconscious and sending him to the Robinson Hospital.

The board had voted in June to establish a high school in Berea, refusing a directive from the State Board to merge with the Madison County system. Lamb and Angel opposed having a high school in Berea because it would increase taxes. Benton Fielder, W.G. Best and J.S. Wagers, the other board members, had voted for the high school.

The assault erupted at the close of the August meeting because the majority of the board had approved hiring a teacher for the new school. Lamb, as chairman, had refused to recognize the motion, but the majority of the board elected a vice-chairman who allowed the vote. When the meeting adjourned, Lamb, in frustration, threw the fruit jar. Benton Fielder was the father of Mary K. Kaufman; W.G. Best was the father of Ellen Evans; and James S. Wagers was the grandfather of Billy Wagers.

The incident is significant to Berea history because it was an early challenge in the continuing battle to preserve the existence of the Berea Independent School District and to keep from merging with the Madison County system.

"Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not."

to Bobtown in 1866 determined to obtain land and build a church home for these faithful people. He frequently preached there and is said to have baptized 125 church members.

The first structure was built in 1866 on an acre of ground across the lane from the present church. Rev. Campbell wrote in his autobiography that the land was purchased from a Mr. Ben Terrill for the sum of $108 dollars. The present white frame structure, built in 1899, has been remodeled and upgraded over the years and is now comfortable and functional building with a fully equipped dining room and kitchen addition.

The Rev. Alfonso Kenney Jr. has ministered at New Liberty for the past seven years.

"We welcome everybody to come to New Liberty," he said.

On July 27, the youth will participate in a Children's Bash with an outing to King's Island. The next day, on Sunday, July 28, the church observes Children's Day where the youth take over the whole church as ushers, choir members, serve as deacons and "do everything but the preaching," Rev. Kenney said.

The two most senior members of the congregation are Mrs. Roberta Cornelison and her best friend, Mrs. Susie Gasset, both age 91. The two were baptized together in a pond across the lane when both were age 10. The group of about 15 also included the boys they would later marry, the late Sam Cornelison and the late Virgil Gasset, who, as adults, served the church in many ways, including as deacons.

Mrs. Cornelison reflects on the baptism as if it were yesterday. She said she made her profession of faith during a revival at New Liberty. For the baptism, "we wore little outing gowns that our Mothers made for us. The boys wore long white shirts. We would sing all the way from the church to the pond. We marched two by two. When we got to the water, we sang, 'Wade in the Water.'"

The old hymn that was always sung at baptisms was called, "Come Sit Down at the Welcome Table." Mrs. Gasset sings a few bars, "I'm going down to the river of Jordan, I'm going down to the big baptizing..."

"Now we have a baptistry in the church," she said.

Reverals were always a big event in the community with people crowding the church and standing in the church yard if there wasn't room inside.

"Our pastor always got the preacher for the revival and the preacher would stay in homes of the members for the two weeks of the revival," said Mrs. Cornelison.

Back in those days, people didn't have any money so the preacher was paid in food.

"We called it a showering and everybody brought what they had, like corn and tomatoes from their gardens. If you had any meat, you would slice some off and bring it.

People even brought live chickens," she said. "During the showering, we would be singing 'There Shall be Showers of Blessings' and the preacher would be smiling at all the good food."

Lois Blythe Tevis, the church pianist and active member, enjoyed music from an early age. A highlight of her early years in the church was singings by the Big Four Quartet that came from Dayton, Ohio. "I looked forward to the Big Four." She was especially fond of George Cecil who sang bass. "I loved to hear that deep, powerful voice."

The church bell that sits on a post in the church yard has an important place in the life of the church. Mrs. Tevis said, "It is not New Liberty without the bell." The bell would be rung to call people to worship on Sunday and also for funerals.

Mrs. Cornelison recalls, in years past, "We would hear that bell and we would take off in a horse and buggy going to church."

Mrs. Gasset's family walked down Bobtown Road to get to church, back in the days when it was a dirt road, she said.

New Liberty Baptist Church is located at 245 Smith Lane in the Bobtown community of Berea. The phone number is 859-986-2910. Sunday school starts at 10 a.m. with Sunday worship at 11 a.m. Wednesday Bible study and prayer meeting start at 6 p.m. The Deacon on call this week is Jimmy Tevis at 859-986-3594.

Movement, explores the growing Quilt Trail movement in twenty-five states and Canada. Her chapter on Kentucky includes Don Hart and Sarah Hart, who were instrumental in the beginnings of the Barn Quilt Trail Committee in Madison County and continue to coordinate the program today.

Perron will speak on the growing quilt trail movement during the noon luncheon at the Berea College Alumni Building, at the corner of Scaffold Cane Road and Prospect Street. Her talk includes slides of barn quilts in the U.S. and Canada. Tickets are $30 and must be ordered by July 26. Visit the Arts Council at www.bereaartscouncil.org or call 985-9317 for information on registration.

As part of the event, participants will have the opportunity to help paint an 8X8 barn quilt square. The Churchill Company, owned by the West family, sponsored the barn quilt portion of the Extravaganza. The finished quilt square will be displayed on the Churchill property (formerly Churchill Weavers).

Sherba Wilson has been helping organize the Barn Quilts portion of the Extravaganza. Born in Ashland, Sherba lived in many places as an adult. When she and her husband returned to the states after four years in England, they knew they wanted to live in Kentucky. "I had always wanted to live in Berea," Sherba said, "ever since I first came to a Guild fair in the 1960's."

As they were house hunting, Sherba kept noticing barn quilts. She eventually connected with Madison County Cooperative Extension Service and began volunteering as a painter with the Barn Quilt Trail Committee. "It's perfect for me, because I love quilts but am not a quilter," she said.

The Committee is supported by various organizations in the community who provided seed money and ongoing support for the Quilt Trail project. Madison County Cooperative Extension Service is a key supporter of the Committee.

Sherba explained the decision to include barn quilts in this year's event. "There are many people like me, who love quilts but aren't quilters," she said. "Because there is always interest in barn quilts during the annual Extravaganza, we decided to feature them this year."

The American Quilt Trail Project began in Ohio in 2001, when Donna Sue Groves decided to honor her mother's quilting tradition by painting a quilt square on their barn. The movement has grown into an international project. In North America, the American Quilt Trail project is now in forty-three states and two Canadian provinces. In Madison County, there are over eighty barn quilts on display. The programs are very cooperative. They share ideas between counties, even between states. For example, barn quilt groups from Ohio and Tennessee helped support the initial movement to start Barn Quilt Trails in Kentucky in 2006.

"When you think about quilting bringing people together, like it did in the old days, this project really embodies that concept," said Sherba. "People are coming together to create something that will endure for a long time in their communities."

Sherba encourages anyone who is interested in barn quilts to come enjoy Parron's talk and help paint the Churchill quilt square. "It's a great opportunity for people to hear a really dynamic person share her experience," she said.

An updated Madison County Barn Quilt Trail brochure will be ready in time for the Quilt Extravaganza. The brochure includes a map and key for all eighty quilts in Madison County. Brochures are also available at the Welcome Center, the Artisan Center, and the Arts Council on Main Street.

Anyone can request a barn quilt for their barn or structure. The cost is $300, and families can help pick the designs and colors for the square. Contact the Cooperative Extension Service at 623-4072 for more information about Madison County's Quilt Trail.

This year's Quilt Extravaganza is Friday and Saturday, August 2nd and 3rd. With exhibits of over two hundred quilts, luncheons on both Friday and Saturday, the "Quilt Doctor" Carol Ann White, and a vendors market, there's something for anyone with a penchant for quilts. Visit the Arts Council at www.bereaartscouncil.org or call 985-9317 for more information.

- a situation that currently exists in Madison County. Three of the Madison County precincts have less than 10 voters.

At this time, Madison County has 56 precincts, according to the legislative boundaries that were approved after the 2000 census. Barger and his staff would like to get the number of precincts down to the high 40s, to save the taxpayers money. Every precinct costs the county money in an election, because of staffing, space and equipment.

When the Madison County Board of Elections drew up a precinct boundary map for Kentucky last year, they did decrease the precinct numbers to the high 40s. This precinct map was based on the redrawn district maps that had been approved in 2012. Those maps were all frozen, however, when the Kentucky Supreme Court determined that in this legislative redrawing, the districts exhibited "unacceptable population disparities" and divided too many counties - both violations of the Kentucky Constitution.

"It can seem overly litigious," Barger said, "but it keeps our government balanced."

He pointed out that if a legislative area in northern Kentucky had 20,000 people, and one in eastern Kentucky had 3,000, the representation of the people would be far from equal.

According to how the Kentucky General Assembly chooses to resolve the problems with their prior maps will determine what type of task Barger and the Madison County Board of Elections has in front of them. They will have to review their former precinct map, and make sure that precinct lines aren't crossed with the new legislative boundaries while also trying to decrease the overall number of precincts. Barger doubts that they will still be able to keep the precincts within the high 40s, but hopes to eliminate the precincts that have less than a handful of voters. He will try to respect existing communities like Kirksville, and not split their area into different precincts, and rename consolidated districts so people still know where to vote.

"We're going to have some precincts with really long names," Barger said wryly, stating that if they combined two precincts, they would keep both names in the title.

Barger states that whether the number of federal prisoners are calculated within the legislative districts will be a big "x" factor for the upcoming special session. Since federal prisoners can't vote, some argue that they should not be included in the numbers. However, the census numbers used are based on population, not voters; children are calculated within legislative districts, for example. If federal prisoners are included, that could keep Madison County from being as cut up with its boundaries, since the counties both east and west would not have to pull as many voters from Madison to get their own numbers up.

With all the unknowns in this redistricting process, one thing is clear; Barger and his staff will be facing a Sisyphean task setting the precinct boundaries in time for the May election.

FAIR

ing and selling their work at Indian Fort Theater.

The Bellandos started talking with personnel from the City of Berea a few years ago, checking to see if they were interested in taking over the fair. They were also talking to other people they knew, but it was difficult to find the right people who were willing to take on such a project. The Festival takes a substantial time commitment, which can make it difficult for people working full-time, and it requires knowledge both of event planning and quality craftsmanship.

This past year, Tara said, when they asked City Administrator Randy Stone if he was interested in the City taking over the Festival, he immediately said yes. They had approached the Berea Tourism Commission a few years ago, but at the time there was no interest by that group in taking on the fair.

"I have felt strongly that we try to retain this fair because of its economic impact on the city," Stone said, who stated that the City of Berea would be partnering with the Tourism Department to direct the crafts fair.

The Berea Crafts Festival has always financially sustained itself, though it has never made a profit. That was partly because the Bellandos kept the booth fees very low.

"Loyalty was a huge factor for us, in keeping the craft fair going after we decided to quit directing it," Tara said. "There are artisans who have been with us for 25 to 30 years. If you look around, you'll see that our booth fees are at the bottom as far as craft fairs."

With Churchill Weavers closing years ago, and many artisans moving out or away from town, many feel that the crafts fairs in Berea are the last link to its title of, "Arts and Crafts Capital of Kentucky."

Keeping the summer fair going is not only valuable for economic development for the town, both Bellando and Stone agree, but also in keeping Berea connected to its arts and crafts past.

"Because of Churchill being gone, and Old Town having it rough, the programs that celebrate art and craft are the Berea Craft Festival, The Kentucky Guild and the Learnshops. This is the way we really earn any type of designation that comes close to "craft capital of Kentucky". The Artisan Center is beautiful and celebrates Kentucky craft and that's terrific. I think they work hard to integrate in Berea. I just wish it was downtown," Tara said.

In addition to the artisans, the fair this weekend will also have musical guests such as Mitch Barrett, Carla Gover and the Rovin' Ramblers, and Peace Pie Jazz. There will be the usual fair fare of funnel cakes, roasted corn, and blooming onions, but there will also be the higher quality food that people have come to expect at the Berea Craft Festival. A North Carolina vendor will once again offer both veggie and beef or chicken kabobs, as well as homemade ice cream sandwiches with flavors such as peach and blackberry; and an old Athenian Grill vendor will be returning with Greek food such as gyros.

This Friday and Saturday, July 12 and 13, the craft fair will be open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., and on Sunday, July 14, it will be open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission for adults is $6 and $5 for seniors, with children under 12 getting in free.

Rose Barn, Berea Tourism and Berea Arts Council Bring "When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet"

Rose Barn Theater, Berea Tourism, and the Berea Arts Council will present four free performances of When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet, described as, a delightful comedy with a bite of satire. Performances will be daily from July 18 - 21, to coincide with Berea's annual Festival of Learnshops. The Festival of Learnshops, from July 13 - 29, provides opportunities for lifelong learning in all the arts, so a taste of Shakespeare should be a welcome addition.

The concept of a "learnshop" is that it is just like a workshop, but more fun.

When Shakespeare's Ladies Meet is also a fun and playful exploration of Shakespeare's heroines. The summary of the plot is that Juliet has just fallen for Romeo. Six of the Bard's most noted heroines descend on the Capulet household to offer their oh-so-helpful opinions on men, love, men, marriage, men and more men.

Portia's advice (a character from The Merchant of Venice) is very legal; Katherine from Taming of the Shrew suggests that the ways of a shrew bring results; Desdemona of Othello tells how Othello smothers her with affection; Ophelia from Hamlet is mad as a March hare; and Cleopatra from Antony and Cleopatra imparts her methods with the stalwart Anthony. In the end, they all learn that the innocent Juliet can give them all lessons in love, despite her extreme youth.

All performances will be at the Berea Arts Council, located at 116 Main Street in Berea; they can be contacted at 859-985-9317. The website is www.bereaartscouncil.org

The performance schedule is Thursday, July 18 from 7 - 8 p.m., Friday, July 19 from 7 - 8 p.m., Saturday, July 20 from 7 - 8 p.m. and Sunday, July 21 from 1 - 2 p.m.

July Workshops at Fiber Frenzy

Fiber Frenzy will be participating in the Festival of Learnshops this month with the following three workshops. Learnshop registration is handled by Berea Tourism. Call 986-2540 or visit the website, www.berea.com.

Knit Knowledge: learn to knit in three easy lessons from July 16, 18, and 20 from 4 - 5 p.m. $75 includes materials to make a lovely, light, lacey scarf.

Learn to Crochet: master all the basic stitches in two sessions, from July 20 and 21, 2 - 3:30 p.m. $75 includes materials to make a scalloped scarf.

Great Socks: learn to make beautiful socks that fit your feet on double point needles (must know how to knit, purl, increase and decrease) $75 includes materials.

Register for the following classes in July as normal, by calling or emailing Fiber Frenzy at 985-8891 or fiberfrenzy.org@gmail.com.

Needle Felting Camp for Young Artists July 23 - 24

10 a.m. to 12 noon
Craft camp for ages 10 + allows creative spirits to flourish, making magnets, barrettes, and felted mice. $35 for the 2-day felting camp, which includes all supplies.

Learn to Read Charts and Make Lace Scarf/Shawl

Thursday, July 11
2 - 4 p.m.

Bring a lace scarf/

shawl, and do it the easy way by reading and understanding charts. This class will explore the ins and outs of charts and begin the scarf together. Amy Cowen, an artist visiting from San Francisco for the month of July, will be teaching this class.

The BLT (Basic Lace Triangle) scarf/shawl is designed for a beginner. It uses a simple repeating pattern and is great for learning how to use a chart. There are no difficult stitches used. The pattern is fully written and charted. The BLT can be made to any size with any weight yarn. The pattern works well with self-striping yarn, multi-color yarn, or solids, and uses about 200 yards of sock weight yarn on size 6 circular needles, 24" - 40" length.

It measures about 36 inches across the top edge and is the perfect size to tuck the ends in under the jacket. Class fee is $25. Materials are not provided but can be purchased prior to class.

Entrelac Headband - Introduction to Entrelac July 19, 2 - 4 pm

This headband is an introduction to entrelac and by the time it is mastered, the student is finished. Poems Silk will be used because variegated fibers pop in entrelac, creating a look of complicated colorwork without changing yarn. Size 7 or 8 straight and double point needles required; bring your own or purchase prior to class. If the needle of choice is a circular, that should work just fine.

Class fee of $35 includes one skein of Poems Silk yarn. This class will also be taught by Amy Cowen, the visiting artist from San Francisco, here only for the month of July.

Drop Spindle Spinning

Saturday, July 20

12 - 2 p.m.
Learn to spin own yarn from roving using the drop spindle created by Jessica Faulhauber. Class fee is $40. Spindle and roving are not included, but can be purchased at Fiber Frenzy prior to class.

Schedule Begin to Knit, Begin to Crochet, Knit Socks, etc.

People at Fiber Frenzy are always willing to schedule personalized instruction time for whatever skill someone wants to master. The charge is $20 an hour for lessons; personal times can be scheduled on Tuesdays, Thursdays, Fridays, or Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Call for Favorite Quilts for Community Show

The Berea Arts Council invites all quilters and owners of quilts to show their favorite quilts during the upcoming 2013 Quilt Extravaganza's Community Quilt Show at Berea Community School. These may be quilts you have made yourself or quilts by a family member or friend. There is no charge to participate in this non-juried exhibit; quilts may not have been shown in this event in the past five years and one quilt per person may be submitted. Space is limited and the first quilts submitted will be exhibited.

Quilts may be traditional or contemporary in style, old or new, pieced or appliquéd, hand or machine quilted, full size, wall hangings or baby quilts.

Quilts must be delivered clean, and wrapped securely in a protective covering.

The Community Quilt Show is open to the public during Quilt Extravaganza on Friday, August 2 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday, August 3 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Visitors will receive a ballot to vote on their favorite quilt in the Community Show. The winning owner of the Viewer's Choice will receive $200.

Quilt Extravaganza features traditional and contemporary quilt exhibits (including challenges), an opportunity to participate in painting a barn quilt and quilt a baby quilt. A luncheon and presentation of "Barn Quilts & the American Quilt Trail Movement" will be held at noon on Saturday, August 3, and tickets are available on line at www.bereaARTScouncil.org or by calling 859-985-9317. Tickets are $30.

Quilts will be accepted at the Berea Arts Council at 116 Main Street on Thursday, July 25 from 1 p.m. until 5 p.m. on Friday, July 26 from 11 a.m. until 6 p.m., and Saturday July 27 from 10 a.m. until 1 p.m.

Pre-registration is not required, but participants can obtain registration forms in advance by visiting the website at www.bereaARTScouncil.org or contacting the Berea Arts Council at 859-985-9317. Additional information about other Quilt Extravaganza events is also available on the website.

Beth Myers/The Citizen

As she works on the rugs she has been learning how to make this past year, Mary Kay Gilbertson talks about her first early experiments with fabric, when she created outfits for her dachshund when she was young, such as hats, sweaters and booties. Mary Kay started weaving just eight or nine years ago, something she had wanted to do ever since moving to Kentucky. Above she is using Sally Wilkerson's old loom, that she received from the estate.

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

When Mary Kay Gilbertson came to Kentucky as a CAP volunteer 30 years ago, she visited a woman in Mt. Vernon who had a loom. As she watched her weave, she was instantly intrigued.

"I thought, someday I would love to be able to do that," Mary Kay said.

But through the years, daily life took up her time, with three boys to raise and work. Then around eight years ago, she decided it was time to learn weaving. A friend gave her a loom she wasn't using anymore, and Mary Kay rented a video from the library, "Learning to Weave."

"I would watch it upstairs, and then pause the video and run down to the basement and try something. Then I would run up again and play more, before running back downstairs," Mary Kay said laughing.

She quickly picked it up, and just over a year later she was producing shawls and scarves that were impressing the experts in the field.

"She learned weaving so fast," Laura Robie marveled, a long-time member of the Berea Weavers and Fiber Guild, where Mary Kay has been a member for many years.

A few of her pieces are for sale at the Fireside Gallery, and she has donated several to auctions raising funds for the Berea Arts Council and SaraCare. Because of working full-time, she isn't able to commit as much time to her art, but she finds that to be a positive thing.

"It's been a good, slow process of learning," Mary Kay said. "It's very therapeutic for me to weave. But it is hard for me to be as productive as I'd like to be."

When Mary Kay was growing up near Pittsburgh, she was very artsy, creating full outfits for her dachshund, who was her "first model, and the best dressed dog in the neighborhood." But she became intimidated in public school with the other children in art class. She also ran into some problems with her teachers.

"I was always getting into trouble, because I wouldn't follow the instructions," she said, grinning. "I was always seeing ways to do something different, or jazz it up a little bit."

But now she can thoroughly enjoy exploring that creative, experimental side of herself, with different dyes and fabrics, and products.

"I'm just enjoying the process right now," Mary Kay said. "It's fun to donate to good causes and make things for my family and friends."

Word From Berea Streets

"Do you like to swim? Where is your favorite place to go?"

Ethan Gadd, 13, replied, "No, I don't like swimming. I'd rather ride dirt bikes. When I go to the Berea Pool, I like jumping from the diving board, hanging with my friends and seeing girls."

Julia King, 7, replied, "Yes, I like to swim. I never took lessons, but I wear a life jacket. Have you ever heard of the Berea pool? I like that place."

Stephanie Coffey, 4, with her sister Brittney Coffey, 2, of Berea replied, "Yes, we like swimming and are gonna go to the Berea Pool tomorrow."

NAMI Family to Family Education Program

NAMI (National Alliance on Mental Illness) will be sponsoring the NAMI Family-to-Family Education Program specifically for families of people diagnosed with a serious mental illness. The 12 sessions will start in the fall at a location to be determined between Berea and Winchester. The course will cover information about schizophrenia, the mood disorders (bipolar disorder and major depression), panic disorder, obsessive-compulsive disorder, borderline personality disorder and post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD). There will also be discussions about coping skills such as handling crisis and relapse, as well as basic information about medications, listening and communication techniques, problem-solving skills, recovery and rehabilitation, and self-care around worry and stress. The curriculum has been written by an experienced family member mental health professional; the course will be taught by Michele McBrayer and Brenda Harrington. Harrington and McBrayer are family member volunteers of NAMI of Madison and Clark who have taken intensive training as course instructors. "This course is a wonderful experience," Michele said. "It balances basic psycho-education and skill training with emotional support, self-care and empowerment. We hope families with relatives who have a serious mental illness will take advantage of this unique opportunity." The course is designed specifically for parents, siblings, spouses, teenage and adult sons and daughters, partners and significant others who are caregivers of people with severe and persistent mental illness. The course is not appropriate for individuals who themselves have a major mental illness. The NAMI Family-to-Family Education course is free. For more information or to register, call Michele McBrayer at 985-5628.

I'm Alive... because someone like YOU joined the Kentucky Organ Donor Registry
At 3 months old, Katie's parents noticed the whites of her eyes were turning yellow. Katie would not survive without a liver transplant. She's alive because someone said "yes" to organ donation. Now, Katie is a 10-year-old honor student who plays basketball and goes camping.
Please give $1.00 to promote organ donation when you renew your driver's license.

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES JULY 1963

Reflections

The Berea Peace Corps Senegal volunteers went on a series of four hikes early in July of 1963, for the Forest Living area of their training. Dean Kenneth Thompson, the project director, said it was because their training session in the rain forest of Puerto Rico would be so short. The volunteers came from Maine, New York, Texas and Minnesota.

The Berea City Council voted to extend the available time on the "red" meters on Main Street and Chestnut Street from 30 minutes to one hour. These meters were at the business sections. A nickel will still give 30 minutes, while two nickels or a dime would give an hour. The salary for the police just pro tem was set at $5 per day.

The South Berea Homemakers met on June 24, with Mrs. Mary Joyce and Miss Edith Beatty for a pot-luck supper.

The executive board and chairperson of committees and Professional Women's Club met on June 24 at the home of Mrs. Ruth Davis.

Mrs. David Neeley on Route 2 announced the engagement of her daughter, Ruth Neeley White to Virgil K. Jones of Sandalwood Drive.

From June to July, children at Berea Memorial Park were busy painting and shellacking. They entered their best work in a contest, and the plaques were given to the winners.

The outline of a physical fitness program for the Berea City Schools was presented to the board of education by Mrs. John Chrisman. It involved physical fitness exercises, testing and evaluation. Only students from seventh and tenth grades were currently receiving physical education. One board member said that the problem was not to "sell the board on the need for this program, but to figure out how to work it into the schedule."

Twelve Berea 4-H Club members attended camp at Bigham 4-H Club Camp near Willisburg from July 1 - 5. These members were Jim and Rita Davis, Jim and Nancy Bowman, Ann Barton, Abby Scruggs, Terry and George Wyatt, Jane Britton, Jennifer Upton and Linda Owens. George Wyatt was chosen for achievement at 4-H camp, the honor for outstanding citizenship. Arlene Kindel, Sharon Osolnik and Barbara Pelton left for Camp Merrowvista in New Hampshire for a four-week camping trip.

Gravett's Grocery on Chestnut Street was sold by Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Gravett to Mr. and Mrs. Michael Grych. They planned to change the name to Mike's Grocery. The Gravetts ran the grocery store for 18 years.

Berea had a large delegation of Boy Scouts attending the camp at McKee Scout Reservation near Mt. Sterling. Ersal Kindel was the Scoutmaster of Troop 51. The boys attending were James Durham, Pat Wear, Danny Newman, Bruce Hovey, Larry Giffin, Donald Blackburn, Robert Hutchins, Kris Kogerma, Viktor Kogerma, Howard Strickler, Donnie Shupe, Damon Farmer, Roger Dean Wilson, Dale Deaton, Bill Weir, Lee Hisle, Wynn Blanton, Bill Buda, Bobby Grossman and David Gailley.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. (Bill) Jones who lived on Parkway, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary in July 1963. Their son, Bill Jones attended the barbecue held at the home of Mrs. Peggy Muntz. There were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Muntz, Jack Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Gene B. Jones and children, Margaret Josephine, Betty and Bobby, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill F. Jones and children, Kathy, Paul and Carl.

There were 65 students who signed up for the Friends of Strings Summer Music Camp that was held from July 21 - 27. The camp was held at the Berea College campus; the camp was in its third season this year. Arthur Dondero and Rolf Hovey served as the co-directors this year. The students primarily came from the Berea area, but others came from Cincinnati, Louisville and other nearby cities.

The summer staff included Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dondero, Mrs. Stephen Kiteck, Mrs. T. M. Wright, Mrs. Richard Drake and Mrs. Marjorie Flint, all of Berea.

Twenty-three Berea area men completed the civil defense rescue training course held from July 8 - 12 under the sponsorship of the American Legion. They were John Wray, Bill Hamblen, J. W. Stephenson, Roscoe Buckland, James Hall, John Hayes, Leonard Johnson, Owen Ramsey, Leonard Hale, Eugene Rhodus, Roy Pingleton, Bobby Abrams, Bernard Dalton, Bill Dooley, Bill Bowling, Jimmy Harris, Oscar Fain, Eli Chasteen, Clara Hill, Eddie Hamm, Phillip Singleton, John D. Lake and Bob Venable.

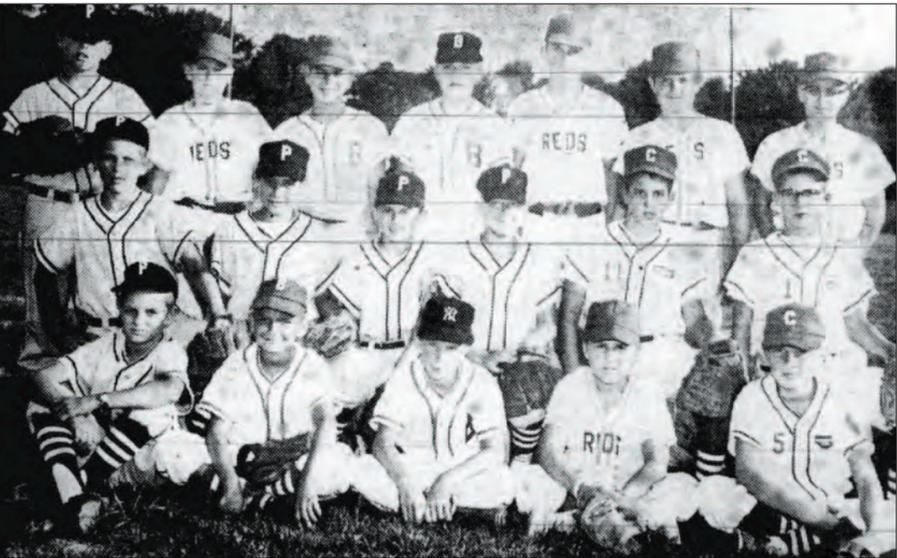

The Berea Homecoming Festival, sponsored by the Berea Lions Club, brought a musical group, the Fabulous Dawns to perform. They were a feature attraction of the All-Star show on August 3. The lead singer and bass guitarist of the group was a well-known Lad recording artist from Berea, Lonnie Anderkin. He had his start in the entertainment field in Berea by appearing on the Berea Homecoming Talent Show. The other members of the group were Tommy Elliot, Gary Sullins and Phil Maffey. They had gone on a coast-to-coast promotional tour.

There were 45 children and as many pets at the 1963 Pet Show at the Berea City Park. The entrants included cats, dogs, fish, a half-grown chicken, parakeet, turtle, chameleon, horse and pony.

A blue ribbon and game was awarded to each winner.

These Berea Little League All-Stars, above, were going to play Midway in the first game of the East Frankfort Kiwanis Invitational Baseball Tournament in late July 1963. They were going to stay at the Franklin Count High School. From left, in the front row, were Darrell Whittemore, James H. Johnson, Mario Mierres, Larry Duerson and Michell Romans; in the second row were Jerry Combs, Donnie Shouse, Jackie Baker, Mike Baugh, Jim Moore and Ronnie Duerson; in the third row were Larry Combs, Rusty Brandenburg, Brent Roark, Larry French, Clark Simmons, Paul Reynolds and Kenny Duerson. Absent was Larry Helton.

As the Kentucky Artisan Center (KAC) lights the 10 candles on its birthday cake this week, many in Berea still marvel that such an organization came to be, starting as it did with a group of people meeting in Ken Gastineau's house, trying to figure out how to bring tourists back to Berea after the tornado swept through in 1996.

"The thing that people miss is that it was a grass-roots project," Cheryl Stone said, one of the main forces behind the development of KAC. "Mayor Kerby had put together a committee, to figure out how to bring tourists back. Berea had gotten a lot of publicity about the effects of the 1996 tornado, and the thought was, 'why would anyone want to come here?'"

Berea City Administrator Randy Stone stated that the Kentucky Artisan Center has been the strength of Berea during the downturn in the economy when so many businesses have struggled.

"I think it's one of the greatest treasures in Berea," Randy said. "We're very fortunate to have gotten it built through the surplus money from the state."

Construction of the 20,000 square foot facility was started in 2000, and the official ribbon cutting ceremony took place on July 30, 2003. Currently,

The Kentucky Artisan Center in Berea had its ribbon cutting on July 30, 2003, and is celebrating their 10th anniversary this weekend with different events and activities. Everything is ten percent off until Sunday. Though there have been grumblings throughout the years, leaders in the arts and crafts field in Berea report that the Artisan Center has been positive for the town of Berea.

Quilt Show to be Bigger & Better

By Christie Green
Citizen Reporter

"This year's show is bigger and better than ever," said Barbara Prairie as we started our interview about Berea Arts Council's ninth annual Quilt Extravaganza.

Prairie, a Berea Arts Council Board member and two-time chair of the Quilt Extravaganza, invites quilt enthusiasts to show their favorite quilts during this year's Community Quilt Show on Friday and Saturday, August 2 and 3. The quilts will be on display in the gym at Berea Community School.

There is no charge to enter quilts in this non-juried exhibit. Because of the popularity of the Community Quilt Show, individual submissions

Despite Roof Delays, Berea Community to Start on Time

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Berea Community will still start school on time on August 8, despite a few setbacks this summer with construction of the new roof on the older parts of the building. At the Berea School Board meeting on Monday, Superintendent Mike Hogg informed board members that the construction company doesn't expect to be done until the third week of September.

"I've gotten a lot of questions on, 'are we going to start on time?'" Hogg said.

When the construction company got down to the concrete deck of the roof, they realized that it had never been treated with primer. The primer was necessary to keep the tar paper from sticking to the concrete. Even when the old roof had been constructed in the 1960s, treating with primer was industry standard.

The construction workers are having to scrape the tar paper off by hand,

The City of Berea, in partnership with Berea College, has been working with consultants on a signage project for the town. City Tries Out Signs, Council Approves Feasibility Study for Retirement Home

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

City council got bogged down in a discussion about a retirement home in Berea on Tuesday night, when Berea Mayor Steve Connelly asked city council members if they wished to pay Spectrum Consultants for a feasibility study. A community group had asked city council several weeks ago to consider funding a study to see if it was realistic to think a retirement home would work in Berea.

Several years ago, the United Church Homes had purchased a large piece of land on Slate Lick Road with the intention of building one of their retirement homes, but delayed the project when the economy tanked. Connelly stated that he talked to one of the executives at United Church Homes, and they said they still weren't in a position to build a retirement home in Berea.

For $5,000, Spectrum proposed doing a type of pre-analysis of Berea, a four-week study to see if there was suitable interest and a good market for a retirement home. If the pre-analysis was encouraging, then council members could get a full-blown study for $7,000 more, but there would be no obligation to go further.

The city council ended up approving the $5,000 for Spectrum to do the pre-analysis, though it was evident that there were still many questions and concerns regarding the city's involvement. Some of the members' ambivalence was reflected in the motion that council member Chester Powell made, when he said chuckling, "I'd like to make a motion

Hitachi Plans for the Future

The Hitachi Plant General Manager Tsugumichi Uhara knows Berea well. He first moved to the community in 1994, raised his family here, and then left in 2002. He returned as plant general manager last October, and was able to live in the same house as last time.

"I like Berea," Mr. Uhara said. "I like to contribute to the city." Mr. Uhara stated that when he first came to Berea, there were 400 employees at Hitachi; now there are 1,200. He doesn't see more expansion in the KAC has art from over 700 artisans from over 100 counties in Kentucky.

Though it started as a local idea and project, the Kentucky legislature got into the act later on and appropriated funds for the construction. The current Authority Board has 13 people on it, and six of those come from Berea and seven from state departments.

"This type of center is unusual in the nation," Victoria Faoro said, the executive director of the Artisan Center, who came on board when the building was still being constructed. "Usually places have a market/travel focus or a marketing/artisan focus. We do both."

Faoro, a visual artist herself, has been delighted with how the Kentucky Artisan Center has developed in the past ten years.

"It's really exceeded my expectations," Faoro said. "It helps the artists with their desire to sell their product, and it serves as a showplace for the state. I think it's been very successful. The timing was right."

With their sales, the Kentucky Artisan Center generates over 70 percent of their revenue, but the other part comes from the state. They are an agency of the State of Kentucky, and subject to all the regulations and oversight of such a status. The other stakeholder, however, that they are determined to serve is the community of Berea, by sending tourists further into town who stop at the Center.

Throughout the years, there have been complaints that the Artisan Center has pulled tourists away from Berea and the working artists in the community. Arts and crafts leaders in Berea, however, do not think there has been a negative impact.

"It's been a positive thing," Jeannette Rowlett said, the executive director of the Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsmen. "We've got artists from the western part of the state, and this allows them to sell their work here. The people who are just stopping at the Artisan Center to get a drink, they're not going to come in Berea anyway. I'd rather have it here, than not have it here."

Charles Arnold, the chair of the Berea Tourism Commission, said, "In my opinion, it's been good for the community. As the Arts and Crafts Capital of Kentucky, it gives us credibility. It gives these artists a chance to showcase their work, and one of our goals is when people stop at the Artisan Center, we want to get them into Berea."

Drawing people into town from the Kentucky Artisan Center has been a goal of Bereans involved in economic development, as well as the staff at the Artisan Center. The Berea Tourism Commission has had a staff person there since the beginning, to serve as a guide and advocate, and the trolley runs on Saturdays to transport people into town. Belle Jackson, director of the Tourism Department, said they still need to learn more about how to use the Artisan Center.

"It's a great tool. We're still trying to figure out how to best utilize it," Jackson said. "As the economy changes, as the travel patterns change, we need to learn. We certainly need some signage on the road, and I would love to cooperate with some advertising with them [KAC] but I know they're limited with that because of the state."

Cheryl Stone took the job as project manager at the ECU Center for Economic Development, Entrepreneurship and Technology right before discussions started in 1996 about bringing tourists back to Berea. She was able to use the resources at the University to help the project along, with professors and marketing classes doing studies in the community and developing plans. Cheryl eventually talked to Harry Moberly, the chairman of the Kentucky House of Representatives budget appropriations committee at the time, and then Berea College President Larry Shinn, and brought both of them on board as well. Things kept moving after that, with a three-day design shellac for the involved stakeholders, tons of local public meetings, and a commitment by the governor to fund the project with state surplus money. Berea College sold the land at Exit 77 for the KAC facility.

"So many people came and talked at the public meetings," Cheryl remembered. "They were expressing their views from the very beginning."

Seeing the Kentucky Artisan Center still thriving after ten years has been incredibly gratifying for Cheryl, who lived and breathed this project for over five years.

"It was such a phenomenal experience, that I couldn't begin to even express it," she said.

"It's been very exciting," Faoro said. "I think Berea and the Kentucky Artisan Center are poised for some very exciting decades ahead."

The Kentucky Artisan Center will be celebrating their 10th anniversary this weekend, with different events and activities. There is a ten percent discount at the Center for ten days, from July 12 - 21. There will also be demonstrations by different Kentucky artists from Friday to Sunday, July 19 - 21, and special "visits" by such characters as Henry Clay and Colonel Harland Sanders. Check their website, www.kentuckyartisancenter.ky.gov or the ad on page A3 for a full schedule.

this year are limited to items that have not been displayed during the past five shows.

Berea Arts Council director Gwen Childs explained the change, "This area has a rich history of quilting. We hope to see an even broader display of quilts, both old and new this year."

Quilts will be accepted at the Berea Arts Council on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, July 25 - 27. More information about submissions for the Community Quilt Show is available online at www.bereaartscouncil.org/quilt-extravaganza.

A unique feature of this year's Community Quilt Show are five special collections that will be on display.

Now 90 years old and well-known for her unique work, Virginia Piland creates her own designs and hand quilts art messages. Her story quilts hang on permanent display in Saint Joseph Berea Hospital, at the Berea Branch of Madison County Public Library, and in Berea College's Hutchins Library. Over 20 of Piland's quilts will be on display at the show.

Another collection features quilts made by Ozella Gilbert, a well-known local quilter who began creating traditional quilts in the 1970s and expanded into small art quilts, which she embellished with various needlework techniques.

Antique quilts from the collection of Judy Rector will also be on display. Rector, a local expert in quilt history, will be featured in article three of the Quilt Extravaganza series.

The last two special collections are made up of "Challenge" quilts from the Berea Depot Quilters and the Kentucky Heritage Quilt Society, and the themes are "Road Trip" and "A New Box of Crayons," respectively. Challenges are competitions for quilters to create blocks or quilts using a specified fabric, pattern, or theme.

"It can be as simple as having everyone use the same fabric," explained Prairie, "or it can be complex with very specific instructions. Then it's left to the quilter to interpret the challenge in their own way."

Always a popular feature of the Community Quilt Show, the Vendors Market will be returning this year. Quilt-themed jewelry, sewing and quilting machines, baskets, and embroidered children's clothing are some of the items to be found at the market.

"There's something for everyone," said Prairie.

Some vendors will be doing demonstrations of their techniques or products, and there will be a food vendor as well, with salads, sandwiches, and baked goods.

Another perennial feature of the Quilt Extravaganza is the support of non-profit groups with quilt raffles. This year, three non-profits will be raffling quilts as fundraisers: The Kentucky Heritage Quilt Society, a statewide organization that promotes understanding, appreciation, and knowledge of the art and craft of quilt making; Quilts of Valor, a foundation that makes quilts for veterans; and Kitty, Inc, a cat rescue organization.

The Quilt Artist of Kentucky exhibit "Quilts With a Kick" is on display in the Berea Arts Council gallery through August 24. There will be a reception at the gallery on Friday, August 2, from 6 - 8 p.m.

General admission to the Community Quilt Show is $3. Tickets for the Barn Quilt luncheon with Suzi Parron on Saturday, August 3 are $30. Information about other quilt exhibits in the community, including those at Union Church and First Christian Church, as well as info about barn quilts in Madison and surrounding counties, will be available at the Community Quilt Show.

For more information about the ninth annual Quilt Extravaganza, including registration and quilt submission forms, visit www.bereaartscouncil.org

BEREA POLICE REPORTS

Police Reports from 7/7/13 - 7/12/13

Thefts

• On July 7, a resident from the 100 block of Glades Street reported money taken from inside their vehicle overnight. The estimated loss was $7.

• On July 7, officers were called to OH Ky Campground because of a theft. The victim reported a handgun stolen from inside his vehicle overnight. The estimated loss was $350.

Drug Arrests

• On July 9, officers were called to the area of Prospect Street because of a reckless driver. The vehicle was located, and a traffic stop was conducted at Shell on Prospect Street. The driver of the vehicle had a suspended driver's license; he gave consent to search his vehicle.

Officers located a small amount of marijuana inside the vehicle, and a plastic tube with a white powder inside. Officers arrested Daniel Crowe, 35, of Tyner and charged him with operating on a suspended license, first degree possession of controlled substance, possession of drug paraphernalia, and possession of marijuana.

During the traffic stop, another vehicle pulled into the parking lot and the driver motioned for one of the officers. He said he was a friend of Crowe and wanted to know why he was being stopped.

Officers checked the driver's license of this second driver and discovered that his license was suspended. The driver gave consent to search his vehicle and officers located a grinder and a marijuana cigarette.

Officers arrested Charles Turner, 42, of McKee and charged him with operating on a suspended license, possession of marijuana, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

• On July 12, officers were called out to Walmart because of a shoplifter. The suspected shoplifter left the area in a vehicle, which was located in the parking lot of Taco Bell. Inside of this vehicle, officers located a pill bottle with another person's name on it.

The prescription was for clonazepam and had been filled the day before. Only 70 of the pills were left in the bottle, and there was one oxycodone pill inside the bottle as well. The prescription was for the subject's girlfriend and he had picked it up while she was in jail.

After investigating, officers learned that the subject had stolen the oxy-codone tablet. Officers arrested Adam Sniff, 27, of Berea and charged him with operating a motor vehicle under the influence -- first offense (DUI), first degree possession of controlled substance, third degree trafficking controlled substance, prescription of controlled substance not in proper container, and theft of controlled substance.

He was also charged with several traffic offenses.

Alcohol Arrest

• On July 9, officers were called to the Berea Community School parking lot because of an intoxicated man. He was located lying in the bed of a pickup truck; he stated he had been drinking and he smelled like alcohol.

Officers arrested Timmy Brock, 27, of Richmond and charged him with alcohol intoxication in a public place.

DUI Arrest

• On July 11, a traffic stop was conducted on Prospect Street for a minor traffic violation. The driver had glassy bloodshot eyes and officers determined that he was under the influence.

Officers arrested Brandon Grant, 29, of Berea and charged him with operating a motor vehicle under the influence -- first offense (DUI). He was also charged with several traffic offenses.

Shoplifting Arrest

• On July 11, officers were called to Walmart because of a shoplifter. Store employees said a woman had entered the store and hid several items in her purse. She then purchased some items, but made no attempt to purchase the concealed items.

Officers arrested Tonya Dezarus, 39, of Berea and charged her with theft by unlawful taking shoplifting.

Property Damage

• On July 11, a resident from the 200 block of Marcellus Drive reported that his vehicle door had been scratched. He said it appeared that someone attempted to get inside the vehicle.

The Terrace Nursing and Rehabilitation Facility Names Nurse Aide of the Year

June 16th through the 22nd was recognized as National Nurse Aide Week. In recognition of this week The Terrace annually names a Nurse Aide of the Year with honors and privileges given. This year we proudly present our nurse aide of the year, SRNA, Lindsey Martin. Lindsey has worked at The Terrace for five years. Before coming to The Terrace to work, Lindsey worked at the YMCA. Lindsey's supervisor, Patricia Dean, RN, Director of Nursing, stated, "Lindsey is a long term employee who began her time here training as a Nurse Aide." Patricia also added that she is a delight to work with as well as helpful to the other staff and our residents love her.

Lindsey states that in her spare time she enjoys spending it with her boyfriend and her family. Lindsey also states that she enjoys spending her time outdoors working in the garden and walking on the farm.

When Lindsey was asked what it meant to her to be named Nurse Aide of The Year, she had this to say, "To be able to come to work each day and put a smile on our residents faces makes me smile and feel appreciated as well." Lindsey states that while going to school to get her BSN RN she discovered her true love of caring for the elderly. Lindsey also states that being named Nurse Aide of The Year puts a smile on her face as well as a feeling of appreciation for all her hard work. We congratulate you for being named our Nurse Aide of the Year and appreciate all that you do for our residents. Your smile is also beautiful and enjoyed by our residents and other employees.

Some are all about re-defining marriage, while others like the original definition. To say that there is a bit of rancor involved in this debate is a bit of an understatement.

What are at stake, on the one side, are basic human rights. Shouldn't we all, regardless of which sex we like, be fairly entitled to marry whomever we choose? On the other side are those concerned that, in this matter, church and state collide in what for them is a theological edict issued by the state. The state now demands that the church's enduring biblical, orthodox definition of marriage now be considered hateful error and a civil rights violation to boot.

What to do? What to do?

Among the staunch defenders of the biblical definition are sometimes apoplectic screamers bewailing the deterioration of family, the erosion of values, and the demise of holy union. The relative merits of their arguments aside, it is no secret that the Institution of Marriage has already been fairly trashed by the church. If the Bible has told us that marriage is between one man and one woman¹; that God hates divorce²; and that married union was God's intention to display His own exclusive love relationship with us³—how is it that one can be living with spouse number four and still feel qualified to speak of the "sanctity of marriage"? What has become of God's mysterious design? Some in the church seem willing to treat homosexual candidates for marriage as sub-human, while turning a blind eye to their own hypocrisies. It may be objected that, "grace covers a multitude of sin." Sure does. But wouldn't that grace argument go for the other side as well? Since faithful marriage doesn't fare much better IN the church than out of it, we must have decided to keep on sinning "so that grace may abound."

Among the proponents of equality and fairness are some equally indignant pugilists who have no problem with bringing down that wall of separation and never eating chicken sandwiches again. Many of these are at least as militant as their counterparts. They insist that a marriage between a husband and a husband, or a wife and another wife who calls herself a husband, is a basic civil right and a necessary function of equality. While there can be no doubt that laws and courts can grant them what they want, their union will never be equal enough for their love to produce children. Apart from adoption, any children will necessarily be brokered with only one of them and an absentee parent. Funny how it all comes back to that "one man and one woman," thing.

So there you have it through my wacky little grid. At least we can all come together and agree on one thing. Most of you on either side of this divisive issue can, at a bare minimum, agree to hate me for writing this piece. Isn't unity great?

Thank you and have a pleasant day.

Doctor was Treated Unfairly

Dear Editor,

My doctor was told to lock his doors last Friday. Not by the D.E.A. or another law enforcement agency. But by some board of directors somewhere. I don't claim to know a lot about it. He was too distraught to talk much.

Let me give you some facts and details that I know. My doctor is a suboxone doctor. It takes months of training to be a suboxone doctor. Suboxone is a medication to help people fight addiction. I personally got addicted to prescription pain medication because I was prescribed it for a herniated disc and a rotator cuff injury due to a fall (this is all documented). I was on the medication for two years, and I could not stop them. I told my doctor and he took me off them. Pretty soon I was buying them illegally. I was trapped, trying to do the right thing and trying to not be in withdrawal.

About five months ago, I heard about my doctor's clinic right here in Berea. He was more than a doctor to us (I speak for several); he didn't just write you a prescription and show you the door. No, the average visit was over an hour. He wanted to know what you were doing with your life. How you were improving your quality of life. He encouraged me to go back to school. He told me I needed to get closer to God! He wanted me to get a computer and take some free classes. He was excellent in this job if you want my humble opinion. I had heard the rumors and some may be true. But he is without sin, cast the first stone.

Some readers have already formed an opinion of me and the other patients. But he was helping us. I haven't even thought of taking a pain pill since the day I walked into his office over five months ago. I'm disabled now, but I worked 23 years in area factories, and five in a restaurant.

Don't we deserve an explanation from someone? Maybe this board that shut him down. I'm sorry I just don't understand. How was this a bad thing for Berea? If that's what they were thinking, the man was trying hard to help us. The closest clinic I can find now is in Corbin. Sixty miles away and I don't drive due to an anxiety issue. And we weren't even allowed an emergency prescription to take until we found another clinic or something. It seems nobody cared what happened to us.

Thank you doctor, and God bless.

Thank You for Supporting Plant Fundraiser

Dear Editor,

I would like to acknowledge all of the supporters of the fundraiser I held this past weekend for MonarchWatch.org. It was a great success and thanks to many generous people, I'll have a nice sized check to write to the organization.

Thanks to the staff of the Berea Citizen for their great article on our certified butterfly garden and designing a nice ad for the native plant sale/fundraiser. I received a lot of customers because of that. Thanks to Tyler Horrar for designing, and typing, all of the free informational handouts, etc. Sherba Nelson and Alan Grainger came without being asked at 6:30 a.m. Friday morning and set up a pop-up tent for me. So very kind. Thanks so much to the Lexington Wild Ones members who made the trek to Berea to support the cause. I was very pleased with the number of Bereans who bought plants and are interested in helping native pollinators.

And, forever, thanks to Jean Horrar, my mother, who took a little city girl by the hand many years ago and said, "Let's take a nature walk." You planted a seed that has given me a lifetime of joy.

We have marginalized, fragmented or destroyed so much of our fellow creatures' native habitats. We can do better. Native butterfly gardening is a big step and one we all can support. Thanks for everyone's help.

Berea Police Officers Should be Reprimanded

Dear Editor,

I am glad that you are giving the citizens of Berea a chance to state their feelings on the controversial subject of using pics in the paper of people arrested. It certainly hit home to me and my family this month as my granddaughter was falsely arrested on a trumped up charge of fourth degree assault/domestic violence on June 27. Seeing her name and the contrived charges printed in the paper was bad enough, but to have seen her picture also would have been devastating to all of us.

What happened was an off-duty officer observed my granddaughter and her husband in their car, having a family argument which involved no one but themselves. There was no public display of any kind, yet that officer took it upon himself to call the Berea police. When they came about 20 minutes later to the business where they had stopped to visit her father, they arrested my granddaughter in spite of the fact that her husband begged them not to since there was no reason. Yet she was arrested on the word of an off-duty officer who was no longer on the scene. The arresting officer did not see or hear anything from the couple in question; the complaint was just heresay, which I understand does not stand up in court.

My granddaughter has suffered a terrible injustice, has been traumatized by being arrested in public and incarcerated in the county jail when she needed to be home with her two-year-old son and husband. If off-duty officers can go around looking into people's windows to determine if domestic abuse is ongoing, then the citizens of Berea need to be warned to keep their shades down and all car windows shaded. I was of the opinion that "domestic violence" was when two or more people were physically beating up on each other, and at least one of them wanted an officer called to end the violence. What a couple says and does in the privacy of their home or automobile is no one else's business, unless it escalates into violence and one of them calls for help. This has never happened in my granddaughter's situation; she is a kind, hardworking, honest, and helpful person who is a responsible, loving mother to her son and husband.

This court case should be dismissed because of no grounds or evidence that such a situation existed. The arresting officers (3 cars!) and the off-duty cop who called in these ridiculous charges should be severely reprimanded for the emotional harm and embarrassment caused to my granddaughter. A formal apology is also warranted.

There are many women and men out there who do need protection, live in fear, but are afraid to seek help. If they find out about this type of injustice to innocent people, they will avoid calling the police even more.

that we waste the $5,000," and council member Billy Wagers said, "I'll second the waste." The approval was unanimous.

Only Spectrum Consultants had been asked to submit a bid for the feasibility study, since they had been highly recommended by a community member.

"I think this a first step," Connelly said, "and it might be a last step. We might have a study done, and these people come in and say, 'because of the proximity of other existing communities . . . it is not really feasible for this community to think that they could do it.'"

The failed attempts in the past to build a retirement home in Berea were brought up, including the renovation at the Holiday Inn on Exit 77, the Lorraine Court development, and Stoney Creek. Connelly told council members that he knew of retired people who had to leave Berea because of the lack of a facility, and many were disappointed and upset at that fact.

Bob Shaffer, a key person in the community who has been working to get a retirement home in Berea, said, "I want to see this thing happen . . . I have personal friends who worked hard for this and wanted to see it happen and for one reason or another it didn't. But this is going to happen."

The executive director of the Kentucky Guild of Artists and Craftsman, Jeanette Rowlett, addressed the city council during an earlier work session, and asked them to financially support the Guild. She stated that they were in a financial bind, and needed money to complete the renovation of the building they had bought on North Broadway.

"I would like to ask the city council if you could help us out a little, until we get back on our feet," Rowlett said.

She said the Kentucky Guild was planning to open a Visual Arts Academy next April, and they needed to complete their classrooms upstairs. The money from the city would be used for the internal renovation and advertising; she asked for $20,000. Connelly asked if the Guild was willing to commit to a contract with the city, where in return for a certain amount of money they would offer a certain number of classes.

Rowlett stated that people taking a Learnshop had a brief experience with an art medium, but the Guild would offer a more intensive learning experience. She stated that they would like to have classes from April to September, and their building could hold an average of 50 students at a time.

Kerby and Connelly both asked Rowlett to show them a business plan from the Guild for the Visual Arts Academy, so they could consider the request further.

Stone showed the new signs that have been placed around town, with one side giving information on the three art areas in Berea - College Square, the Artisan Village and the Kentucky Artisan Center - and the other side pointing out the businesses in that particular art area. He stated that they were consciously trying to get rid of the title "Old Town" for North Broadway, and exchange it for the term, "Artist Village."

The signs are part of the signage project that the college and city have partnered on; they received an NEA grant to help fund some of the upfront work. A consulting firm has been hired to work with the college and city. The signs are temporary, Stone said, and asked that citizens as well as council members give feedback on what they liked and didn't like about the new signs.

"This is just the beginning of the signage program," Stone emphasized.

The signs are placed at Hwy 595 and the bypass, and at both Interstate exits.

Connelly asked city council members to give him feedback regarding the Madison County Airport, and whether they wanted to participate in their strategic planning process. He asked them to also think about how the airport could be more effective for Berea. The Airport Board has asked each of the three governments for $25,000 this year - the usual amount is $10,000 - and Connelly indicated that more input would be needed into how the money would be spent if they gave the higher amount. He confirmed that George Wyatt has been approved for the Airport Board. Judge Executive Kent Clark declined to participate in the vote, but both Connelly and Richmond Mayor Jim Barnes voted for his reinstatement.

Chief David Gregory announced that the Berea Police would start cracking down on parking around College Square and other areas where parking violations were common. The college and city would also be holding an active shooter simulation, so all personnel could rehearse what they would do if there was an active shooter on the college or at-large in the community.

Hogg reported, labor intensive work that increases the cost of the re-roofing. The extra labor, and the primer they will have to apply when the scraping is done, will add approximately $43,000 to the project. The extra labor will cost $24,000 and to prime the concrete will cost $19,000.

"My argument was that they agreed to get down to the concrete deck, which would include getting the tar paper off, but they argued that they couldn't have foreseen that the workers who first installed the roof didn't prime it," Hogg said.

Hogg said the construction workers were about 15 percent done with the scraping of the roof. There had been a contingency fund built into the construction project for unforeseen expenses, board chair Van Gravitt said, so the extra cost would be covered.

Once school starts, the workers will scrape during the day, and will wait until 3:30 p.m. to pour the tar.

Hogg reported that the motion detectors and light switches are all installed, and the sealing of the building envelope would be happening soon.

The board members expressed appreciation to Hogg for keeping up with the construction project.

future, partly because there is no room and also because they need to catch up with their recent, rapid expansion.

Mr. Uhara said they would be working on innovation, and making the plant more "green" in the future. They will also be increasing their robotic technology.

"People always say Hitachi is so busy, you work so hard," Mr. Uhara said. "I would like to change that culture."

Word From Berea Streets

"Do you have a vegetable garden planted this year? What's your favorite garden vegetable?"

Becky Berheide of Berea said, "No, because I really don't have the time to take care of one. My favorite garden vegetable is tomatoes."

Erica Carpenter of Berea with her children, Cate, 3, and Cole, 8, said, "No, we don't have a garden, but my favorite garden vegetable is fresh, ripe tomatoes."

Gary Owens of Berea said, "No, my wife and I just have tomato plants in pots on our deck. I don't even eat tomatoes much. I like corn on the cob best."

Over 1,000 people register for Berea Learnshops

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Berea Tourism Director Belle Jackson is thrilled. In the third year that Berea has held the Learnshops, the number of participants has already exceeded 1,000. It is a good start to a vision the Tourism Department has had to turn Berea into an arts and education location.

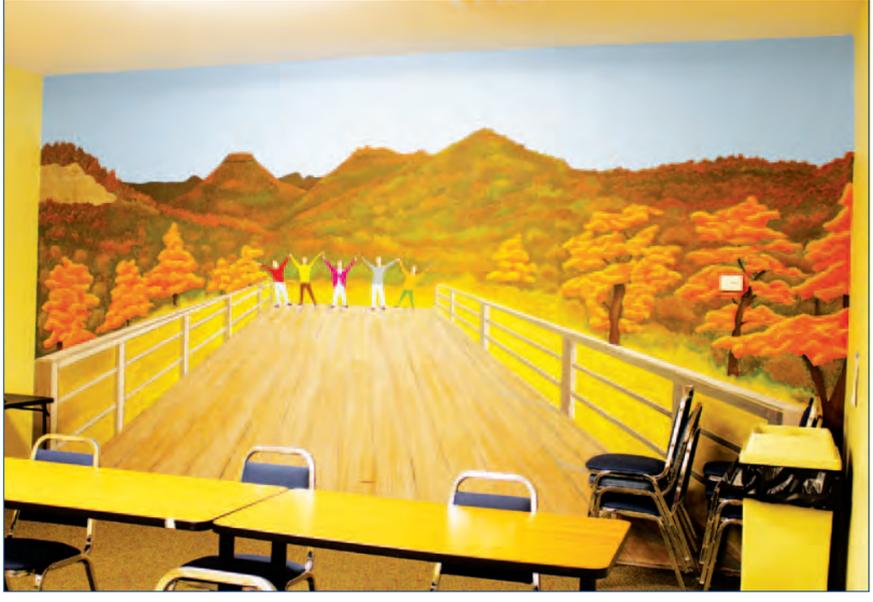

People have come from all over the country to attend Learnshops in Berea, which range from workshops that teach glass blowing, basket weaving, painting, soap making, woodturning, textile techniques from Africa, making copper jewelry, and blacksmithing. Terri Bartlett from Milwaukee, Wisc. (above right), glass blowing with instructor Michelle Weston) is taking seven classes. It is a treat for herself, she said, a break from working all the time.

The Learnshops started on July 13 and will run to July 29, with the mural painting workshop finishing last week. Many of the Learnshops took place in the crafts room at the Broadway Center where the Berea mural was painted (left).

The City of Berea hopes that the Learnshops will eventually become self-sustaining; currently Berea Tourism runs them. The second Learnshops of this year takes place in December, with a focus on making Christmas presents.

Infection Prevention...It's In Your Hands!

Saint Joseph Berea encourages you to use good hand hygiene. It is the single most important step toward preventing spread of infection. Germs are spread through the air by coughs and sneezes, but hands play a big role. One of the most common ways to pick up germs is by touching something that is contaminated and then touching your nose, mouth or eyes. You can also spread germs to others by touching objects or people with your hands. To protect yourself from germs, thoroughly wash your hands or use an alcohol-based hand sanitizer.

Mathews Graduates Air Force Basic Training

Air Force Airman 1st Class Jonathan T. Mathews graduated from basic military training at Joint Base San Antonio-Lackland in San Antonio, Texas.

The airman completed an intensive, eight-week program that included training in military discipline and studies, Air Force core values, physical fitness, and basic warfare principles and skills.

Airmen who complete basic training earn four credits toward an associate in applied science degree through the Community College of the Air Force.

Mathews is the son of Rebecca and James Mathews of Kings Trace Drive in Berea.

Berea Faith Community Outreach

BFCO - Serving Bereans In Need

Berea Faith Community Outreach, Inc. (BFCO) is an association of churches, community organizations and active and retired clergy working in the Berea area. BFCO administers three aid programs:

- BUURR (Bereans United for Utility and Rent Relief)
- Berea Food Bank
- Frank Gailey Transient Aid Fund

These are designed to meet the housing, nutritional and other material needs of at-risk individuals and families in the community. BFCO is supported solely by contributions from local churches, businesses, individuals and charitable foundations. Volunteers answer phones, sort donated food and assist clients allowing 98% of donations to go directly to Bereans in need.

Your Donation Will Help Us Help Others

Checks made out to BFCO may be sent to:

Bereans Discussed new Owsley Fork Reservoir; Airport Board Struggled with Funding New Airport

Berea College opened bids in July 1973 on two projects to enable water to be brought to Berea from a new reservoir on the Red Lick Watershed. The reservoir was to be built on Owsley Fork.

Bids were opened for the installation of a five-mile, 16-inch pipeline to connect with the existing system, and for the construction of a pumping station to raise the water to the necessary level to feed into the Berea system.

The Owsley Fork reservoir is a major portion of the college waterworks plan to meet the demands for a growing use of water in Berea. Karl Warming, the college's business vice president, said that the reservoir should take care of Berea for 65 years.

The college's overall investment in the reservoir project would be $1,700,000 -- this included the college's portion of the dam construction, land rights, an addition to the water filtration plant in Berea, as well as the two projects that were being bid out.

The Madison County Airport Board had a major setback in their attempts to build a $1 million-plus airport north of Berea. The Bluegrass Area Development District in Lexington reported that there was not enough local money on hand to construct the facility.

The Airport Board had obtained $60,000 locally, including $20,000 each from the Madison County Fiscal Court and the cities of Berea and Richmond. Additional funds were expected from the Federal Aviation Administration, the Appalachian Regional Commission, and the Kentucky Department of Aeronautics.

Since 10 percent of the costs of building the facility had to come from local sources, they could only build a $600,000 facility with the $60,000 on hand. The chairman of the airport board stated he would go to local sources, and ask for extra.

The Madison County treasurer Glenn Adams was replaced in a somewhat controversial move, since there had been no problems with his performance. In an editorial in the Citizen, it was stated that Adams had run against County Judge Robert Turley, and during that campaign let it be known that he thought the court could be run more efficiently. Judge Turley made the motion himself to let Adams go, and the father of Mary Jane Ginter, who was to replace Adams, made the second. The editorial stated that all the actions were ethically inappropriate.

Babies born at the Berea Hospital at the end of June 1973 were Joyce Elaine DeHart of Mr. and Mrs. Broadus DeHart, Kimberly Jo Shouse of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Shouse, Jr., Carol Elaine Isaacs of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Isaacs, Johnny Allen Ballard of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ballard, Cassandra Lynne Stewart of Mr. and Mrs. Noil Stewart, Jr., and Cynthis Loraine Jones of Mr. and Mrs. Orvilla Jones. There was a minifestival in Berea, with the Cincinnati Symphony playing, who also were defeated by the Berea faculty softball team. The orchestra was situated in the deepest part of the campus quadrangle, directly behind Lincoln Hall.

Three of the four concerts had a Berea flavor, with the McLain Family Band, the Berea College Country Dancers and a host of young Bereans dressed in their own costume creations.

There were 34 Bereans on the Dean's List at Berea College for the second semester of 1972-'73. They were freshman Linda Mullins, and sophomores Kenwood Lewis Abney, Nora Lee Anglin, Rowena Gail Carnes, Delorise Cates, Charles Rexford Evans, Ellis Ray Hogg, Laura Elizabeth Ramsay, James Lucien Rowlette, Howard Martin Strickler and Vicki Jo Van Winkle.

The juniors were Steven Lamar Connelly, David Dennon Crandall, Judy Lynn Engle, Donna Carol Lynridge, Michael Joseph Fothergill, Carol Bryan Gailey, Gregory Ray Harless, Suzi Horton, William Henry Johnston, Jenny Kiteck, Diane Sue Martin, George Thomas Mustard, Nancy Carol Powell and Williams Edward Ramsay. Seniors on the Dean's List were Maureen Devere Bryant, Marcia Lou Devere, Grace Kleinschmidt Edwards, Robert James Grossman Linda Gail McKinney, William Ashley Olinger Jr., Kenny Goodwell Rowlette, Paul Elaine Turner and Jacqueline Lee White.

In July 1973, Troop 15 won the cooler that was given away by Coca-Cola Bottling Company for its efforts during Project S.O.A.R. Keep America Beautiful Day. The troop was sponsored by Middletown Community Center. Elmer Congleton, center, the District Scout Executive is show presented the cooler to Scout Alfred Raider and the Scoutmaster.

Search for Brookelyn Continues

Sheri Patterson/The Citizen

Approximately 200 search and rescue workers from 13 different agencies were on hand Tuesday to look for Brookelyn Farthing, the teenage girl who went missing over a month ago under suspicious circumstances. The team searched a 1.5 mile perimeter around Hwy 421 and Hwy 21, using Indian Fort Theater as their command center.

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Hundreds of search and rescue workers and aid workers gathered at Indian Fort Theater early Tuesday morning, as another massive search for the missing Berea teenager, Brookelyn Farthing, took place. Brookelyn went missing over a month ago, on June 22, and so far there has been no indication of what might have happened to her, or where she might be. There has been one other large search for her on June 28, when police and others looked around the Floyds Branch area. "This was an expansion of the original search area," KSP Trooper Paul Blanton said. The search on Tuesday concentrated on the perimeter around Highway 421 and Highway 21. Trooper Paul Blanton from the Kentucky State Police stated that they covered 16,540 acres in their search. Brookelyn, who graduated from Madison Southern this year, was last seen in the Big Hill area. There had been a localized fire at the residence where she had been seen that morning, but no sightings have been reported since then. People from all over Berea expressed worry and concern that a teenager from the community disappeared so completely. The search on Tuesday included, along with the Kentucky State Police, the Madison County Rescue, Rockcastle Search and Rescue, Berea Forest Service, Medical Reserve Corp, Estill County Rescue, East

Kentucky Trackers, Knott County, Wolfe County, and Harlan County. The search and rescue workers used horses and ATVs in the search, as well as boats to search four bodies of water. Blanton said he was not sure if there would be searches in the future, since the detectives had to process the evidence from this search first.

County Clears Up "Misunderstanding"

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Public comments that Madison County Magistrate Roger Barger made regarding the county purchasing lumber from Sturgis instead of a local vendor were confronted on Tuesday, when county road department personnel defended their decisions.

Judge Executive Kent Clark brought up the issue at the fiscal court meeting on Tuesday morning. "We've had, seems like, some misunderstandings," Clark said. "There were some statements made by Magistrate Barger that we were buying materials at the same price from out of town." SEE COUNTY, PAGE A8

End of the Trail for Tillie

Timothy Pack/The Citizen

Tillie, above, perhaps one of Berea's most beloved citizens, passed away Tuesday after a long, full life of hiking the Indian Fort trails.

By Beth Myers
Citizen Editor

Hikers, Bereans, college students, and anyone who has loved the Indian Fort trails and the Berea College Forest will mourn the loss of Tillie this week, the dog whose main joy in life was accompanying people on their hikes up and down the trails. Her owners, Bhana and Ron Deaver, had to put a tag on Tillie that said, "My

All About Snakes

Beth Myers/The Citizen

Two-year old Logan Rogers touched one of the snakes that Roy Scudder-Davis brought to the library on Tuesday for the snake show; for over two decades Scudder-Davis has been showing snakes from his personal collection of 80 snakes. A professor of biology at Berea College, Scudder-Davis has loved snakes ever since reading the book, All About Snakes. His mother, he said, caught his first snake for him when he was a teenager.

Oldest Church in Area

By Sandra Plant
Citizen Reporter

This is the sixth article in the historic church series.

After 221 years, Scaffold Cane Missionary Baptist Church is one of the oldest churches in the area and perhaps even one of the oldest in Kentucky. The cemetery surrounding the church yard contains graves of veterans from virtually every war, including Revolutionary War soldier Barnabas Haley, 1755 - 1851.

Formed at the headwaters of Silver Creek near Burnt Mill Bridge in 1792, the year Kentucky achieved statehood, the church has a rich history.

Many members still active in the church today have family ties to Scaffold Cane that go back five and six generations.

Frances Rigsby Todd, an active member for 75 years, treasures a rare photocopy of church minutes from the years 1802 - 1859. Members of the Todd family of Madison County reconstructed minutes of the old Silver Creek-Scaffold Cane Church as a bicentennial project in 1976. Until early 1815, the church meetings were held at the "head of Silver Creek." Later that year, the church voted to move to its present site on Scaffold Cane Road, just over the Madison County line in Rockcastle County.

The church in earlier minutes was referred to as the Church of Christ at Silver Creek, but records show that it was always Baptist in its affiliations. The name United Baptist Church of Christ at Scaffold Cane was adopted around 1840. The minutes form a compelling social and religious history that make for fascinating reading.

Members furnished hewn logs and timber to build the structure that still stands today behind the attractive façade of Bedford Stone that was added in the mid 1970s. Visitors sometimes mistake an old frame struc-

• On July 22, officers were called to Family Auto Sales because of a theft. Employees said that ten car batteries had been stolen from cars on the lot. The estimated loss was $300.

DUI Arrests

• On July 17, officers were called to the area of Richmond Road because of a possible drunk driver. After the vehicle was located, a traffic stop was conducted on the Berea Bypass. The driver was slurring his speech and smelled like alcohol. After investigating, the officer determined that the driver was under the influence. Officers arrested James Dawson, 39, of Berea and charged him with operating a motor vehicle under the influence -- second offense (DUI) and careless driving.

• On July 22, officers were called to a collision on Interstate 75 Northbound. Inside one of the vehicles, officers located a large glass pipe with marijuana residue. After investigating, officers determined that the driver of the vehicle was under the influence. Officers arrested Chad Creech, 22, of Baxter and charged him with operating a motor vehicle under the influence -- first offense (DUI) and drug paraphernalia possession.

• On July 22, officers were called to the area of Richmond Road because of a possible drunk driver. The vehicle was located and a traffic stop was conducted in the parking lot of Walgreen's. The driver was slurring his speech and smelled like alcohol. After investigating, the officer determined that the driver was under the influence. Officers arrested Kyle Murphy, 24, of McKee and charged him with operating a motor vehicle under the influence -- first offense (DUI).

Sex Offender Arrest

• On July 18, officers were on Dinsmore Street conducting an investigation. They discovered that Christopher Lamb, a registered sex offender living on Dinsmore Street, had been living there for several weeks and had not registered the address. Officers arrested Christopher Lamb, 35, and charged him with failure to comply with sex offender registration -- second offense.

Drug Arrests

• On July 18, a traffic stop was conducted on Chestnut Street. The officer noticed a green metal container sticking out from one of the seats in the vehicle. Inside the container was a hydrocodone tablet. Officers arrested Jason Sparks, 38, of McKee Ky and charged him with second degree possession of controlled substance.

• On July 21, officers were called to an apartment on Elm Street because of a possible burglary. They saw a door had been damaged and was standing open. Inside the home, they located approximately two ounces of marijuana and $1,170 in cash. They also located a rolling machine, digital scales, plastic bags and pipes. Officers arrested Shawn Hutchins, 22, of Berea and charged him with trafficking in marijuana and drug paraphernalia possession.

Former Madison County Clerk Indicted

Former Madison County Clerk William Gabbard was indicted, Attorney General Jack Conway announced last week, on one count of theft by failure to make required disposition of property over $300. The grand jury returned the indictment against Gabbard following an investigation by Conway's Department of Criminal Investigations, the Office of the Auditor of Public Accounts and the Department of Revenue. The investigation of Gabbard began in November 2009 following an audit conducted by the state auditor's office. The investigation started before current Madison County Clerk Kenny Barger took office. Gabbard is accused of changing social security numbers in the Automated Vehicle Information System (AVIS), allowing him to register his personal vehicles without paying taxes, interest and penalties. The prosecution is being handled by the Fayette County Commonwealth's Attorney's Office, following a request by Madison County Commonwealth's Attorney David Smith for appointment of a special prosecutor. "Since being sworn in, January 2011, my staff and I have focused on three key areas: customers service, compliance and efficiency," Barger said in a press release. "To achieve those goals, we completed a thorough review of all policies and procedures relating to accounting, human resources, ethics and work standards. Upon that review, I determined that, among other things, accounting controls had not been established to ensure proper oversight of taxpayer dollars." The charge against Gabbard is a Class D felony punishable by one to five years in prison. His arraignment is scheduled for August 15 at 11:30 a.m. in Madison Circuit Court.

Madison County Deputy Indicted

Lt. Jamie Lee Wynn from the Madison County Detention Center was indicted on one count of first degree official misconduct last week. The Kentucky Attorney General's investigation of Wynn began in September 2012 after a complaint from the Fayette County Attorney's Office. Wynn allegedly failed to exercise his official duties following the arrest of his son, Jonothan L. Wynn, on Fayette County charges. An investigation of Wynn by the Fayette County Attorney's Office is ongoing. Prosecution of this case is being handled by the Mason County Attorney's Office, appointed as a special prosecutor.

VOTED MADISON COUNTY'S BEST AFTER SCHOOL & SUMMER DAY CAMP

Plant a Large, Long-Lived Tree

In my opinion, all of these types of trees should be removed as soon as possible and appropriate small-growing trees planted in their place.

Trees on campus which were recently removed had become structurally weak and/or were dying. As sad as it is for a large, stately tree to be removed, it is necessary when these trees are in locations where people are frequently under them and valuable buildings and other assets could be damaged when they fall.

Fortunately, Berea's streets, parks and campus are pretty well populated by trees. However, as with most towns, there is a noticeable "age gap". We have large trees around town... mostly on campus and in the older neighborhoods near campus... many of which are nearing the end of their lifespan. There are a lot of young trees too. But, there aren't that many quality "middle-aged" trees of large-growing species. This is unfortunate, because this means that few really large stately trees will remain by the time the young trees amount to much.

There's really nothing we can do about that. We can't go back in time to the 60s or 70s and plant a bunch of oak trees. What we can do is take care of the big old trees we have (by not topping them or unnecessarily removing them), while now planting large-growing species of trees, where appropriate.

One of my pet peeves is when people have the attitude that they're not going to bother with planting a long-lived, slow-growing, large species of tree because "it won't amount to much in my lifetime, or while I'm living here". Few people plant fruit or nut trees for the same reason, because "they won't produce much while I'm here". This short-sighted, self-centered attitude is the reason why we do not have "middle aged" trees (or fruit trees, although some people fuss about the "mess" of free food lying on the ground in the yard, too... go figure).

The big old stately trees around town, for the most part, weren't planted at all... they were already here when the town was developed. They have been taken for granted, while people over the years planted mostly small-growing ornamental trees which quickly look pretty for twenty years or so, but provide no lasting benefit to future generations.

The City is doing their part, to remove unsightly, hazardous, and inappropriately sized trees along our streets. Berea College is doing their part to remove hazardous and dying trees, while constantly planting more. For Berea as a whole to be a beautiful and shady place to live, regular citizens need to do their part too. This fall, or next spring, how about planting a long-lived, large-growing tree or fruit/nut tree in an appropriate location?

Berea History Question for the Week

What was the full name of Berea's second mayor?

Answer for history question from two weeks ago about which streets in Berea were named for people who played an important role in the town before 1900:

- Boone Street and Boone Court-For Daniel Boone whose Trace followed Brushy Fork through Berea;
- Burdette Street-For John Burdette, an early builder in Berea and general contractor of Phelps Stokes;
- Cassius Court-For Cassius Clay, the man who invited Fee to preach in Berea;
- Hanson Street-For the Hanson family, early settlers of Berea;
- Harrison Road and Harrison Court-For a family of early settlers and supporters of Berea College;
- Fee Street — For Rev. John Fee, an early settler of Berea and founder of Berea College;
- Rawlings Street-For a close friend of Cassius Clay and an early settler of Berea;
- VanWinkle Grove-For the owner of that property and a town marshal.

Are there others?

"Let us not be weary in well doing, for in due season we shall reap if we faint not."

Response to Last Week's Column

Dear Mr. Pack,

In your article of last week, you open with the statement "Some are all about redefining marriage."

I might gently suggest, sir, that humans have been redefining marriage since the earliest origins of the institution. Your definition appears to rest primarily on the form of marriage defined by your faith. As far as that goes, you are a good and faithful man to your faith, and one presumes, your marriage.

However, I would remind you that not everyone in this nation, state, county or even town subscribes to your faith, or even your particular denomination, and that marriage in law is defined by the laws of this nation which do not permit you to enforce the tenets of your faith on someone who does not share it.

As far as redefining marriage goes, you might want to examine the history of Christianity. Until the 13th century, same-sex marriages were sanctified by the church, and virtually indistinguishable from other marriages, save for the gender of the parties involved. 12th century liturgies for same-sex unions include a recital of vows, joining of hands at the altar and a ceremonial kiss to seal the bond. It wasn't until 1306 that the Byzantine emperor Andronicus II declared such ceremonies to be un-Christian. So, you see, it was not the church that acted; it was the state.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints permitted men to have several wives until 1890, when abolition of that custom was required by the Federal Government for Utah to become part of the Union.

Going further back, ancient Hebrew law required a man to become the husband of a deceased brother's widow. Islamic law provides means for a man to have up to four wives, providing he can support them all.

Ancient Roman law provided for multiple types of marriage depending on property rights. Ancient Irish law was more equitable to women in marriage than even modern civil law, providing several types of marriage, of different "degrees", and that the child of a union carried the surname of the parent of higher social status or wealth. Yes, there were even provisions of same-sex marriages there, too.

So you see, sir, people throughout the world have been redefining marriage as it suits them for thousands of years. Don't be so sure your version of traditional marriage is the only one. Besides which, it is still civil law in this nation which legally defines marriage. Not the tenets of your, or any other faith.

With respect,
Jim Davis

Malwidge: "Two Becoming One Flesh"

Dear Editor,

In order to understand the "malwidge" thing (Mr. Pack's term) as Scripture tells us God designed it; I would submit there is a key element which is being either glossed over or just plain overlooked entirely by many regarding homosexual rights and the "malwidge" issue. I have referenced Gen. 2:24 and Gen. 4:1 in an earlier letter on this subject, and would now like to add Gen. 7:3 to that list.

The key to understanding God's perfect "heterosexual" plan is contained in the words "two becoming one flesh" as stated in

Gen. 2:24. The reason it keeps coming back to the one man and one woman thing as Mr. Pack pointed out, or "male and female" as God referenced to Noah in instructing him in loading the ark with every species of animals (Gen. 7:3); is because God did a finished work when he created it all. He created the first of everything including man, but in order for His work to be finished, and not to have the task of having to recreate every successive man and animal from then on, He, being that He is not only Love but also Wisdom; came up with the Divine plan of male and female, seed and egg in order "to keep seed alive upon all the face of the earth"(Gen.7:3). By doing so He could then declare "it is finished and it is good."

"Two" do not become "one" by a mere sexual act, whether heterosexual or homosexual in nature. Two only become one through procreation. Seed and egg. The "two" in God's perfect plan is comprised of "man and woman" (heterosexual) and from the two come "one" flesh which is the offspring. And God called it "good;" Mr. President, Mr. Mayor.

A road department employee told magistrates that he ordered plywood from Sturgis that has a waxy coating, and it will last four to five times longer. He stated that it could not be purchased locally.

"We save the county money by using that plywood . . . If you want to buy locally, I can do that. But that plywood will be gone. It will be bucked up, and you won't be able to use it," he said.

"It's a better deal, because it's a better grade of plywood," Leroy Brock said, supervisor of the road department.

Barger explained that he used the receipt from the purchase, and went to Lowe's to look up the same product; he didn't realize that the brand was different from Sturgis.

"I thought it was an equal product," Barger said.

When it was time for comments from the magistrates, Greg King said he didn't have any comments since the matter of the plywood purchase was cleared up.

"I'm not here for my self-interest, I represent the people," King said, "Just to represent myself it'd be easy . . . you realize how vital, important to represent the people is. I'm here to represent the people, not myself. I have no self-interest in this job, other than my job is representing the people of Madison County."

Keith Everitt from the Red Lick Volunteer Fire Department informed the fiscal court that the fire department had received an $80,600 grant to renovate their training room.

name is Tillie. I am not a stray. I live next door. Let's go for a hike," because of all the people concerned that she was homeless.

Once it was found out that she was dying, updates were posted on her facebook page, and people shared Tillie stories as well as their sadness.

The last post on Facebook Wednesday stated, "from the parking lot next door came the sounds of vehicles and car doors and people's voices - some of Tillie's favorite sounds. She was lying on cool green grass, surrounded by loving family and friends. Her passing was quiet and peaceful."

And so Berea says goodbye to their very special hiking dog, who lived in her own heaven on earth sharing her trails and her town with all her people.

ture in the middle of the cemetery as an earlier site of the church. But long-time members say the now abandoned structure was a community church used by several different groups.

Scaffold Cane Church served as both a house of worship and an informal court system for settling disputes and disciplining members for inappropriate behavior such as drinking, dancing and spreading falsehoods. The minutes tell of many transgressions, including a complaint against a "Sister" in June 1826 for "going to a frolic."

The minutes show that a few African Americans, possibly slaves, were members of the church. The minutes of July 4, 1806, state that "Phyllis, a Black woman baptized at meeting." Also mentioned in the minutes are "Ambrose, a Black brother and Sister Anna, a Black woman."

Church services in the early days were held on a Saturday and Sunday once a month. Preachers would travel to the church and stay in members' homes. The minutes tell of interactions with Baptist Churches in Viney Fork, Red Lick, Macedonia and Hays Fork for the ordination of new deacons.

Brother Chris Cobb of Berea, pastor for the past six years, said, "Scaffold Cane Baptist is a church where everyone is welcome to come and be a part of God's great plan. It is a church that is made up of all generations of people from tiny babies to aged seniors."

Brother Cobb called on several long-time members to share their memories. Deacon Steve Bullen, at age 84, is the church's most senior male member. Bullen remembers coming to church as a boy from the family home on Scaffold Cane Branch in a team and wagon.

"Lots of horses were tied up around the church yard back then," he said. "And, of course, a lot of people walked to church."

"We would always have our revivals in the fall when the moon was full so people could walk home afterward in the moonlight. I remember people walking along the road carrying lanterns."

Members of the Bullen family have been active at Scaffold Cane for six generations. Steve's brother, William Bullen, smiles as he recalls that he and his wife, Betty Sue, portrayed Mary and Joseph in the church Christmas pageant in 1956.

"We got married the next year," he said. "That was 56 years ago."

Mrs. Bullen has been attending church and Sunday school since childhood. One of six children, she said, "Our Mother and Daddy saw that all us kids were raised here."

William Bullen said he was baptized by Preacher Fred Bennett with 21 others in Clear Creek on the Dewey Miller place when he was about 12 years old.

Steve Bullen observed with a shiver, "That would have been cold water." The church today has a baptistry with an original mural painted above by Loretta Drakeford of Harrodsburg.

Herman and Frances Rigsby Todd are another couple with long-time family ties to Scaffold Cane. Mrs. Todd, with a keen interest in church history, keeps photos and programs of past Homecomings, Decorations Days and other events.

When Herman Todd was growing up, his family attended both Scaffold Cane and Macedonia Baptist Church, also on Scaffold Cane Road. Mrs. Todd remembers when the only light in the church was provided by kerosene lamps mounted on the walls.

A recent addition is a new fellowship hall with modern kitchen and additional Sunday school rooms. During the week of July 8 - 12, the church was overflowing with youngsters attending Vacation Bible School.

Sunday services begin with Sunday school at 10 a.m. Sunday worship at 11 a.m. includes a children's church. There is a Sunday night service at 6 p.m.

Brother Cobb said, "Our Wednesday night services are prayer meeting at 7 p.m. and a children's discipleship and youth bible study. The truth of God's word is important for everyone to know and understand." For more information, call 859-661-1040.

Feature Farmer

Salamander Springs Uses Permaculture Principles

By Christie Green
 Citizen Reporter

Despite the sweltering humidity this past weekend, Susana Lein and her three interns welcomed my family for a quick tour of Salamander Springs Farm, just a few miles outside Berea on Wildie/Clear Creek Road in Rockcastle County.

The farm is designed and managed using permaculture principles and practices. Without tilling the soil, Susana uses local inputs and recycles resources from the farm to continuously build up the fertility of the soil. Using no fertilizers or pesticides of any kind, Salamander Springs produces a diverse range of crops in an amazing small space.

As Susana explained it, "Permaculture principles result in very fertile soils that enable a space to be cropped in a concentrated way, cultivating up to four times as many plants as traditional farming practices would be able to cultivate in a given space."

Susana offers opportunities at Salamander Springs Farm each growing season for interns and apprentices. Many come to the farm via the WWOOF program. WWOOF, which stands for WorldWide Opportunities on Organic Farms, started in the early 70s in England but is now international in scope. Farms enroll as WWOOF host sites, giving aspiring farmers opportunities to gain firsthand experience in their chosen areas of emphasis. For those who come to Salamander Springs Farm, the emphasis is on permaculture principles and biodynamic practices.

Salamander Springs Farm offers a wide variety of produce over the course of the garden season. Right now, tomatoes, potatoes, onions, squash, eggplant, garlic, green beans, edamame, tomatillos, and many other mid-summer crops are available in the CSA baskets and at their Farmers Market table on Tuesday afternoons. "This has been a good fruit year," Susana said. "We have blackberries, June berries, peaches, plums, and more."

The farm also offers eggs from some very happy chickens.

"We spoil the heck out of those chickens," one of the apprentices said, and it's true. Susana walked us past rows of amaranth, sunflowers, and broom corn that the chickens will soon be enjoying. They also have opportunities to range through various cover crops, including buckwheat and oats.

One aspect of permaculture gardening practices is intensive mulching. Mulching improves water retention, prevents weeds, and improves the fertility of the soil. Susana uses a variety of mulch mediums, including grass clippings, leaves, sawdust or wood chips, and old hay.

"I would much rather mulch in the spring than weed in the heat of the summer," she said by way of explanation. "When we mulch, we're accomplishing three things at once. We're weeding, fertilizing, and watering all in one step."

Preparations, or teas, help provide extra nutrients that plants need to overcome challenging growing conditions. For example, Susana described making a "sun tea" of horsetail, a rush-like plant native to marshy areas and creek banks in our region. They whisk this tea over the leaves of the tomato plants. Horsetail contains silica, which helps strengthen the tomatoes against the blights that frequently attack them during wet summers. Duckweed, which grows on the pond, is added to the ground when transplanting. Its high nitrogen and protein content promotes fertility and strengthens the plants' natural ability to overcome pests like flea beetles.

The heavy rains this summer have complicated some of the harvests. Susana explained the importance of being able to shift to different crops or to try for a second, later crop as the season progresses.

"You never know how a season will turn out," she said. "We had to move a lot of things around to accommodate the cool wet conditions this spring."

Susana grew up in Iowa and worked as an architect in Boston.

"I grew up with farming, but I lived a long time away from that life," she said. "I decided that I didn't want to be contributing to the development and paving over of the land."

She left her work in New England and spent seven years living outside the U.S. When she returned, she learned about Berea through her work with fair housing construction and Habitat for Humanity.

"After living in third world countries, it was a culture shock to return (to the U.S.). Kentucky was a great place for me to come back to. I'm glad I came here. People still farm and know how to live off the land."

Since purchasing the land on Clear Creek in 2000, Susana's focus has been on keeping the farms expenses low so that she can make a living with the crops she produces. She started marketing in 2003, and by 2005 was ready to "make the leap" to a self-sustaining market garden.

Salamander Springs Farm products are available at the Berea Farmers Market, Happy Meadows, Good Foods Coop in Lexington, and the Berea College Store. The farm offers a five month "Bread and Harvest" CSA and participates with the Acres of Harvest project. Popcorn, cornmeal, and dried beans are also available for purchase on-line at localharvest.org.

Susana also hosts farm tours and workshops on permaculture and natural building techniques. The next permaculture tour of Salamander Springs Farm is scheduled for Saturday, August 3.

Visit www.localharvest.org/farms/M5606 for more information about the farm and upcoming events.

FROM THE BEREA CITIZEN ARCHIVES JULY 1983

Reflections

Poor Inspection Results Threatened to Shut Down Madison County Jail, Bereans Participated in Girl Scout Camp, Little League All-Star Games, and First Annual Traditional Appalachian Humor Festival

There was concern early in July 1983 that the Madison County jail may be closed. It had been inspected a few weeks earlier by the State Board of Corrections, and the juvenile section was closed immediately. The county was waiting for a report about the inspection of the rest of the jail.

The article reported that 22 jails had been closed in Kentucky.

County Judge Executive Harold Botner said that he didn't think they would close the jail down, but he knew a lot of work was needed.

The jail had been built in 1854, and needed more floor space per individual prisoner, recreation facilities, a more secure visiting room, better air circulation, proper plumbing fixtures, better lighting and more doors to the cell blocks.

This jail held up to 84 prisoners, and on the average had 65. Botner said the worst thing about the jail was the lighting and the steam heat.

The Berea Service Unit held a Girl Scout Day Camp at Indian Fort Theater from June 27 - July 1. There were 53 girls from Berea who participated. The camp was directed by Daphne Baird, and assisted by Cosie Cope.

The two Brownie units were led by Laura Riegel, Terrie Lainhart, Marcie

Davis and Misch Ertel. Hikes were led by Herman Hundley, with first aid instruction provided by Cecil Hylton.

Crafts were led by Becky Caudill, and Meg Suters and Rochelle Williams taught new songs. Games were led by Virginia Timm, and the leader for the outdoor cooking was Ivie Gullette.

The 1983 Little League All-Stars and their respective teams were Barry Brock and Blake Long of Rotary; Monty Brock, Eric Combs, Bunky Harkleroad and Ricky Terril of Fire Department; Troy Burnell, Shane Buttry, and Ty Duval of McDonalds; Steven Chasteen and Dennis Sargent of McMahan's; Chris Sipple of Berea Farm Service, Robert Matthew Walker of M & W Standard and Tim Hellard of Linville Insurance. Billy Linville was the coach and Ronnie Terrill was the manager.

The 14 - 15 year old division All-Stars and their respective teams were Darin Slone, Kevin Puckett and Kevin Simpson of Berea Drug; Oscar Bowling of Superior Food; Russell Seals and Dan Sipple of Tastee Freez; John Skeese of Pennington Realty; Chris Simpson, Ronnie Terrill, Pat Giacone and Mike Robison of Prewitt Farm; Randy Gadd and Barry Stephenson of Kiwanis Club; and Deron

Wolfe of Winkenhofer Funeral Home. Chris Dillon of Berea Drug was the coach, and either James Shoopman or Larry Wilson was going to be the manager.

The Berea Independent School ranked eleventh overall in a ranking of schools of achievement test scores. Peggy Kelly, the assistant superintendent, said that the results proved that you needed support of all kinds, the support from the community made "a lot of different" in student performance.

These achievement tests were administered to all Kentucky students in grades three, five, seven and ten. The year of 1983 was the first time a ranking of state schools was released.

The Berea Craft Festival was getting ready for its second annual event, and they expected over 10,000 to attend. The gate admission was $2 for adults and $.50 for children from 6 - 12. The music would be performed by Mandala, Topy Kramer and the Mountain Spirit Band. There would also be a performance by the Mayapple Morris Dancers. WKXO was going to be doing live broadcasts from Indian Fort Theater.

Berea exhibitors included blacksmith Charlie Horrar, potter Troy Setzler, Walter and Joyce Mosher, wood artisan Bill Dunbar, Warren A. May, Sarah Culbreth, Tera and Ron Deaver and Lothar Baumann.

Between 600 and 700 people attended the first Traditional Appalachian Humor Festival in July 1983. The event took place on the Berea College campus. Several Bereans placed in the different categories. In the category of Joke or Anecdote, Lewis Lamb won first place, and Mace Crandall and Rev. Less Morris won second place. In the category of Traditional Tale, Berean John Ramsay won third place. In the category of Original Story or Routine, William D. Epling won first place.

Several cheerleaders from Foley Middle School participated in a cheerleading camp held at EKU. It was sponsored by the International Cheerleading Foundation. They were Lori Cook, Regina Jones, Denise Rawlins, Kim Cates, Kim Lamb, Patty Wolfe, Kristie Brock and Shane Leach.
