Site Analysis by Ward

APPENDIX 6 WARD ANALYSIS

This appendix provides a ward profile, detailing all sites, per typology, identified in the audit.

Many sites have more than one typology. For example a recreation ground (amenity green space) may have a play area and sports pitch. To avoid double counting, the area of each of the different typologies/functions is identified. In the table below, the areas of each of the typologies are presented following deduction of the other typologies on that site. Space would be used for different functions depending on the time of day. For example a sports pitch on a recreation ground could be used as an amenity green space. And an amenity green space is often used as an informal play area. Where this is the case, the main use has been recorded, for example, where there are sports pitches on a recreation ground, the area taken up by the pitch is recorded as sport.

Whilst this avoids double counting, it means that where sports pitches take up a large proportion of a site, for example on some recreation grounds, a very low area of amenity green space is recorded, whereas in fact, the space is likely to be used as both sport and amenity. The total area available on site for use as sports/play/amenity can be obtained from a sum of data in the individual tables, if required.
